Police and other officials met with the City Council Ordinance Committee, Monday night, to consider changes to the "Keeper of a Disorderly Home" ordinance.

The required number of disturbance calls to the police, before intervention, should be reduced from eight, annually, to four or five, it was recommended.

This reduction was recommended by Chief Robert Crawley, Lt. Dan Minton, and city solicitor Monica Conyngham, represented by her assistant, Owen Kane.

Kane will present the decided changes at the next ordinance committee meeting, March 27.

After four or five disturbance calls, regarding the same property, the police will meet with the landlord, to help make corrections.

The landlord is then responsible to make evictions or post "no trespassing" signs.

If disturbances continue, the police will file a complaint at the Quincy District Court.

They may then place detail officers, funded by the landlord, at the property.

The funding is not considered a fine, but an "expense collection," or "fees," and pays for police officers, who are working on their own time, according to Ward 4 councillor Jay Davis.

The costs will be determined by whatever the officer rate is, he said.

City Council Passes Coughlin Resolution

Quincy To Study, Pursue Wireless Access

The City Council has approved a resolution introduced by Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin seeking the creation of a Wireless Technology Committee to be appointed by Mayor William Phelan.

The committee will be comprised of local business leaders, municipal department heads and elected officials.

"It's mission will be to constructively study and actively pursue a public-private partnership to build and maintain a multipurpose wireless broadband network that will provide coverage for the entire community including residents, business owners and city government," Coughlin said.

Quincy's initiative is modeled after the efforts of cities such as Brookline, Boston, Philadelphia and San Francisco which are studying or actively developing and deploying blanket wireless internet access. A recent Boston Foundation report indicates that "companies like Earthlink, Google, and Hewlett Packard are extremely interested in partnering with local government" to provide (WiFi) wireless fidelity web access.

KEVIN COUGHLIN

Coughlin said there are four objectives:

• Future proofing the city's investment in building a new downtown by paying attention to what innovative technology will position Quincy to be most competitive in a new economy ensuring the supporting infrastructure is included in design and planning;

• Providing secure, reliable ubiquitous wireless technology access for all city services including police, fire, public works and schools at no cost to the city saving taxpayer dollars by reducing the city's operating budget and making those services more efficient;

• Providing secure, reliable ubiquitous wireless broadband access in public spaces including commercial districts, public parks, public housing and other public spaces at no cost to the city; and

• Providing increased competition giving residents and businesses choices for broadband services, thus driving down the costs for residents and business owners alike.

"This is an exciting cost-saving initiative that is taking hold both locally in Boston and Brookline as well as nationally from New York to San Francisco," Coughlin said. "Quincy has an opportunity to be on the leading edge of the wave of wireless innovation."

In addition to the work of the special committee, the Council's Oversight Committee is expected to conduct informational hearings to keep the public informed.

Catering Firm Seeks Liquor License At Granite Links Golf Course

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Gourmet Granite Catering"s request for an all alcoholic, common victualer license at Granite Links was continued until March 28 at the License Board Tuesday.

Concerns were raised by the ward councillor, the city solicitor and the License Board.

The biggest concern was that there would be two liquor licenses under one roof.

Atty. Joseph Hanley, counsel for Gourmet Catering told the board that the company has been in business for 35 years in the Boston area and that they have an "excellent record" and would bring "high quality" service to the golf course.

Ward 4 Councilor Jay Davis said he held a neighborhood meeting and said their concern was noise coming from the pavilion (tent) from the music.

Davis also questioned whether the pavilion originally called a "temporary" one is still being used.

Jay Duca, director of inspectional services said the structure is taken down yearly and only used in the warm weather. He said he would investigate it further for the next hearing.

City Solicitor Monica Cunningham called Gourmet's request an "unusual one" to split the two licenses for the same premises and had "enforcement concerns" as well.

She added that Quarry Hills be asked to amend their license before granting another and that both parties are "completely coordinated.".

Chairman Joseph Shea called Quarry Hills a "great facility" and also a " big issue". He said Quarry Hills liquor license include the ball room, kitchen, dining room, function room and the pavilion.

Police Chief Robert Crawly agreed with Cunningham and said he wanted to make sure that the city would have the 10 percent re-coup as part of the original agreement.

He made the motion to continue the hearing until March 29.

Shea said he would notify Quarry Hills of the meeting regarding the alteration of their liquor license.

LICENSE BOARD BRIEFS

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

Gutro Names 12 To Energy Costs Special Study Committee

Twelve members, including two city councillors and 10 hands-on experts, have been appointed to a special committee to study ways to cut the city's energy bills.

Councillor-at-Large John Keenan was named chairman and Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly vice chairman

Members include Bill White, head of the EPA energy team; Larry Chretien, Massachusetts Energy Consumer Alliance; Jim Edwards, architect; P. J. Foley, marsh restoration expert.

Joe Cardinal, Mass Electric; Joseph MacRitchie, Quincy Housing Authority; Richard Fitzpatrick, city auditor; and representatives from the Public Works, Park and School Departments.

Their mission is to "audit and benchmark energy use in all public buildings, tabulate associated costs and environmental impacts and develop recommendations for the full City Council."

They were further charged with studying transportation-related energy usage and costs and asked to come up with recommendations for bringing those in line.

The order forming the committee was filed by Council President Doug Gutro, who noted that the city of Quincy's energy bill had nearly doubled (up 47 per cent) since 1998.

"Although it has been a relatively mild winter, you wouldn't know it by reading the average monthly energy bill," he said.

"Anyone who pays to heat a home or drives a car has endured the sticker shock of rising energy costs in recent years."

QUINCY POLICE DEPARTMENT recently received 30 Hug-a-Bears from the Telephone Pioneers, a group of retired workers who make the stuffed animals. Officers can hand out the bears at calls where children are present, such as car accidents and domestic violence incidents. From left are Officer James Dentremont, Paul O'Brien and Lieutenant Dan Minton of the Crime Prevention Unit.

Winter On-Street Parking Regulations

The Public Works Department reminds residents of regulations for parking on streets this winter:

- Overnight parking is prohibited without a residential parking permit which is available from the Police Department (617-479-1212).
- Resident parking permits are void during snow emergencies.
- Parking on a snow emergency artery during a snow emergency is prohibited. All main streets in the city are posted with signs identifying them as emergency arteries.
- This year, parking is allowed during a snow emergency on the odd-numbered side of non-emergency streets.
- Your car will be towed if it is in violation of these winter parking rules. The average tow and storage fee is $100.

If bad weather is expected, call 770-SNOW or listen to WJDA 1300 or to television to learn if there is a snow emergency. WJDA will have snow emergency updates.

If you have problems or questions related to snow removal, call the snow hotline: 617-376-1943.

Gypsy Rose Receives Exotic Dancing License

If you want to participate in a "glorified exercise" program, you can now do so at the Gypsy Rose Exotic Dancing and Pole Lessons right in Quincy at 23 Mechanic St.

The License Board Tuesday granted Wendy Reardon a Dancing School License.

Reardon said she will feature "trendy dancing" including pole dancing for anyone wishing to learn including housewives.

Chairman Joseph Shea read a letter from Maralin Manning executive director of the Quincy Business Association in which she called Reardon one with "impressive credentials.

Shea told the board that he recently learned that Reardon who is a "local resident" is a Pope Scholar and has written and published a book in 2003 about the deaths of several Popes.

Board members asked Reardon if men were allowed and she said it is mostly for women, but said she could also accommodate those who wish to learn more about dancing.

The 'Quincy Connection'

Haven't heard much about the "Quincy Connection" lately.

But, down through the years there has been a strong one to famous names and events.

Unless you just dropped in from Mars you already know about John Adams and John Hancock and their connection to the birth of this nation.

Adams pushed the Declaration of Independence — the nation's birth certificate — through the Continental Congress of which Hancock was president. And both signed the document. Hancock was the very first, signing his name with a bold flourish "so that King George III can see it without his spectacles." It became one of the most famous autographs in history.

Adams and Abigail were the first occupants of the White House.

And, of course, Adams and John Quincy Adams were the first father-and-son presidents and Abigail the first wife of one president and the mother of a another.

But do you know some of the other Quincy connections to the famous?

Like Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson who became the Duchess of Windsor when King Edward VIII gave up the British throne in 1936 "for the woman I love."

DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

Before she met him, she lived in a second floor apartment on Davis St. in Wollaston in 1917 while her first husband, Lt. Earle Spencer, headed a Navy training school in Squantum which later became the Squantum Naval Air Station.

Not too much is known about her days in Quincy but legend has it that her neighbors thought she was a bit snobbish and nicknamed her "The Duchess."

Little did they realize.

Famed aviatrix Amelia Earhart, whose disappearance in the Pacific in 1937 on an around-the-world flight became an around-the-world news story and a mystery even to today, had a Quincy connection.

EARHART

She took flying lessons in the 1920's at the old Dennison Airport in North Quincy where she was part owner.

The first Quincy-built USS Lexington led a three-week search for her but she was never found.

And, there was Harriet Quimby, the first woman to earn a pilot's license and the first woman to fly the English Channel in 1911.

QUIMBY

She was killed at an air meet in Squantum in 1912 when she and her passenger, William Willard, manager of the meet, fell out of her plane and plunged into Dorchester Bay.

Richard Byrd, who went on to become the famed North Pole explorer, was once stationed at Squantum Naval Air Base as commander.

World War II Fleet Admiral Chester Nimitz had a strong Quincy connection.

Nimitz, who directed the U.S. Naval operations in the Pacific after Japan's sneak attack at Pearl Harbor, married a Quincy girl, Catherine Vance Freeman.

NIMITZ

They apparently met while Nimitz was in Quincy waiting for his submarine to be outfitted at the Fore River shipyard.

They were married April 9, 1913. Nimitz was 28, and Catherine, the daughter of Richard Freeman, former city council president, was 21.

They were married in her family's home at 40 Grand View Ave., Wollaston, by Rev. Carl Horst, minister of the Wollaston Unitarian Church on Winthrop Ave.

Years later, Nimitz recalled the wedding as "the happiest day of my life."

The USS Quincy, built here at the Fore River shipyard and named for the "City of Presidents," took President Franklin D. Roosevelt to the Yalta conference to meet with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Russian Premier Joseph Stalin in February, 1945.

FDR

When Joseph P. Kennedy was named ambassador to Great Britain, there were those in Quincy who remembered him when he was the general manager of the Fore River shipyard.

And, of course, the famed World War II slogan, "Kilroy Was Here," was born here in Quincy at the Fore River shipyard.

James J. Kilroy was in charge of incentive work for testing the tanks of ships being built for water tightness. One day in 1942 he was emerging from the tanks of a corvette when he heard one worker asking another: "Hey, was Kilroy really here to inspect this job?"

Kilroy was miffed and pulled out a yellow crayon and scrawled on the tank hatch for all to see: "Kilroy Was Here."

And repeated the message — some on bulkheads — on every ship he inspected. Soon it appeared all over the shipyard and the ships carried it to the Pacific and Atlantic where GI's picked it up and spread it around the world. It appeared on coconuts on Pacific islands, all the way to the Imperial Palace in Tokyo.

Legend has it that at the Yalta Conference, Stalin came out of the men's room and asked, "Who is Kilroy?"

The catchphrase became a World War II morale booster in the company of "Let's Remember Pearl Harbor."

There hasn't been much about the Quincy connection lately.

But someday, no doubt, something big will happen somewhere and someone with a connection to Quincy will be there.

Who knows? When they finally land on Mars, they might even find scrawled on a rock: "Kilroy Was Here."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN old real photo postcard view of the first building built by the First Church of Squantum. The congregation had originally met in a tent on the site of the fire station down the street. Later, they moved their services to the more comfortable old Union Vacation House at the corner of Huckins Avenue and Bellevue Road. After a fire destroyed Vacation House, the congregation bought the property and built this wooden church in 1914. The Norman-style stone church with a similar tower that is now on this corner replaced this building in 1947. Sited on one of the highest elevations in Squantum, it is proudly known as "The Friendly Church on the Hill." To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Commends Phelan On Development Stand

Congratulations to Mayor Phelan on his vision for Quincy and his recent tough decision to limit the growth of smaller developments in Quincy. These developers who come in and develop small projects of nine units or fewer bring several things to the city of Quincy. None of them are good.

Developers of these small projects bring low wages, no health insurance for workers, no pensions for workers, no apprenticeship programs, to ensure worker safety and project quality, and no permanent jobs to the region. What they do bring are plenty of illegal immigrants who are being exploited, and high prices to guarantee themselves huge profits.

Mayor Phelan has stuck up for good quality development. Good quality development belongs in our downtown and we should take pride in that. We need more development similar to the two recent projects at Monrow Place and Presidents Place, which were built and financed by members of the Quincy and South Shore Building Trades Council.

These workers earn the good wages and benefits they deserve with these kinds of good developments. These workers live in and near the city of Quincy and take great pride in the quality and expediency of their projects, and these are their permanent jobs. They have good wages, health care, pensions, annuities, apprenticeship training and safety programs and are able to provide for their families when there are good, responsible developments. Contractors who are good corporate citizens and provide these good jobs also reap good profits, just not at the expense of exploited workers and innocent taxpayers.

Good quality development for Quincy must take into account public transportation to cut down on traffic, protect our unique urban lifestyle so that our children can grow up in the same kind of city we grew up in, provide our youth and families with access to beaches, parks, fields, shops and restaurants, and keeps our city strong and moving forward for a better future without compromising or losing any for our great tradition and character in Quincy.

Thank you Mayor Phelan for realizing that developing downtown Quincy not only creates a needed strong business base, but that there is a way to do it that will also continue to create a strong community for our families.

Six Horse-Drawn Plows Proposed For Sidewalks

This Week
45 Years Ago

Harold A. Nannis, president of the Wollaston Park Association, proposed the Quincy Public Works Department buy six horses and horse-drawn plows to clear sidewalks of snow.

Nannis pointed out that during three recent big snow storms all but one of the city's motor-driven sidewalk plows were laid up with engine problems.

NEW X-RAY BUILDING

The City Council's Finance Committee approved a $500,000 loan order for a proposed new X-ray building at Quincy City Hospital.

It was the third of four major projects contained in Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa's $2.9 million capital outlay program.

Already approved by the council were plans for a $1,486,000 city incinerator and a $300,000 gym for North Quincy High School.

The fourth project, a $150,000 branch library in North Quincy, was still before the Finance Committee.

Meanwhile, the Quincy Taxpayers Association attacked the mayor's entire capital outlay program in its newsletter but Della Chiesa brushed of the criticism.

Said the mayor of QTA Executive Director George Yarrington:

"During the seven years I have been mayor he has been absolutely no help to me in keeping the tax rate down."

PRAISE FOR REPUBLICANS

Former state Rep. William W. Jenness of Quincy told members of the Evening Club at the YMCA:

"The Republican legislators from Quincy make up in quality what they lack in numbers."

The once large GOP delegation from Quincy was down to Rep. Amelio Della Chiesa and Sen. Thomas S. Burgin.

Women's History Program At Adams National Park

The first in a series of five afternoon programs commemorating Women's History Month will be held today (Thursday) at 1 p.m. at the Carriage House, Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St.

In 1987, Congress designated the month of March as National Women's History Month. Adams National Historical Park will initiate a month-long celebration of the lives and contributions of five outstanding American women, important in American history, American culture, and American letters.

The first is Ann Bradstreet, whose name is familiar from the pages of early anthologies of American poetry. But few know that she was the first published poet, male or female, to emerge from the wilderness of the New World, or that her slim volume of verse was a runaway best-seller.

Author and educator, Charlotte Gordon, will give her insights and reflections on Bradstreet's work, and her world. Gordon will discuss her book, Mistress Bradstreet: the Untold Life of America's First Poet. A book signing will follow and Gordon's book will be available for purchase.

The program is free and open to the public. Parking is available. Light refreshments will follow. For more information about this and the other Women's History Month programs, call 617-770-1175 or 617-773-1796 or log on to www.nps.gov/ADAM.

Bowling Party To Note Jewish Purim March 13

A Purim bowling party will be held Monday, March 13, in the Green Room of Boston Bowl, 820 Morrissey Blvd., beginning at 6 p.m. with the reading of the Megillah.

It will be followed by an Israeli-style Pita Falafel, music, Hamentashen and refreshments.

The cost is $10 for adults, $8 for children.

In the spirit of Purim, those who attend are urged to come in costume and take part in the contest in which judges will award prizes for the most innovative or funny costumes.

Purim celebrates the salvation of the Jewish people in the year 3405 (356 BCE) from the Persian ruler Haman's plot "to destroy, kill and annihilate all the Jews, young and old, infants and women, in a single day."

It is observed by public readings of the Megillah (the Scroll of Esther), sending food portions to friends, giving gifts of money to the poor and enjoying a festive meal with joyous drink.

For more information on Chabad's Purim fastivities or on the holiday of Purim itself, contact the Hingham Quincy Chabad at 617-850-5935 or log on to www.hqchabad.com.

A Tribute To Maurice Carbonneau

Concert To Memorialize Beloved Music Teacher

Nearly 150 North Quincy High School alumni, some from as far away as Florida, will be back home on the weekend of March 24-25 for a musical celebration to the memory of their music teacher, Maurice Carbonneau.

Carbonneau, a resident of Houghs Neck, taught at the high school from 1967 until his retirement. He died in August, 1993.

The musical weekend will culminate in a concert, open to the public, Saturday, March 25, at 8 p.m. in the North Quincy High School auditorium.

Tickets are $15 per person and the proceeds will go to fund music scholarships for deserving seniors. A similar event in 1994 raised $4,500 for a similar purpose.

Vocalist Ann Kenneally Ryan and Producer John Mcdonald explained that after the funeral of "Mr. C," as he was known, they and other students decided to do something in his memory.

"Several of us got to talking about how much we enjoyed and appreciated what he taught us musically, how he challenged us to succeed and how much he cared for us as individuals," said Kenneally Ryan, who lives in Braintree.

"We soon hatched the idea of attempting to track down about 30 years worth of his students and invited them to a musical event staged in his honor," said McDonald, who still lives in Quincy.

Funds raised during that first concert and a grant from the Quincy Arts Council have since run out and there is no money left for the scholarships.

"When I found this out, it was a call to action," said McDonald.

"Many time over the years, when I would bump into participants from the first event, they would tell me how much they enjoyed it and how they wished we could do it all over again,.

"But now, I really felt we had an important reason to do so."

Carbonneau himself had a fine musical career as a singer prior to his days as a teacher. A graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music, he sang opera, including some performances with the noted soprano Beverly Sills.

His wife, Gay Carbonneau, a singer, pianist and choral director in her own right, also taught for many years in the Quincy Public Schools and remains active in the Quincy Choral Society.

"One aspect of that first event that was especially moving was the response of his wife and family," said Dana Cetlin, another alumni who now lives in Newton.

"I'll never forget her comments to all of us at the conclusion of the first concert when she remarked, 'Some people wonder if teaching is worth it. Tonight this shows that it is worth it."

Tickets for the 2006 show can be purchased on line with a credit card at www.jmproductionspresents.com.

Checks can also be made out to "Maurice Carbonneau Scholarship Fund" and sent to JM Productions, PO Box 2313, Quincy, MA 02269-2313.

Tickets may not be available at the door.

Quincy Lions Club Members Named Melvin Jones Fellows

Roger Hamel, Edmund O'Leary Receive Lions' Highest Honor

Two members of the Quincy Lions Club were named Melvin Jones Fellows at the Lions District Mid-Winter Conference, held recently at the Sheraton Braintree.

Named for Melvin Jones - the Chicago businessman who in 1917 founded the Lions Club - the Melvin Jones Fellowship is the highest honor bestowed by the Lions Club, which with 1.3 million members is the largest service organization in the world.

According to Lions Club President Joyce Hogan, Hamel and Feeney were nominated for the prestigious honor by the Quincy Lions Club in recognition of their many years of devoted service to the Quincy Lions Club and the local community.

"Both Roger and Ed have volunteered countless hours to the Lions Club in order to make our community a better place," said Hogan, who noted that both Hamel and Feeney are past presidents of the Quincy Lions Club.

"They are both richly deserving of Lionism's highest honor."

O'Lindy's Bowling Granted Beer, Wine License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The owners of the only bowling alley in town have received permission to sell beer and wine at their 16 lane alley on 170 Quincy Ave.

The License Board at Tuesday's meeting unanimously granted Olindy's owners Jim and John Mezzetti their request for the license.

Although Police Chief Robert Crowley had concerns over the parking area offered across the street from the bowling alley, he nonetheless agreed to the issuing of the license.

Atty. Robert Fleming, Jr. said the Mezzetti's have owned the bowling alley on Quincy Ave. since 1969 and that it includes 16 lanes, 16 pool tables, a video machine and one service center.

Fleming said there is more interest in the sport of bowling with many leagues now including an "older generation."

He said the Mezzetti's are trying to adapt to changes and making an attempt to keep their leagues at their establishment.

Flaming said the Mezzetti's' understand the seriousness of serving liquor and know it as an "added responsibility".

He said there would be four TIPS trained employees with two on the service center and the other roaming the area which he said is very open and able to be controlled.

He cited their financial background and their knowledge of the business and that they understand the concerns.

He said he had spoken to Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi who said he had no major concerns.

Chairman Joseph Shea said this is the first time Olindy's has applied for a beer and wine license.

Shea read one E-mail from an abutter who was concerned about more traffic at a busy intersection.,

Crowley questioned how many parking spaces there were. Mezzetti said he has 128 spaces.

Crowley suggested that four bowling alleys be reserved for underage drinkers and the other 12 for adults to make it easier to identify when anyone buys a drink.

Mezzetti told the board that patrons sometimes call to have either a Christmas party or other kinds of celebrations and the first question they ask is "is there beer and wine?" He said they then usually have their party at a bowling alley in Boston.

Shea who said the first bowling alley run by the father of the Mezzetti brothers was in 1934 where the MBTA station is now located.

He called the Mezzetti's a "terrific family.

The request now has to be approved by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission. (ABCC).

Full-Day, Half-Day Kindergarten Sessions Registration March 4, 7

Registration for kindergarten full-day or half-day sessions will be held Saturday, March 4, and Tuesday, March 7.

The March 4 registration will be from 9 a.m. to noon and the March 7 from noon to 3 p.m., announces Assistant Supt. Carmen Mariano.

Students seeking full-day or half-day placements must be registered at their home school on one of those two days. March 4 is considered the better of the two days.

Mariano said the school system will do its best to place all full-day kindergarten students in their home schools and that it will be to a parent's advantage to register the child as early as possible.

The School Committee last Jan. 25 approved a plan to offer a full-day kindergarten for all students who will be 5 years old on or before Aug. 31, 2006 (born on or before Aug. 31, 2001). Parents will be allowed to choose either a full-day or half-day program.

The following documents must be produced in order for a student to be registered:

- Child's birth certificate (with raised seal)
- Proof that child resides in home school district (any two: tax bill, utility bill, copy of lease)
- Photo ID of the adult seeking to enroll the student

No matter when a child is registered he/she will be offered a full-day experience if his/her parents so desire; but if space is limited in the child's home school, and a child is not registered early enough, he/she may have to be transported to a full-day class in another school.

Phase II of the registration process will take place in April. Details in that regard will come to all pre-registered students some time in March.

Copies of a booklet detailing the entire QPS kindergarten program and registration process are available in all QPS elementary schools, on Channel 22 and on the QPS web site: (www.quincypublicschools.com).

Interested parents are encouraged to obtain and review this booklet in advance of the March 4 pre-registration date.

Questions regarding the kindergarten program or any other Quincy Public Schools offering may be directed to any of the following principals:

- Amelio Della Chiesa, Dennis Carini, 617-984-8777.
- Atherton Hough, Dorothy Greene, 617-984-8797.

Committee To Meet On Preservation Act March 9

The City Council's newly formed Community Preservation Act (CPA) Committee will hold an informational meeting Thursday, March 9, at 7 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brook Ave., South Quincy.

The CPA is statewide legislation that enables a community to place a one per cent surcharge on property taxes to fun control over local planning decisions.

The money would be used for the acquisition of open space, the creation and support of affordable housing and the preservation of historic buildings and landscapes.

Members of the CPA Committee include Councillors Jay Davis, Kevin Coughlin and Joe Finn. The March 9 meeting is planned to be the first of a series of informational meetings.

Funds raised through the property tax surcharge would be matched up to 100 per cent by the Massachusetts Community Preservation Trust Fund (CPTF).

The average property tax increase for Quincy homeowners is figured to be $25. Exemptions would be given to low-income households and the first $100,000 of residential property.

The CPTF is funded through a fee charged by the Registry of Deeds every time someone buys, sells or refinances his or her home. Quincy contributes an estimated $435,000 annually to this fund but, unless it accepts CPA, it will get none of it back.

At least 30 per cent of the annual revenues must go equally to open space, affordable housing and historic sites. The remaining 70 per cent can be used for any combination of the three or for acquisition and maintenance of land for recreational use.

"Our city has a rich multicultural heritage," said Sharron Beals, the centers executive director. "And through March we traditionally celebrate our Irish history and citizenry."

EDWARD FITZGERALD

Dr. Fitzgerald will discuss the historical record of the Irish in Quincy, focusing from earliest times to the 1920's. He will also touch on what gaps may exist in historical record and on some of the issue's involved in dealing with the Irish/American experience from his historical perspective. Attendees will also be encouraged to share their knowledge, memories, and stories in an open-ended discussion.

Dr. Fitzgerald, whose great-grandfather came to Quincy from Country Armagh in the late 1800's, has been executive director of the Quincy Historical Society since 1992. Coyotes, Animal Control Montclair/Wollaston Topic

Animal control issues, including local coyote problems, will be addressed at a public meeting, tonight, (Thursday), at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Harvard and West Squantum Sts.

Don Conboy, Quincy Animal Control Officer, with a Police Department representative, will attend the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association meeting, to address wildlife and pet problems in the area.

Coyotes have been living locally for at least 20 years, according to Conboy.

"They have been more prevalent this year than years past," he said.

"They used to live at the quarries and there's all sorts of buildings there now. They don't have the hiding spaces they used to have, so they've been seen,"

He encourages the public to:

• Keep rubbish covered, to avoid attracting coyotes.

• Keep cats inside; coyotes see all small animals as a food source..

• Keep small dogs leashed, and keep an eye on them.

Conboy also wants to remind the public to follow leash and defecation laws with their pets.

"Dogs should always be leashed and always cleaned up after," he said.

Quincy College Providing On-Line Health Care Programs

Quincy College has partnered with Gatlin Education Services to provide new online healthcare programs to help meet the demand for nurses and skilled healthcare workers.

Gatlin Education Services is the largest provider of web-based, instructor-supported training to colleges and universities.

The new online certificate programs include Administrative Medical Specialist (Billing and Coding), Medical Transcriptionist and Pharmacist Technician and are being offered this spring.

"Many of our students have an interest in the growing healthcare professions," said Sue Harris, the president of Quincy College.

"We have found that the web-based, instructor-supported training provides the educational skills we value as an institution, and the convenience that many of our students desire."

The programs, which take an average of 90 days to complete, are open enrollment and self-paced as students are paired with a personal instructor to provide academic support.

The online programs complement the on-site, instructor-led non-credit healthcare programs that are currently offered year round at both the Quincy and Plymouth campuses.

Citizens Foundation Donates $30,000 For Hurricane Katrina Victims

The Citizens Charitable Foundation has made a $300,000 donation to the National Urban League to help victims of Hurricane Katrina.

At a press conference held Tuesday at the Urban League of Eastern Massachusetts' Roxbury office, Robert Mahoney, vice chairman, Citizens Financial Group, Inc., presented the donation to Marc H. Morial, president and CEO of the National Urban League.

The donation will help fund job training, placement and counseling services for displaced victims in many of the major cities where Citizens operates including Boston, Providence, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Chicago.

"Citizens is proud to partner with the National Urban League to assist the individuals and families from New Orleans as they begin to rebuild their lives in New England," Mahoney said. "This donation is a direct result of our employees' concern for the victims of Hurricane Katrina and of our long-standing relationship with local Urban League chapters. We hope that this contribution will help those displaced by the disaster to thrive and grow here."

Citizens' donation to the National Urban League came in response to the devastating hurricane that hit the Gulf Coast in August. Citizens Financial Group employees took the funding set aside to celebrate the company's annual Employee Appreciation Week and earmarked the money for relief efforts. Citizens Employee Appreciation Week is a yearly event that recognizes and honors the hard work and dedication of Citizens colleagues.

"I want to extend our deepest gratitude to the Citizens Foundation for this generous donation to the National Urban League's Katrina Fund," Morial said. "The timing of this commitment is extremely helpful because we are now engaged in helping families rebuild their lives and establish stability in their new communities through job training and job placement. It is an ideal partnership. Citizens is a company with an outstanding commitment to the communities it serves and continuously reaches out to offer assistance in times of need."

"Citizens is pleased to develop this partnership with the National Urban League, which has distinguished history in work force development providing job training and placement services throughout its network," said Heather P. Campion, group executive vice president of Corporate Affairs for Citizens Financial Group.

The National Urban League serves more than 2 million people through professionally staffed affiliates located in 105 urban areas across the United States. The organization works to close equality gaps for people at all economic levels and stages of life, and giving residents a chance to give back as volunteers.

ARTIST RENDERING of major expansion and renovation project planned at Milton Hospital. The project, expected to cost between $25 to $30 million, will add 25,000 square feet of new space and renovate 45,000 square feet of existing space.

Milton Hospital Plans Major Expansion, Renovation Project

Milton Hospital is planning a major expansion and renovation project in response to growing needs of patients in the hospital's service area.

The project, expected to cost between $25 to $30 million, will result in 25,000 square feet of new space and 45,000 square feet of renovated existing space. The major hospital areas affected by the project include the Emergency Department, Surgery, Minor Procedures, Endoscopy, Rehabilitation Medicine, Nuclear Medicine/ Cardiology, Laboratory, and Pre-Admission Testing/Phlebotomy. The project will also create easier access for patients and visitors.

Construction is expected to commence in spring of 2006. Steffian Bradley, of Boston, has been selected as the project's architects, and Walsh Brothers Construction, also of Boston, has been selected as construction manager. The hospital will undergo an approval process with the Town of Milton over the course of the next several months.

"Our facility will be state-of-the-art and patient friendly," Hospital President Joseph V. Morrissey said. "We have undergone extensive research and planning in order to pinpoint hospital and community needs. This project will allow us to meet projected demand for our services and will stimulate further growth."

Tom O'Donnell, vice-president of Clinical and Support Services, said the project will improve patient and staff convenience. High-traffic ambulatory care departments, such as Endoscopy, Minor Procedures and Phlebotomy, will be located near a new main entrance. Consolidated services will greatly improve patient circulation throughout the hospital.

Parts the hospital will receive a major facelift. A new valet parking entrance will include a two-story atrium lobby on the Highland Street side of the building.

"This project will greatly improve the entire look and feel of the hospital," O'Donnell said. "It will significantly improve patient and visitor convenience."

Each year, Milton Hospital treats more patients on an outpatient basis. Last year, the hospital's emergency department treated 18,472 patients in a space that was originally designed to treat a maximum of 15,000 annually. Similar growth patterns in other hospital departments present many challenges as they continue to operate within existing space constraints.

Hospital officials anticipate the project will take approximately two years to complete, and is anticipated to start during the first quarter of 2006.

Plans are underway for an extensive capital campaign to help fund the new construction.

The project will address needs in several clinical areas. Major components of the plan include:

New, expanded emergency department: the emergency department will double in size;

Renovated and expanded surgical suites, including two new suites;

Dedicated minor procedures suite, including three new minor OR's;

Enlarged endoscopy suite, including four procedure rooms and 12 to 14 pre/post-procedure rooms;

Expanded outpatient rehabilitation;

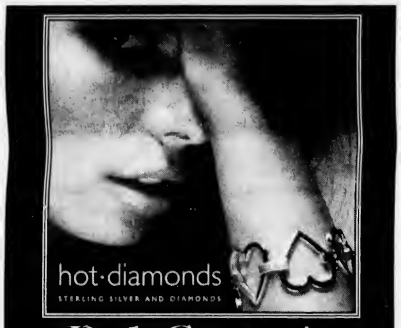
New nuclear medicine/ cardiology space;

New laboratory and more convenient pre-admission testing/phlebotomy;

New atrium-style lobby to improve patient way-finding;

Patient-friendly entrances and signage;

Parking deck creating 80 new parking spaces;



New coffee shop/gift shop.

Home Buyers, Sellers Are Going Online

(NAPS) Technology is changing how Americans buy and sell homes in unexpected ways, including how they work with real estate agents and brokers. That's a key finding of one of the largest surveys of real estate consumers ever conducted.

According to the study, conducted by the National Association of Realtors, nine out of 10 home buyers use a real estate agent in the search process, but use of the Internet to search for a home has risen dramatically over time, from only two percent of buyers in 1995 to 77 percent in 2005. The next largest source of information for buyers is a yard sign, mentioned by 71 percent of buyers.

The 2005 National Association of Realtors (NAR) Profile of Home Buyers and Sellers, based on more than 7,800 responses to a questionnaire, is the latest in a series of surveys evaluating various characteristics of home buyers and sellers.

NAR President Thomas M. Stevens from Vienna, Va., said the findings underscore the complexity of the home-buying process. "Buyers who use the Internet in searching for a home are more likely to use a real estate agent than non-Internet users, and consumers rely on professionals to provide context, negotiate the transaction and help with the paperwork," said Stevens.

The study also shows that it may pay for a seller to rely on a real estate agent. The median home price for sellers who use an agent is 16 percent higher than the price of a home sold directly by an owner.

The Web site Realtor.com was the most popular internet resource, used by 54 percent of buyers, followed by multiple listing service (MLS) Web sites, real estate company sites and real estate agent Web sites.

Typical buyers walked through nine properties searching eight weeks to buy a home and moved 12 miles from their previous residence. Typical sellers placed their home on the market for four weeks, had lived in it for six years, moved 15 miles to their new residence and previously owned three homes.

The most important factor in choosing an agent was reputation, according to 41 percent of home buyers, followed by an agent's knowledge of the neighborhood, 24 percent. Fifty-seven percent of sellers said reputation was the most important factor.

The National Association of Realtors is America's largest trade association, representing more than 1.2 million members involved in all aspects of the residential and commercial real estate industries.

Improving Curb Appeal With Tile Roofing

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

(NAPS) If you're looking for ways to improve your roof and boost the value of your home, you may want to take a look at tile.

Contractors say adding a tile roof is one of the most cost-effective construction projects available. The stylish roofs can endure some of nature's toughest elements (such as wind, hail, rain and fire) and roof tiles usually carry a slightly longer warranty than other roofing surfaces. An added benefit: Tile roofs are an environmentally friendly building choice. Here's a closer look:

Cost Benefits

Tile has a life cycle of 50 to 100 years, depending on the tile, making it an economical choice for many homeowners. Additionally, tile roofs reduce direct heat transfer. As a result, a tile roof can lower air-conditioning costs in hotter climates and produce more constant temperatures in colder regions. in addition to cutting heating costs. the constant temperature reduces the odds of ice accumulation on the roof.

Styles

Tile roofing offers a number of architectural style choices and they come in a variety of colors and shapes that can help set your home apart. For instance, concrete and clay tile roofs are as unique as the homes they're installed on and they're available in finishes and styles designed to accentuate a home's look.

Warranties

Tile roof warranties are often transferable and backed by well-known, reputable companies. That's one reason experts say a tile roof's higher installation cost, when spread over the full life of the roof, is actually an investment that will increase the value of a home when it is sold or resold.

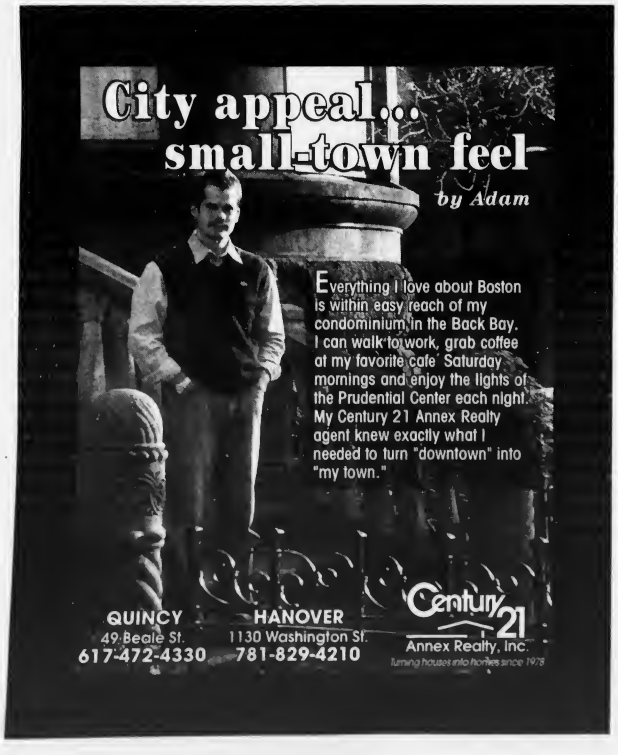
Weight

A common misconception is that roof tile is too heavy for many structures. Most modern buildings are strong enough to support the weight of a tile roof. Most older structures can handle the weight of standard tile, provided all previous roofing materials are removed first. Moreover, many roof tile manufacturers now offer lightweight tile, which is particularly suitable for reroofing projects.

Durability

Tile has been Europe and Asia's first roofing choice for centuries, with many tile-roofed structures requiring little or no maintenance. Tile's durability has been clearly demonstrated by how well it has withstood the test of time, weather and natural disasters.

New Types Of Tile



Today, homeowners can find new types of stronger, more energy-efficient tile roofs. Some new tile is even Class A fire-rated and able to withstand high winds, hail and earthquakes better than any other roofing material.

Get Ready for Spring

Q. I have a couple of bare spots on my lawn, and a friend said I should seed them before spring so that the grass will begin re-growing right away. What do you recommend? — John in Atlanta

A. Since you live in an area with relatively warm winters, pre-seeding the bare spots may be all right. In places where the ground typically freezes, however, pre-seeding should be done in late fall, after the first hard frost but before the ground is completely frozen.

Another method is to wait until the start of the growing season and then rake the bare spots with a thatching rake to turn the soil somewhat. Wet the bare spots down (if the soil's not damp from spring rains) and seed them.

For those who live in an area of the country where spring won't arrive for several weeks or more, don't lose heart on the gardening front. The new seed catalogs are out, and it's a good time to put together a plan for this year's garden. Decide what you'd like to grow, sketch out a design of what plants will go where, and create a timeline and schedule.

Purchase new or replacement tools, and sharpen and weatherproof them. Brush up on your knowledge of plant nutrients and pest-control technology. Organize your gardening worktable and get the seed-sprouting trays ready to go. Even if nothing is growing right now, there's plenty of prep work to be done.

HOME TIP: If you have a wood-burning fireplace or stove, save the ashes. In spring when the vegetables are past the blooming stage, sprinkle a thin layer of ashes above the soil, being careful not to touch the plant stems. The ashes have plenty of minerals, and many pests avoid them.

Keeping Current With Home Wiring Projects

(NAPS) Some people get a charge out of doing their own home electrical work. Others fear getting zapped or creating even bigger repair problems. No matter which category fits you, there's a handy guide that lets you get current with the latest techniques- which could save you a bundle on service calls, as well as increasing the wattage of your smile.

"The Black & Decker Complete Guide to Home Wiring 3rd Edition" (Creative Publishing International, $24.95) expands on the popular volume that has sold more than half a million copies, with tried-and-true projects and the latest fixtures-and enough information to help do-it-yourselfers meet the requirements of the 2005 National Electrical Code.

For example, one of the biggest challenges facing homeowners today is hooking up the many electronic components they own- computers and printers, home theaters and surround-sound systems, CD and DVD and DVR units, to name a few. Getting electronics to operate together correctly has its own dedicated chapter on how to solve this common source of frustration. You'll learn everything you need to know about home media connections, including how to create a high-definition home theater with surround sound. The book also includes:

- A full range of repair and upgrade wiring projects;
- Special circuit maps that take all the guesswork out of wiring lights, switches, receptacles and appliances;
- A dedicated chapter on connecting and networking home electronics; and
- Descriptions of how to use state-of-the-art wireless technology,, such as "Bluetooth" and "wi-fi."

This last item is essential because technology is helping create homes with fewer and fewer wires and greater and greater freedom of movement and communication. The final chapter in the book covers this exciting technology, and will show you how to integrate computers, printers, telephones, audio and video equipment and more- all with no wires attached.

"The Black & Decker Complete Guide to Home Wiring: 3rd Edition" is available at bookstores and all online booksellers.

Cedar Closets: America's Best-Kept Secret

(NAPS) Americans are opening the door a bit wider on cedar closets. A recent survey of 1,000 adults showed that while only 10 percent actually own a cedar closet, 41 percent would consider installing one in their homes when informed about the benefits.

"Our research clearly shows that the benefits of cedar closets may be America's Best kept home improvement secret," says Bev Head, CEO of Huntsville, Alabama-based Giles & Kendall, the #1 cedar closet liner manufacturer in the United States and makers of the CedarSafe Natural Closet Liner brand.

Those benefits include:

- Repel and resist moths, roaches, silverfish and mildew
- Provide a wonderful cedar scent
- Safer than mothballs and smells better
- Often found in expensive or older homes
- A great place to store out-of-season clothes

A 2005 study by Unity Marketing shows that 15 percent of homeowners who make $1500,000 a year or more have cedar closets. That's about the same percentages as those who own wine cellars or outdoor hearths. According to the CedarSafe survey, 44 percent of cedar closet owners inherited them when they bought the house. More than 30 percent installed them on their own.

Closet Makeovers Are Big Business

In recent years, closet makeovers have become big business- a #2 billion industry. The boom helped spark a new trade magazine, CLOSETS, which notes that the average price of a closet installation has increased from $2,000 to $3,500. Much of that expense comes from creating custom closets with lots of shelves and drawers.

"You don't have to spend a lot of money to enjoy the benefits of cedar closets," says Head. "In fact, you can install cedar panels or planks yourself for $150 to $360 for a standard-size closet."

The planks and panels are made of 100 percent Aromatic Eastern Red Cedar and actually line the walls of the closet. They work with standard metal bars or rods or even custom drawers.

The planks provide an elegant look to a closet in a master bedroom. It would cost about $360 to line a180 square feet of wall space with these.

For more information and installation instructions, visit www.CedarSafeClosets.com.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Preventing Dryer Fires

Dryer fires are one of the leading causes of fires within homes, hotels, motels and hospitals.

For instance in nursing homes, the State Fire Marshal's statistics indicate that the dryer causes one fifteenth of fires within these occupancies. Therefore, to minimize the chance of a dryer fire within these occupancies and your home as well, you might consider adhering to the following suggestions:

Clean the filter screen after each load.

It can be easy to detect the cause of some dryer fires once they are extinguished. The cause, is frequently lint traps that have never routinely been cleaned, while the lint buildup occludes the heated air from venting properly. Consequently there is a potential for the dryer and its contents to overheat resulting in fire.

Stay home while the dryer is in use.

Because there is a heating element within a dryer and combustible clothing within it, their use is not recommended while the house is unoccupied. To play it safe, turn off the dryer before leaving the house.

Clean vents to the outside.

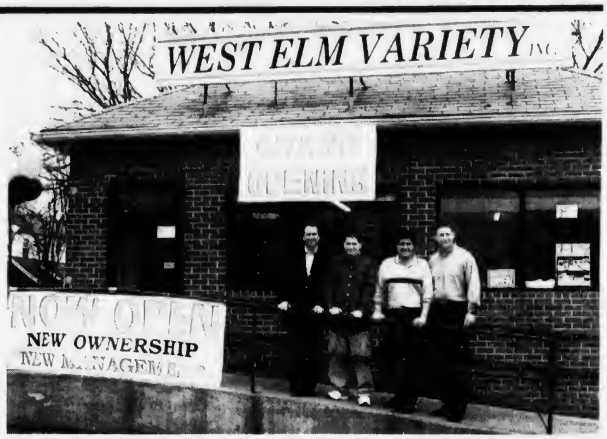
The State Fire Marshal recommends that you clean the vent hosing twice a year. Where I have a plastic cover where the vent hose exits at the outside wall, I find I have to remove it and clean it more frequently. Even with a lint screen, I am surprised at how often I must clean this screen-like cover on the outside wall. Lint fills the half inch openings, blocking proper venting. If you have such a cover and not just a swing lid, take a close look at whether it retains lint and clean it frequently.

Vacuum the motor area.

This is a State Fire Marshal suggestion as well, although I don't find myself doing it where the panel must typically be removed. I do unscrew the clamp to remove the vent hose in this area where it attaches to the dryer to make certain there is no accumulation of lint in this location. Typically the vent hose takes up a 90 degree turn here and I'm concerned about accumulating lint because of it.

I do find myself vacuuming the floor around the base of the dryer and moving it the best I can while doing so to eliminate lint buildup adjacent to and below it. Remember one of the most important precepts in preventing fire is to isolate combustibles from potential ignition sources. Make certain there is no accumulation of lint and clothing, below and adjacent to your dryer.

While inspecting lodging homes this year, I asked each owner or manager if they clean dryer vents regularly. Because of their more frequent use, it is particularly important for these occupants to develop a routine maintenance schedule to avoid costly problems, including fire. Be mindful as well of having the dryer vent directly into your basement.



Your oil burner technician can discuss the shortcomings of this approach, where lint can easily block the burner air intakes over time, causing burner malfunctions.

Be Safe!

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

Exercising With COPD

Q. I have been diagnosed with COPD, and I was wondering if there are any exercises I could slowly work into that would help me to keep functioning normally and keep the disease from getting worse? I am 59 years old and only use an inhaler. I have been out of the exercise world for a long time, and I know I will have to start slowly.

A. Exercising with COPD (Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease) can have many benefits and help improve your overall quality of life. COPD is a group of lung diseases, including emphysema and chronic bronchitis, that restrict airflow and make it difficult to breathe. COPD reportedly affects more than 16 million Americans, and although exercise cannot cure or reverse the disease, it can improve lung function and endurance while keeping the muscles of the body (including the heart) strong.

Your first step should be to meet with your physician to discuss your treatment plan and exercise options. He or she will explain the type of exercises that can help manage your condition, along with their frequency and intensity. Also discuss any breathing techniques you may need to consider while exercising.

Use the guidelines from your doctor to develop your exercise program. It is important to create an exercise plan that is realistic with safe and attainable goals. Since you have not exercised in a long time, remember to start slowly and let your body be your guide, especially if you begin to feel out of breath. As you become more consistent with your exercise routine, your body will respond and your routine should become easier.

Initially it would be helpful to consult a fitness professional to develop a safe exercise routine. After assessing your current fitness level, he or she will develop an exercise program that might include a warm-up, cardiovascular exercise (walking, cycling, swimming), a stretching protocol, cool down and possibly strength training (resistance training machines, free weights, resistance bands) for the arms, legs, back and chest.

Other factors to remember include taking precautions when exercising in cold weather and keeping yourself protected from germs by washing your hands after leaving the gym.

Be sure to find daily activities that you enjoy and will want to continue. Create a support group of family and friends who will encourage you to remain active and exercise along with you. Your commitment to your exercise program is what will produce results. Remember, your exercise routine should help improve your overall function throughout the day.

Welcome back to the exercise world!

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program.

Pamper Stiff Joints, Tired Muscles

(NU) As every weekend warrior or gym rat know, stiff joints and aching muscles are a small price to pay for working out and staying healthy.

According to health experts, more muscles are the result of microscopic injury to the cells in the muscles, surrounding tendons and connective tissue. Damage to the cells cause biological chemicals to leak out and stimulate nerve endings, causing pain.

The bad news is that the pain-otherwise known as delayed onset muscle soreness-will usually intensify on the first day and peak between one and three days. The good news is that the damage is reversible and can even result in greater strengths and endurance in the long term.

While muscle fatigue can rarely be avoided, there are some things you can do to combat the problem. Here are some tips:

• Eat and drink well. The more you work out, the better you need to eat.

"Stress or inflammation due to injury or strenuous physical exertion can have a negative impact on immune function,, which in turn leads to reduced physical performance," says Dr. William C. Franke of the Center for Advanced Food Technology at Rutgers University.

To this end, supplemental health drinks like NuVim can keep you going. NuVim contains an immune-boosting nutrient called Mune Pro, along with Accuflex, a micronutrient that supports muscle flexibility and sturdy joints. • Warm up and cool down. Muscles need time to get used to an activity and conversely, time to relax after they're done working. An easy warm-up of three to five minutes and a couple of minutes of cooling down is always necessary.

• Stretch. After cooling down, stretching your muscles will do wonders in preventing muscle soreness. In fact, the more time you can devote to stretching after a workout, the better and faster you'll recover. Each stretch should be held for at least 10 to 20 seconds before moving to the next stretch.

• Massage. While going to your local day spa may be just what the doctor ordered, self-massage can also go a long way in helping to relax tired muscles and aid in the recuperation process.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

TOOTH-COLORED FILLINGS

Tooth-colored composite fillings not only look better than the traditional "silver" fillings, but they also have the potential to last longer than amalgam (silver) dental fillings. Because composites are physically and chemically bonded to the sides of the teeth, they are better able to resist secondary decay because bacteria cannot get between the filling and the tooth. The bond also holds the filling in the mouth, which means that only the decayed tooth substance has to be removed during restoration. Amalgams, on the other hand, require more extensive removal and undercutting of healthy tooth to prevent the silver filling from falling out. Composites also better preserve the tooth's structural integrity while amalgam merely occupies space.

Could your smile benefit with tooth-colored composite fillings. We want you to receive the highest quality, complete, and affordable dental care. We keep abreast of all new procedures, and we would like to increase public awareness of the importance of preventive oral health care. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where our aim is to provide individual attention and care to every patient so that we can learn about his or her special needs. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Composite fillings do not respond to tooth-whitening techniques.

Quincy Visits Holliston Today In Round One

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School girls' basketball team will travel to Holliston today (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the first round of the Division 2 South Sectional tournament.

The Presidents (13-8 overall), who finished second in the Atlantic Coast League North Division, received the No. 11 seed when the pairings were announced last Friday. Holliston (14-4) is seeded sixth.

If they win, they will advance to the quarterfinals Saturday at 1 p.m. and face the winner of the No. 3 Burke-No. 14 Nauset game.

Quincy stumbled into the tournament, having dropped both games in the ACL tournament. It blew a 13-point first-half lead in a 50-48 loss last Tuesday to Falmouth and fell to Sandwich, 68-57, the next day.

"We really had our sights set on the championship," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "Having beat Whitman-Hanson in our last game we were looking forward to playing them again. We were surprised by an aggressive Falmouth team. They wanted it more than us."

In the game against Falmouth, the ACL South Division champs, the Presidents surged to a 35-22 advantage at the break before disappearing in the second half by scoring just three baskets, all by senior co-captain Jessica Page.

"The last time we played them we had a really close game," Bretsch said. "We knew they were tough. Their leading scorer was injured and didn't play so we were very disappointed in this loss.

"In the first half I thought we played great. Thirty-five points is a lot of points for us in a half. Our press was working well and the kids were playing aggressive. In the second half they switched defenses and went to man and we just didn't respond with the same type of defensive intensity. We usually play well when our defense generates our offense."

Page finished with 20 points, sophomore guard Meagan Tobin had 12, junior forward Brighid Kyle seven and senior co-captain Ashlee Scott four.

In the consolation game against Sandwich, Quincy fell behind, 39-19, at half-time as the Blue Knights buried 6-of-7 3-pointers.

"They came out firing and put on a shooting clinic," Bretsch said. "They were just scoring easily and hitting every shot they put up. We missed a lot of shots that we normally make, open looks."

The Presidents staged a valiant comeback attempt in the second half, cutting the deficit to six points with seven minutes left, before coming up short.

"We just couldn't get over the hump and they hit a few big shots," Bretsch said. "I was proud of the defense in the second half. We played some of the best defense we've played. We never gave up and nearly pulled it off."

Tobin led the way with 16 points while also playing strong defense. Page and Kyle scored 12 points apiece, sophomore point guard Marybeth Torpey had eight and Scott chipped in with seven, including three big jumpers in the second-half run.

Quincy Girls Win Kiwanis Crown

Quincy captured the Girls Division championship Sunday in the 33rd annual Quincy Kiwanis International Youth Hockey Tournament at Quincy Youth Arena.

Quincy breezed through the tournament with a 4-0 record to reach the final, where it doubled up Dorchester, 6-3, as Taylor Shepherd registered a hat trick.

In the other four divisions:

South Boston pulled out a 2-1 overtime win over the Coastal Stars for the Mite trophy, the Coastal Stars edged Pembroke, 3-2, in OT for the Pee Wee crown, Weymouth blanked Newton, 5-0, for the Squirt hardware and Braintree defeated Hyde Park, 4-1, for the Bantam title.

The real winners of the tournament will be local charities. Michelle Stenberg, tournament director and Quincy Youth Arena manager, said the week-long event was very successful and expects to net $5,000 for Quincy Kiwanis youth charities, including the needy and underprivileged children in the local area.

The Quincy Girls shut out its first four opponents, blanking Dorchester, 3-0, Woburn, 2-0, Braintree, 8-0, and Weymouth, 3-0.

In the championship game, Quincy grabbed a 2-0 lead with the goals coming 20 seconds apart. Shepherd scored with Brighid Noone assisting and Meredith Durham potted the other with Alison Eleey assisting.

Dorchester's Bridget Nee became the first player to score against Quincy goalie Chaislyn Burgio with nine minutes left in the first period.

Quincy extended its lead to 4-1 before the period ended when Shepherd converted a feed from Durham with 2:04 left and Noone scored 33 seconds later with Sarah Tabeek and Kennedy Harding assisting.

In the second, Eleey scored with Danielle Mullaney assisting to make it 5-1 with 11:22 left. Dorchester's Heather Mottau answered with a pair of goals to pull within 5-3 heading into the third.

In the final stanza, Shepherd netted her third goal with 3:53 remaining as Katie White and Megan White notched the assists.

In the Pee Wee Division, Quincy knocked off Woburn, 4-1, the Coastal Stars, 2-1, and Brockton, 3-1, before Pembroke ousted them in the semifinals, 7-3.

In Mite action, Quincy fell to Braintree, 10-1, and to the Coastal Stars, 4-3, but rebounded with a 10-3 win over Lewiston, Maine. The "B" squad lost to Weymouth, 13-1, Dorchester, 2-0, and Norwood, 12-1.

The Squirt team suffered a 6-0 loss to Newton and a 9-2 setback to Parkway but pulled out a 3-3 tie with Weymouth. The "B" team lost to Newton, 2-0, Parkway, 9-0, and Weymouth, 10-0.

The Bantam team fell to Hyde Park, 7-1, Braintree, 10-0, and Somerville, 4-3.

9th-Seed North Draws Fontbonne

The North Quincy High School girls' basketball team garnered the No. 9 seed in the Division 1 South Sectional tournament when pairings were announced last Friday.

The Red Raiders (11-7 overall) took on No. 8 seed Fontbonne Academy (13-7) Wednesday (7:30 p.m.) at Curry College in the first round.

If they won, they would advance to the quarterfinals Saturday at 1 p.m. and play the winner of the No. 1 Braintree-No. 16 Barnstable game.

North Quincy headed into the tournament on a roll, winning both games last week in the Atlantic Coast League tournament. It cruised to a 62-45 win last Tuesday over Dennis-Yarmouth and held on to a 63-47 victory over Nauset the next day.

"Those wins turned out to be big because it got us the nine seed," said head coach Doug MacFarlane before the tournament got underway. "I didn't think we'd get that high of a seed. The girls are excited about playing Fontbonne. They have a couple of Quincy girls on the team and they know each other."

Against D-Y, the Red Raiders shot 50 percent from the floor in the first half en route to a 37-10 lead at the break.

"They lost their best guard so we pressed them and they couldn't handle it," MacFarlane said. "It was a big blowout. A lot of kids scored. The JV kids ended up playing more than my starters."

Twelve of the 15 players scored. Junior Megan Therrien and junior JV forward Shannon Malone scored eight points apiece. Senior tri-captain Kayla Lenane and junior guard Lauren Stille each added seven.

In the Nauset game, the Red Raiders again shot 50 percent in the first half to build a commanding 40-19 lead at intermission.

But their shooting cooled in the second half as the Warriors pulled to within eight points with about four minutes remaining.

"We came back to earth with our shooting; we couldn't make a basket in second half," MacFarlane said.

Sophomore forward Rebecca Goreham registered a triple-double with 12 points, 11 assists and 12 rebounds to go with five steals.

Stille drained a team-high 18 points, including four free throws down the stretch to help push North Quincy's lead back into double digits. Lenane added 11 points with nine rebounds and senior tri-captain Elyse O'Connell scored nine points.

You Auto Know

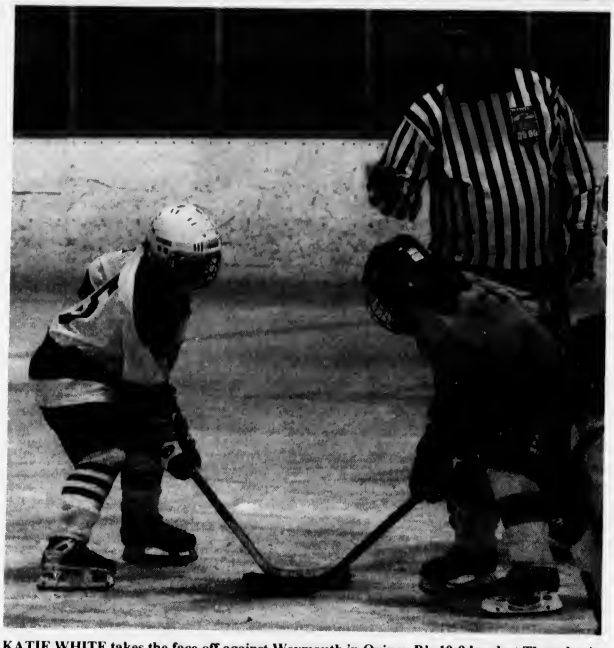
STEERING IN THE WRONG DIRECTION



If you notice that your vehicle is not going precisely where you are steering it and your tires are wearing prematurely, it may be that your tie rods are in need of replacement. On vehicles with conventional suspensions and recirculating-ball steering gears, tie rods serve as connectors between the center link and the steering knuckle. On vehicles equipped with MacPherson struts and rack-and-pinion steering gears, tie rods link the end of the rack to the steering knuckle. Either way, tie rods play a critical role in a vehicle's ability to steer. Thus, they are among the first components that an auto technician will check when a vehicle wanders on the road. In any case, tie rods should be checked annually.

At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we know that maintaining a safe control over your automobile is important for you and those around you on the road. Your car's steering needs to be properly working. The expert mechanics, located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, can handle all maintenance and repairs for your steering and suspension systems. If you feel your steering is sluggish, or your car's alignment is off, call 781-843-1550 today! Open: Mon-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm.

HINT: In the event that tie rods need to be replaced, the repair should also include a wheel alignment.

No. 5 Seeded Raiders Host Framingham

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy High School boys' basketball team earned the No. 5 seed in the Division 1 South Sectional tournament when pairings were announced last Friday.

Co-champions of the Atlantic Coast League North Division, the Red Raiders (17-5 overall) opened Tuesday night against No. 12 seed Framingham (11-9) in the first round at home, where they posted a perfect 11-0 record this season.

If they won, they would advance to the quarterfinals Friday night at 7 against the winner of the No. 4 New Bedford-No. 13 Attleboro game.

North Quincy entered the tournament on fire, having won 10 straight games, which included the championship in the Vin Moscardelli Tournament and a double-overtime thriller against Quincy for a share of the league title.

"We're healthy now and I'd describe us as hungry, too," said head coach Jim Rendle before the beginning of the tournament. "We knew we had potential. I'm thrilled that we're playing this well at this time of the year. We have to sustain it.

"We're a dangerous team. We have a lot of experience with the seniors and the underclassmen have played a lot. We go 10 deep and even more. We're happy the way we're finishing. We weren't completely thrilled early on. We played a tough schedule so we can understand what we have to do to be able to compete at this time of year."

In the Vin Moscardelli Tournament, held at North Quincy, the Red Raiders knocked off Malden, 53-48, last Monday and coasted to a 67-41 victory over Milton the following night for the title.

In the championship, the Red Raiders surged to a 12-1 lead to begin the game and held a commanding 37-12 advantage at halftime.

Senior forward Kevin Donovan scored a game-high 21 points and pulled down seven rebounds on his way to collecting tournament MVP honors.

Senior point guard Kyle Costa, who made the all-tournament team, tallied 18 points, nine assists and five steals.

"We held them to 12 points in the first half," Rendle said. "Defensively, we dominated them. We didn't let them do anything they wanted to do. They have two good players in the post and they couldn't get the ball in there. We smothered their guards so well."

Against Malden, North Quincy built a 36-16 lead at the break before its opponent slowly chipped away in the second half.

Senior forward John Murray dominated both offensively and defensively with 17 points, five assists, eight rebounds and six blocks.

Senior guard Imad Elkatrib added 14 points, five rebounds and four steals, while Donovan totaled six points, eight rebounds, four assists and four steals.

No. 3 Seeded Presidents Face Bishop Feehan

The Quincy High School boys' basketball team drew the No. 3 seed in the Division 2 South Sectional tournament when pairings were announced last Friday.

Atlantic Coast League North Division co-champions, the Presidents (17-3 overall) faced No. 14 seed Bishop Feehan (11-9) Wednesday (7 p.m.) in the first round at home, where they were undefeated this season with an 11-0 mark.

If they won, they would advance to the quarterfinals Friday at 7 p.m. against the winner of the No. 6 Falmouth-No. 11 Silver Lake game.

Quincy stepped into the tournament coming off a spirited 65-55 victory over Malden last Tuesday in the consolation game of the Vin Moscardelli Tournament held at North Quincy High School.

The Presidents avoided a three-game losing skid with the win, as they lost consecutive games for the first time in two seasons under head coach Bob Fisher.

They suffered a 67-59, double-overtime heartbreaker to North Quincy and followed with a dismal 68-44 setback to Milton in the first round of the Vin Moscardelli Tournament.

"It was a great win heading into the tournament season," Fisher said before the tourney got underway. "They played with a sense of passion and energy and they feel good about themselves now."

In the Malden game, Quincy's struggles continued in the first half as it found itself trailing, 37-21. But it rediscovered its defensive magic that had been missing for a game and a half to stage the comeback.

In the second half, senior forward Lovell Johnson drained 19 of his game-high 27 points and freshman point guard Doug Scott added 13 of his 17 points.

"It was a very emotional, very passionate comeback by our kids," Fisher said. "It was the best comeback I've been involved with here, not that we needed too many comebacks. It speaks volumes about the makeup of the kids.

"After the Milton game and the first half, I was wondering what happened to our game. We certainly found it in the locker room at halftime. Our defensive intensity came back."

Against Milton, Johnson led the team with 14 points but there were no positives to be taken from the game, the 24-point loss the worst suffered by Quincy in the Fisher era.

"It was ugly," Fisher said. "The less said about it, the better. It wasn't us. We certainly laid an egg that night. We were in a little bit of a fog from the North Quincy game. It took us a little longer than expected to recover. Going back to the same gym three days later, I think that really played a lot with our psyche."

Donation Requests: Illegal? Ethical?

By LT. DAN MINTON
Quincy Police Crime Prevention Officer

Last week, I received a telephone call from a citizen concerned about a woman standing in front of Wal-Mart requesting donations.

LT. DAN MINTON

The caller said that it was for the D.A.R.E. program, but was unsure if the person was legitimate. The caller said that she received literature about the nationwide program and then gave her credit card information for a $25 donation.

When the caller arrived home, she began to question whether she had been scammed. Officer Monteith responded to Wal-Mart and learned that the woman was working for a telemarketing company north of Boston. I called the company and learned that D.A.R.E. had authorized them to solicit on their behalf. I also learned that the telemarketing company received 80 percent of the donations.

Is this illegal? No. Is it ethical? That is your decision.

Officer John Grazioso, one of the Quincy Police Department's D.A.R.E. Officers, said that the best way to make a donation is to send the check directly to the department of your choice. One hundred percent of the donation goes to the services for the children in the program.

Another way would be to send a check directly to D.A.R.E., at the national level, removing the middle man. However, the monies would not be designated for the local youth.

This recommendation is not solely for D.A.R.E., it can apply to many national agencies.

What happened to the woman who gave her donation? She decided to contact her credit card company and cancel the transaction.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The touch in a handshake can mean "Hello," "Good-bye", "Congratulations", "Sympathy" and a lot of other things. Because man has a soul, his touch differs from the pawing touch of an animal. Man combines the touch of the physical with the spiritual. The loving touch of a mother's hand can ease the pain of a child's bruise. A slap can inflict pain physically and spiritually.

There are contrasts in both the physical and spiritual touch. Some are pleasant. Some are painful. In a spiritual sense, everybody touches the lives of others everyday by what we say . . . what we do. . . how we act. The touch on others can be good or bad. It can bring a touch of happiness or unhappiness. It can bring a touch of moderation and mercy; a touch of harshness or hatred. All of us touch someone with nearly everything we say or do everyday.

And, incidentally, we sometimes wonder how – or if – the weekly thoughts you read here, reach out to "Touch you" as we hope they do? . . .

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Whatever decisions you're faced with this week, rely on your strong Aries instincts, and base them on your honest feelings, not necessarily on what others might expect you to do.

TAURUS (April 30 to May 20) Your sensitive Taurean spirit is pained by what you feel is an unwarranted attack by a miffed colleague. But your sensible self should see it as proof that you must be doing something right.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) More fine-tuning might be in order before you can be absolutely certain that you're on the right track. Someone close to you might offer to help. The weekend favors family get-togethers.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The week continues to be a balancing act 'twixt dreaming and doing. But by week's end, you should have a much better idea of what you actually plan to do and how you plan to do it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Changing your plans can be risky, but it can also be a necessary move. Recheck your facts before you act. Tense encounters should ease by midweek, and all should be well by the weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might still be trying to adjust to recent changes. But things should improve considerably as you get to see some positive results. An uneasy personal matter calls for more patience.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Congratulations. Your good intentions are finally recognized, and long-overdue appreciation should follow. Keep working toward improvements wherever you think they're necessary.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 2) Try to look at your options without prejudging any of them. Learn the facts, and then make your assessments. Spend the weekend enjoying films, plays and musical events.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Someone might want to take advantage of the Sagittarian's sense of fair play. But before you ride off to right what you've been told is a wrong, be sure of your facts.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You might be surprised to learn that not everyone agrees with your ideas. But this can prove to be a good thing. Go over them and see where improvements can be made.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) After taking advice on a number of matters in recent months, expect to be called on to return the gesture. And, by the way, you might be surprised at who makes the request.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Reassure everyone concerned that a change of mind isn't necessarily a change of heart. You might still want to pursue a specific goal, but feel a need to change the way you'll get there.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are able to make room in your heart for others, and that makes you a very special person in their lives.

Same-Sex Marriage Banner In Limbo

in independence? It can only cause trouble.' John Quincy Adams could have said the same thing about slavery. No one wanted him to defend the Africans (on the Amistead).

"There is a time to stand up for justice and the time is now. It is important that people of faith make a stand."

The Historical District Commission was careful to note the distinction between the physical presence of the banner and the message it contained. City Solicitor Monica Conyngham was on hand to watch over First Amendment rights.

Only one person, Michael Jovanovich, spoke out about the content of the banner and his participation was cut short.

Commissioner Maralin Manning said she thought the Zoning Board of Appeals should decide whether the banner was "possible" before the Commission decided whether it was "applicable."

"How can you say it's appropriate when it hasn't been deemed valid?" she asked. "The Zoning Board shouldn't have any preconceived thoughts when they make their decision."

The church asked for a 90-day certificate to display the banner but the Commission reduced the time to 30 days non-renewable and then voted it down, 3-2, with Koch, Manning and Rose McCarthy against it.

Bennett said the church "considered the banner making a religious use of the building and therefore not applicable by the Historic District Commission" but that too was denied.

Michelle Frost, a member of the congregation, stressed that members were aware of the importance of the church building as a historical piece and "we truly understand our role in protecting this."

She suggested that the Commission weigh the requested 30 days against the "decades of stewardship of this building."

"It's not the first sign we've had," said Pat Bennett, another church member. "There were some very garish ones, let me tell you."

The last was a sign promoting the church's 350th anniversary in 1989.

Commissioner Anthony Ricci urged the Rev, Bennett to "consider our comments of a more appropriate placement" of the banner before he goes before the Zoning Board for a variance.

As a historic Quincy landmark, United First Parish Church has a loose affiliation with the Adams National Historical Park but not enough to give the National Park Service a say in what happens at the church.

"We may co-sponsor some events with them but we get no funding," said Bennett. "They once did a historic structural report assessing the architectural history of the building. But there is no formal relationship with the Park Service."

An act of Congress in 1980, he said, authorized the Park Service to accept the church building as part of the Adams National Historical Park in the unlikelihood the congregation ever decided to turn it over to them.

Presidents John and John Quincy Adams, neither of whom are known to have ever commented on same-sex marriage, were members of First Parish Church and are buried with their wives in the church crypt.

"This historic church," said the annual meeting of 2004, "the congregation of John Adams, author of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, has a tradition of concern for individual rights and protection of the minority, extending from the early days of the Commonwealth through John Adams to the present day.

"Thus, while we cannot know Adams' opinion on the present matters, we are moved from that tradition to speak publicly on present efforts to amend the Constitution of the Commonwealth.

"The resolution reflects the historical commitment of the congregation of John Adams to the right of conscience and the use of the democratic process, individual rights, the protection of the minority, and 'the inherent worth and dignity of all human beings.'"

Down To Three Options

Final Site For QHS Seen Soon

By TOM HENSHAW

The often frustrating, seven-year struggle to get a new Quincy High School off the ground, said Mayor William Phelan, "is in its last stages."

And then he leaned over and knocked on the wooden lectern.

The state, which will reimburse the city for most of the cost, gave its permission Monday to move the building's footprint away from the original site on Faxon Field near Southern Artery.

Now it is up to the school committee, which has acquired three new members since last fall's election, to vote on a site, which has suddenly been expanded to three options.

The school committee could take such a vote as soon as its meeting next week.

"This breaks the log jam," Phelan told a news conference Tuesday. "We got a clear direction on what is allowable within the site. Now we know the options.

"It is most important to get the plan funded. Yesterday for the first time they told us, 'Yes, you can build here.' That was great news."

Cost estimates for the new school have now reached upwards of $100 million. The state will pay $72 million of it through the School Building Authority, which has been trying to hold costs down.

The three options include

Referred To Finance Committee

Phelan Reintroduces Stabilization Fund Plan

Mayor William Phelan reintroduced his Neighborhood Stabilization Fund plan to the City Council Monday night.

The program would potentially allow a grant of up to $500 to Quincy residents who are 62 years of age or older and have lived in their property for 20 years or more.

The plan was referred Monday to the Council's Finance Committee headed by Councillor John Keenan.

"This initiative would recognize the people that helped build our city and make it great," Phelan said. "Our goal is to get people to reinvest in our neighborhoods and this program would provide a valuable help for our seniors."

Phelan has proposed this Home Rule Petition to the City Council twice in the past two years. If approved, it would require approval by the full state Legislature.

"I am hopeful that there would be some recognition that the tax policies at the federal and state levels have benefited younger people that are still working and have not had a positive impact on retirees and seniors," Phelan said.

"The corresponding reduction in federal and state aid has shifted the burden onto the property tax, which is a regressive tax that has disproportionately affected seniors more than the rest of the population. This measure would attempt to adjust that balance and allow our seniors to stay in our neighborhoods and reinvest in the homes that they have lived in for decades."

The fund, if approved by the City Council and state Legislature, would then be subject to appropriation from the mayor with approval by the City Council.

The program as proposed by Phelan would be administered by the city's Department of Elder Services with assistance from the Assessors' Office and Information Technology Department.

"I urge the City Council and our state delegation to join me in support of this effort," Phelan said. "The seniors that helped make our city great should not be forced out of the homes and neighborhoods they love. Rising health care costs and prescription drugs costs, increased home heating costs, escalating water bills and unbalanced federal and state tax policies have shifted an unfair burden on our parents' and grandparents' generations. This measure can help these folks out tremendously."

Public Meeting Tonight On Preservation Act

The first in a series of public meetings to study the impact of the Community Preservation Act will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the Ward 4 Neighborhood Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

The meetings are sponsored by a special committee of the City Council, chaired by Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis and including Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Councillor-at-Large Joseph Finn.

If adopted by the city, the Community Preservation Act would permit Quincy to add a surcharge to its property tax bills in order to acquire open space and historic landmarks

At Krueger's:

For Each Gallon · A Penny For Schools, Needy

When Lee and Maura Krueger took over the Exxon station at 665 Quincy Shore Drive last November they had a pretty good idea what it was like to struggle.

They had already put eight kids through school systems that were barely holding their own for lack of funding.

The idea came to Maura first: Let's take a percentage of the profits and give it to the schools that need it the most and, while we're at it, the food pantries and homeless shelters, too.

The Kruegers decided to give one cent for every gallon of gasoline they sold over a two week period to a school or a non-profit organization in Quincy.

First recipients during the holiday season were Father Bill's Place, the homeless shelter, and the Quincy Crisis Center, which maintains a food pantry. Each got $250.

Craig's Cafe Changing Hands, But Not Name

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A popular Quincy Center cafe is changing hands but not the name.

Craig's Cafe, 1354 Hancock St. has been sold to Medhat Agaibi. The License Board granted a common victualer license at Tuesday's meeting.

When asked if he was going to change the name of the restaurant he replied, "When I met Craig, he was such a nice person, I decided not to change the name."

When the site was first opened more than 20 years ago, it was called Handshakes. One of the owners Tim Cahill is now State Treasurer.

Chairman Joseph Shea said, "We love Craig he is a household word here at city hall."

Craig Bilowz began his career with Newcomb's Restaurant and has owned the cafe for the past nine years.

When asked what his plans for the future are he said he was "going to take a bit of a break.." He said he really does love the business, but said I'm 48 years old now and it is really a "young man's job."

Bilowz said he would remain at the cafe for about a month.

Agaibi told the board that he plans to be open seven days a week rather than the five that Craig's has been open,.

Heath Commissioner Drew Scheele. who commended Craig's for doing such a "good job" told Agaibi that to make sure he keeps a "close eye" on the dumpster because of the increase in hours of operation.

Gutro Will Attend National Cities League Conference In Washington

City Council President Doug Gutro will be attending the 2006 annual Congressional City Conference in Washington, D.C. from March 13-15.

"Organizations like the National League of Cities, U.S. Conference of Mayors and the Massachusetts Municipal Association serve as tremendous resources to communities like Quincy," Gutro said. "These sessions and seminars provide an extraordinary opportunity to meet with national experts or other city leaders and learn first hand about federal initiatives and programs that may benefit our city."

Gutro also expects to be part of the Massachusetts Municipal Association's delegation participating in a session with Sen. John Kerry relative to Community Development Block Grant Funding. Gutro will also visit Congressman William Delahunt's office Wednesday, March 15, which is City Lobby Day on Capitol Hill.

In addition, Gutro plans to visit the International Downtown Association to gain a better understanding of that organization's role and resources that may help Quincy's downtown revitalization efforts.

Gutro said that in 2006, according to the National League of Cities, Congress and the President will focus on a range of issues that matter to America's cities and towns, including:

Telecommunications reform, emergency preparedness and response, federal tax reform, funding for affordable housing, allocating limited discretionary federal funds, rebuilding the intergovernmental partnership.

City and town leaders need to be well informed and well positioned to ensure the best outcomes for their communities on critical issues, Gutro said. The National League of Cities provides the resources, the connections and the collective power to help city leaders have an impact on Capitol Hill.

City Council Honors WJDA For Long Service

By MIKAELA SLANEY

City Councillors paid tribute to the staff of radio station WJDA with citations, Monday night.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin presented citations to:

Jay Asher, owner of WJDA; Joe Catalano, and Mike Logan.

Coughlin credited Asher, for committing to his father's vision, without which "we would have never known this treasure."

Coughlin named Catalano, "the voice of WJDA," and described Logan as, "the man you turn to for all the news you need to know."

"WJDA truly defined how we know and view the city," Council President Douglas Gutro, Ward 5.

WJDA, 1300 On Your Dial, and its sister station WESX in Salem, were sold February to Principle Broadcasting Network for $4.5 million. The deal is expected to be closed this spring.

Under new ownership, with approval by the Federal Communications Commission, WJDA studios are expected to be consolidated and moved, possibly to Chelsea. Otto Miller, president of Principle Broadcasting, has indicated that the new format will not include local news, events or programming.

Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly introduced a resolve inviting Ed Perry, owner of WATD radio station in Marshfield, to the March 20 council meeting to discuss covering Quincy events and news. Perry has accepted.

Coughlin displayed a 1947 Philco vacuum tube radio that his parents owned.

"In a small kitchen of a young couple, my parents, who had recently bought their first home on Ditmar St., on this very radio, and on radios like it in kitchens across the city, on Sept. 13, WJDA came alive," said Coughlin.

The radio station is still set to WJDA, all these years later, and the radio itself is still functional, he said.

In its earliest years, "WJDA immediately made a name for itself," he said. "It was live and it was local and it was devoted to covering Quincy. The owner was Jim Asher, and he loved radio."

The station flourished under his direction, but with his father's passing in 1973, Jay Asher stepped in to lead the station, Coughlin said,

"For nearly 60 years WJDA has been inextricably woven into the fabric of our city," said Coughlin

"Radio was a personal medium, keeping the community informed and entertained. When there was a crisis, you would turn your radio on, and the voice you heard was reassuring. You couldn't imagine a day without listening- you might miss something important.

"And maybe that is why many of us will miss WJDA, we knew we could depend on it. We knew it would be there."

"The Sunrise Edition, The First Cup of Coffee on Breakfast With WJDA, The Party Line, The Unforgettable Favorites, will be heard no more, but the spirit of it, the fame of it, and for all that it meant to so many, the essence of WJDA will remain with us forever," he said.

"It has really been a great experience to do what you love as a profession, and this evening to receive this commendation, to be recognized, that really makes it all worth while," said Catalano.

"Some of us will still be around in the city in different forms," said Asher.

"WJDA was the voice of our community. This is a sad day," said Gutro.

Previous WJDA employees noted for their service were: Ken Coleman, Don Kent, Herb Fontaine, Roy Lind and Win Bettinson.

The purchase of WJDA included the FCC license, which is up for renewal in April. It specifies the station frequency, amount of power used, and the signal coverage area.

RADIO STATION WJDA, which has been sold and will be leaving the city, was honored by the City Council Monday night for its 59 years of community service. City Receives Grant For Recycling Bins

The city has received a Municipal Waste Reduction Grant from the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) which will help the city purchase 500 new curbside recycling bins and 40 new home composting bins.

The grant is valued at $1,509.

"We are committed to improving our recycling totals in Quincy," said Mayor William Phelan. "Our blue bin program has saved thousands of tons of recyclables from being placed in landfills. Not only is this practice environmentally sound, but it saves the city considerable money in our trash collection costs."

According to DEP Assistant Commissioner James Colman, the Massachusetts DEP has awarded more than $42 million since 1990 in recycling equipment, educational materials and technical assistance to municipalities throughout the Commonwealth.

Quincy residents who have lost their blue recycling bin can call the DPW at 617-376-1953 to order a new one. Supplies are limited.

"I strongly encourage Quincy residents to take the time and identify the recyclable materials that you have in your house," Phelan said. "My family and I spend a little time each week separating out the recyclable materials. It saves the city money and is good for the future of our planet."

Connie's And Joe's 'Wedding'

Connie Smith and Joe Rogers got married the other day.

Well, not really.

But it was quite a blast. All in fun.

It actually was a mock wedding at Fenno House Assisted Living in Wollaston for the entertainment of residents who filled most of the roles.

And, entertaining it was.

Members of the wedding party set the mood for the fun, making a grand entrance to the Common Room to that 1920's classic "Making Whoopee."

They were Ilda Stevens, ring bearer; John Coughlan, best man; and Joan McAloon, matron of honor accompanying the bridegroom.

Before the bride arrived, Winnie Sullivan and Amanda Annis, activity director, portraying jilted brides, got into an "argument" as to who was the more worthy bride with "Dueling Banjos" playing in the background.

Then came the bride, escorted by Christopher Fontaine, of the Fenno House staff, not to the strains of "Here Comes The Bride" but to "Stand By Your Man."

And, Rev. Adolph Wismar, pastor of Wollaston Lutheran Church and Fenno House CEO, in the spirit of the occasion, took it from there.

REV. ADOLPH WISMAR performs the "wedding" ceremony.

He began with:

"Dearly Bewildered:

"We are gathered here today to witness the union of this man and this woman in phoney baloney."

And he kept things rolling and the laughs coming as he continued:

"Marriage is like a violin. As soon as the music is over, you still have the strings. Usually someone is playing a song in the wrong key.

"The woman must stay home and cook, clean, have children and keep away all irritating in-laws. I can see in this case the children will be plentiful. Let's hope that they look like Connie.

"The husband's job is, after a day's work, to come home and be fed a hot meal — let's hope Connie doesn't burn it. And allow his wife to keep the children away when he is watching television.

"His is perhaps the more difficult of these two roles but with this comes responsibility. He must realize that early in the marriage, getting the last word in will be a difficult feat.

"Therefore, he must know the only last words that are permitted to him are 'Yes, dear!'

"A good marriage should be based on love and commitment. That being said, this commitment includes the right to commit your spouse when you are being driven crazy.

"The love end of a marriage is perhaps the most important. This includes things that one may not like to do but now has no choice about.

"Men must love to hear about what 'the girls are doing.' He must be an expert on in-style fashions and hair-dos. If he is not, he should be ready and willing to lend an eager ear when his spouse is ready to discuss such subjects.

"Joe, you should be ready to learn the difference between silk and satin. You will learn to enjoy cutting your face on a razor which your wife has just dulled shaving her legs.

"A good husband must love finding stockings hanging from the shower and enjoy all the drips and drabs of cold cream and make-up that get on his towel. Not to forget the long hairs in his comb. Most importantly, if she asks you, "Does this make me look fat?', a smart husband's immediate answer should be 'No!!!'

"The wife must abide by similar rules. She must love all sports, know what beer to buy and while doing this, her hair and make-up should be in perfect place.

"She should know when football season is and when the World Series is being played. During these times the potato chips and peanuts must be plentiful as if this is something she loves to do.

"When these sports are not in season, a good wife hands the remote control to her husband and is pleased to watch any movie or show of his choosing.

"A good wife will never throw out her husband's favorite tee-shirt despite the fact that it is filled with holes, and encourages participation in weekly poker games.

"Now we will join this man and woman in holy-moly.

"Who gives this woman to be married to this man? (John says he does.)

"In acknowledgment of the elasticity, we will now exchange the wedding bands.

(Ilda passes the "wedding bands" to Joe and Connie which are two small elastics for their ring fingers — symbolizing the elasticity of marriage.)

"Do you, Joseph Rogers, not take this woman for your unlawfully wedded wife? Do you agree to support her financially and allow her to go shopping whenever she wants? Do you promise not to run around on her? And do you promise to agree with her at all times and at all costs? If you do, please say I do. (Joe does.)

"Do you, Connie Smith, agree to cook, clean, respect, adore, admire, respect and love Joe Rogers? Do you agree to worship the ground he walks on? If you do, please say I do. (Connie does.)

"By the power vested in me and in the presence of this congregation, in accordance with all the laws of phoney baloney, I now pronounce this man and woman, unofficially man and wife.

"Joe, you may kiss your bride." (Joe does.)

The wedding party and guests then proceeded to the dining room for the reception to Gene Autry singing "Back In The Saddle Again."

Connie made a beautiful bride and Joe, a handsome bridegroom. No one mentioned ages.

But Amanda Annis, who orchestrated the event, probably put it best: "They're like a couple of recycled teenagers."

WILDLIFE CONTINUES TO find Quincy attractive. Seems to be more and more coyotes seen around town.

FOLEY

And, the other day, Arthur Foley, administrative aide to former Mayor Frank McCauley and now a real estate broker, spotted a red tail hawk in a yard on Presidents Lane. The hawk, who was interested in a squirrel, "was as big as a small turkey," Foley says.

THIS IS a 1920's trade card used by the Merrymount Company, the real estate developers of the 200 plus acre Mount Wollaston Farm that was the estate of John Quincy Adams II and his wife, Fanny Crowinshield. He was the son of Ambassador Charles Francis Adams and the grandson of President John Quincy Adams for whom he was named. Abigail Adams had inherited this land from her uncle, Norton Quincy, in 1800, and it was passed down to her heirs. J.Q. Adams II built his sprawling home here in 1872. After he died the developers bought the land from hi heirs just as World War I began. They started building houses in the spring of 1920 offering the first 25 at $5,500 to $6,000 each. Houses and lots sold fast. They tore down the Adams' house in 1925. Today there are hundreds of nice houses in this very desirable section of Quincy. Pilgrim Boulevard, mentioned on the card, was the section of Quincy Shore Drive between Black's Creek and Sea Street connecting the boulevard through the edge of Broad Meadows to Field Street continuing south on the path of today's Southern Artery. The bridge was too expensive and was never built. The house shown here was built in 1920 at the corner of Quincy Shore Drive and Samoset Avenue. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Supports Same-Sex Marriage Banner At First Parish Church

I support the United First Parish Church's plans to display a gay marriage banner. Although controversial to who knows how many, it's a courageous act. If the church has such strong convictions and commitment, the commission(s) and zone board(s) should allow the display.

Living in San Francisco for eight years, and having had gay friends, I can tell you first hand that gay people are really no different from other populations. They have and want what many others want . . . living peaceful, prosperous, wonderful lives, including marriage.

Opposes Size And Message On Banner

I was amazed the Church of Presidents seeking permission from the City of Quincy to hang a huge pro-gay marriage banner on the church building in apparent anticipation of a heated ballot campaign heading toward the 2008 ballot statewide. I am opposed to both the size of the banner as well as its message.

The church building itself is owned by the congregation but it is also a part of the Adams National Historic Park in Quincy. As such, shouldn't the City Council and Zoning Board be talking with the National Parks Department before even considering any proposal from the church congregation?

As part of the national historic park, doesn't this historic site belong to all, even those opposed to the banner? Would such a banner proposed by the Rev. Sheldon Bennett and his congregation be appropriate for, say, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Josiah Quincy's mansion and the Adams Mansion itself? If you hang a banner to fight a 21st century political battle, does this mean banners can now go up at the Old North Church or the Old South Meetinghouse in Boston?

I am naturally inclined to support a gay marriage ban but that is not the issue. I am also willing to listen to arguments from both sides before casting my vote. Personally, I think a super-sized banner will be counterproductive to opponents of the ban. This in-your-face strategy can have the opposite effect on potential voters.

The prevailing religious thought of John Adams' day even as a very liberal Congregationalist would have been to oppose marriage as anything other than the union of one man and one woman. Adams never took a stand on the issue because it wasn't an issue for public discourse.

I think the idea of hanging a banner taking sides in a present-day ballot question should be put on hold until the City of Quincy speaks to the National Park Service. It really isn't the size of the banner, it is about content. Mixing religion and politics is never a good idea. Look at what is happening worldwide when the two get mushed together.

Interestingly, the United First Church itself started off in 1636 as a Puritan Church. Obviously, Puritanism is still very much alive in Quincy Square. Puritans thought it was their way or a trip to hell. I think it's time to give the banner a hasty good-bye.

The Rev. Bennett and his congregation can put out fliers and they can purchase advertisements in media outlets but I'm not sure they can remain a part of the Adams National Historic Park and play politics too.

Equal Pay For Women Teachers

This Week
58 Years Ago

Women teachers in the Quincy public schools began receiving pay equal to that of men teachers.

The School Committee placed in effect the salary change approved by voters in a referendum on the 1947 election ballot.

It was estimated the change would cost $87,000 a year.

CITY, SHIPYARD REACH AGREEMENT

Moments before the case was to be heard by the State Appellate Tax Board, the City of Quincy and the Bethlehem Steel Co. reached a settlement that reduced the assessment on the Fore River shipyard by more than $2 million.

Bethlehem had sought an abatement of $5 million from the assessed valuation of $9.8 million for each of the years 1946 and 1947, a move which, if successful, would have cost the city $3 million in tax revenue for the two years.

Instead, the company won an abatement to $8.6 million for 1946 and $8.5 million for 1947 and the city agreed that the assessment for 1948 and 1949 would be set at $7.6 million. The settlement cost Quincy $66,300 in tax revenue.

BUDGET TRIMMED

The City Council's Finance Committee chopped $40,460 more from Mayor Charles A. Ross' 1948 budget, bringing it down to $7,601,524, up nearly $700,000 over the previous year.

Included in the latest cuts were $15,000 for improvements at City Hospital and $1,800 for the police new equipment account.

NEW SHOW AT CAPITOL

"The Voice of the Turtle," starring Ronald Reagan, Eleanor Parker, Eve Arden and Wayne Morris, and described as "the hit with 1,000 kisses — and a laugh for everyone," opened at the Capitol Theater.

NEW CONTRACT FOR YARD

The Fore River shipyard landed a $1.5 million contract for conversion of the SS Panama from wartime to peacetime purposes, the third such job for the Panama Line after SS Ancon and SS Cristobal.

Esther Sanger Center 'Celebration Of Compassion'

Quincy Crisis Center, Mary-Martha Center Honor Volunteers

The Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion recently held its "Celebration of Compassion" awards dinner at the Mann Student Center on the campus of Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy.

The yearly event is a special time in which the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion expresses a sincere "thank you" to the volunteers who throughout the year support its two programs: the Quincy Crisis Center and the Mary-Martha Learning Center. The night honors those who donated their time, energy, finances, etc., to help the agency as it reaches out to those in need in the Quincy and South Shore area.

Almost 25 years ago, Esther R. Sanger founded the Quincy Crisis Center in response to seeing many who were in need in Quincy and the South Shore. Today, it continues those same programs: a weekday feeding program held at United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents), a crisis hotline, and the Food for Families "food pantry on wheels."

The Mary-Martha Learning Center, established in 1986 and located in Hingham, is a shelter and educational center for women with young children.

Honored for 2005 by the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion were:

• Denise, Alison and Jenna Woods, all of Quincy, who received the Quincy Crisis Center Volunteers of the Year Award.

• Don Owens of Weymouth - Faith Covenant Meal Volunteer of the Year Award.

• South Shore Women's Prayer Group - Mary-Martha Learning Center Volunteers of the Year Award.

• Union Congregational Church of Quincy - Servant Church of the Year Award.

• Hingham Congregational Church in Hingham - Servant Church of the Year Award.

• Community Chiropractic of Quincy - Leadership in Business Award.

The award winners embody the Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion's mission of "advancing a culture of compassion." They were honored for all the hard work and support which they give in helping others.

The Sanger Center also thanked photographer Bonnie Ashworth of Quincy for taking photos at the awards ceremony.

Angelito Santos Honored By Council For 17-Year Service

By MIKAELA SLANEY

The city council recognized the 17 years of service in the Planning Department by Angelito Santos with a citation, Monday night.

Santos left his position as Principal Planner for the Department of Community Planning and Development, March 3.

Councillor Joseph Finn, who presented the citation, said Santos is "knowledgeable, diligent, and hard-working," and will be sorely missed by his many friends and coworkers.

"One of the things I've learned in the Planning's folly, is not to seek reward or credit for the good things you do," said Santos, "but I think my professor also said, in a low-voice, if they give you an award, take it.

"It feels strange that I am here not to speak about my programs, of affordable-housing prices, or proposed budgets, which is one thing that I do here, every year. It's also been hard for me to accept that I am not going to be able to do this down the road.

"The past few weeks, I think, have been a difficult period for me, I admit, one reason is that I have to move on to a different job with different people, different systems, different cultures. But the other bigger reason is I'm leaving the city of Quincy.

"I was lucky to have good staff," said Santos. "In this city, we're doing what needs to be done."

The Planning Department has been recognized on may occasions, Finn said, including "Best Practice of Housing and Urban Development," a title it received in the 1990s.

Santos is to begin a new position at Brandeis University.

Santos was joined by his wife, Esther A. Santos, and his son, Alioter Santos.

Quincy, Cambridge Colleges Sign Transfer Agreement

Quincy College has signed a transfer agreement which will allow Quincy College students who complete an Associate's degree to enroll in baccalaureate degree programs at Cambridge College.

The agreement was signed by Sue Harris, president of Quincy College and Mahesh Sharma, president of Cambridge College, in a recent ceremony at Quincy College.

Under the agreement, after completing the Cambridge College application process, Quincy College graduates will be able to transfer up to 90 credits from their Quincy College degree plus other general education requirements taken at Quincy College to baccalaureate degree programs at Cambridge College.

The baccalaureate completion program with this agent include Bachelor of Arts in Multidisciplinary Studies, Bachelor of Arts in Psychology, Bachelor of Science in Human Services and a Bachelor of Science in Management Studies.

President Harris said:

"This agreement provides for a seamless transfer process for our students. They are able to continue to pursue their educational goals at a four-year institution while using Quincy College facilities and coursework for as long as possible. Cambridge College is a perfect fit for us as our institutions share a very similar mission."

In addition to the baccalaureate degree programs, Quincy College will be exploring the possibility of establishing other undergraduate, graduate and certificate programs with Cambridge College.

"The mission of the two institutions is to provide higher educational opportunities, and the two administrations are interested in providing meaningful programs for our students. Therefore, I feel our affiliation with Quincy College is value-added for both the students and the two institutions," said President Sharma.

(1) the original site on Faxon Field at Southern Artery, (2) a site on the other side of Faxon Field from Southern Artery and (3) a site around the old school building.

Phelan acknowledged that "we can't move forward until we get a vote of the school committee. We have to know what the new committee has in mind."

He acknowledged that the seven member school committee, of which he is chairman by virtue of office, could vote for the Faxon Field option. He called it "a ludicrous place to put a school."

The mayor said he would like to see the Vocational Technical School building and the building housing the administration offices torn down and the new high school built around the old one.

He said the SBA gave Quincy officials a letter outlining "their view of the circumstances. They would not allow us to connect with the old building. They want a 60-foot separation."

Ayers Office Hours At Aging Office

For Each Gallon, A Penny For Schools, Needy

The Squantum School has received $246 and the Atlantic Middle School $225. The Parker, Beechwood Knoll and Point Webster Middle Schools and the GOALS program are next.

Maura Krueger, a former teacher in the Hingham schools, selects a new recipient every two weeks. There's no criteria, only the programs that need the most help are chosen.

In a day of wildly swinging gas prices at the pump, the station has been known to lose money on a bad day, says Krueger, but the penny-a-gallon donation goes on regardless.

The name of the school or non-profit receiving the current penny-a-gallon windfall is posted outside the station so customers can tell where they money is going.

The postings have not hurt business, Krueger says, whose station pumps somewhere between 1,200 and 1,900 gallons of gas a day.

"We've been through it all with eight kids in school and youth sports," says Krueger. "We know what it's like."

Ayers Commended For Stand Against LNG Plant In Harbor

Representative Bruce Ayers has been cited by MASSPIRG for his stand against a pending bill that would lead to a liquified natural gas (LNG) plant on Outer Brewster Island in Boston Harbor.

The legislation would enable the state to lease or transfer the island, which is public parkland, to an energy conglomerate that would build an LNG terminal to unload giant tankers.

The bill to approve the plan (House Bill 4500) is currently before the Joint Committee on Bonding, Capital Expenditures and State Assets and was the subject of a public hearing yesterday (Wednesday).

"Representative Ayers has stood up for the public, for our environment, and for a jewel in Massachusetts public parks by opposing House Bill 4500," said Jen Baker, MASSPIRG's environmental associate.

BRUCE AYERS

"After 20 years and $4.5 billion invested in the Boston Harbor cleanup, we cannot destroy what we've spent so long protecting an preserving.

"We appreciate the representative's courage and commitment to the environment and to the taxpayers of Massachusetts in opposing this measure."

Just 15 years ago, said Baker, Boston Harbor was determined to be one of the dirtiest harbors in the country, but "after tremendous effort by local, state and federal officials we've made great strides in cleaning it up."

Congress established the Boston Harbor Islands State Park and National Recreation Area in 1996 and, with cleaner waters, 304,000 visitors enjoyed the islands in 2005.

The LNG terminal, said MASSPIRG, would displace wildlife, disrupt ecosystems, industrialize the park and require a security zone restricting public access to the surrounding islands and waterways.

"We thank Representative Ayers for his leadership in preserving our public parks," said Baker.

Two-Day St. Patrick's Celebration At Cronin's

The two-day St. Patrick's Day celebration at Cronin's Publick House will feature Irish step dancing, an all-Irish dinner menu and an appearance by "one of the best firefighter-bagpipers in the world."

The festivities at the popular pub at 23 Des Moines Rd., Quincy Point, will begin after work on Thursday, March 16, with resident DJ Keith Noble of Squantum spinning Irish hits and Liz Jones performing on the bagpipes.

Bill "Willie" Coleman, son of the late Red Sox Hall of Fame Broadcaster Ken Coleman, will take over the DJ chores Friday, March 17, from 4 p.m. until closing time at 1 a.m., his first Quincy gig after many years in Boston's finest Irish bars.

Lt. Luke McFadden, former Pipe Major for the Boston Gaelic Fire Brigade, will make a rare Quincy appearance Friday at approximately 6 p.m. His visit was arranged by Quincy firefighters who called him "among the best firefighter-bagpipers in the world."

Irish step dancers will appear on both nights and a wide selection of Irish favorites will be available on the juke box prior to the start of scheduled entertainment.

On St. Patrick's Day, Cronin's will offer an Irish Only menu with the traditional Corned Beef and Cabbage Dinner, Irish Wild Turkey Dinner, Guinness Beef Stew and Mrs. Cronin's Irish Bread.

The pub will be open both days from 10 a.m. to 1 a.m. with food service starting at 11 a.m.

Bowling Party To Note Jewish Purim March 13

A Purim bowling party will be held Monday, March 13, in the Green Room of Boston Bowl, 820 Morrissey Blvd., beginning at 6 p.m. with the reading of the Megillah.

It will be followed by an Israeli-style Pita Falafel, music, Hamentashen and refreshments.

The cost is $10 for adults, $8 for children.

In the spirit of Purim, those who attend are urged to come in costume and take part in the contest in which judges will award prizes for the most innovative or funny costumes.

Purim celebrates the salvation of the Jewish people in the year 3405 (356 BCE) from the Persian ruler Haman's plot "to destroy, kill and annihilate all the Jews, young and old, infants and women, in a single day."

It is observed by public readings of the Megillah (the Scroll of Esther), sending food portions to friends, giving gifts of money to the poor and enjoying a festive meal with joyous drink.

For more information on Chabad's Purim fastivities or on the holiday of Purim itself, contact the Hingham Quincy Chabad at 617-850-5935 or log on to www.hqchabad.com.

Energy Policy Act Makes Provisions For Qualified Homeowners

Tax Credits Available For New Furnace Buyers

(NAPS) Not letting hot air get lost up the chimney has its rewards. Many homeowners who are replacing their furnaces are choosing high efficiency models to help combat rising heating costs. High-efficiency furnaces, however, can be more expensive in the short term than their standard-efficiency counterparts. To make the purchase of this and other high-efficiency appliances easier on the average household, Congress passed the Energy Policy Act of 2005, which provides tax credits for the purchase of high-efficiency furnaces.

The new Energy Policy Act (EPACT) makes provisions for tax credits for qualified homeowners who install furnaces between Jan. 1, 2006 and Dec. 31, 2007. If the furnace installed has an energy-efficiency rating of 95 percent AFUE (Annual Fuel Utilization Efficiency) or higher, the homeowner may qualify for a tax credit of $150. And if the furnace uses a high-efficiency variable-speed blower motor, the purchaser may be eligible for an additional $50 tax credit!

According to Jim Miller, product manager for Goodman furnaces, 95 percent AFUE furnaces save homeowners money in the long run, even without the tax credit. "Simply put, with a 95 percent AFUE furnace, for every dollar you spend on heating energy, 95 cents of that dollar is used to warm your home," explained Miller. "Many furnaces older than 15 years operate at efficiency of approximately 60 percent AFUE, meaning only 60 cents of the gas burned contributes to your home's heating." The remaining 40 cents is lost up the chimney- expensive and wasteful.

"Plus, 95 percent AFUE furnaces with a variable-speed blower are even more efficient," Miller added. "the variable-speed blowers we use in our Goodman GMV95 95 percent AFUE Variable-Speed Furnace typically require up to 75 percent less electricity than a standard motor. Because a furnace's blower also works with the home's cooling system to circulate air, consumers experience increases efficiency year-round."

Homeowners should work with a certified heating and air-conditioning contractor to choose the furnace that meets the needs of their home and should check with their tax professional regarding the requirements for the EPACT tax credits. Goodman is the second-largest unit manufacturer of residential heating and cooling equipment in the United States, and the first manufacturer to provide a complete line of 95 percent AFUE furnaces.

Credit Unions Help Make Homes More Affordable

(NU) For first-time buyers, of modest means, the goal of home ownership is more difficult to attain today. But a new initiative spearheaded by the nation's credit unions is helping more people qualify for home loans.

"Real estate prices are still high all over the country," said Daniel A. Mica, president and chief executive officer of the Credit Union National Association. "Mortgage rates are headed upward as well. The gap between the incomes of average families and the affordability of a first home is widening every day.

According to the National Association of Realtors, the median price of a single-family home was $215,900 at the end of October, up 14.7 percent from the previous year. in contrast, median household income was only $44,389, according to the U.S. Census Bureau's figures for yearend 2004.

In order to afford their first home, most low-to-medium-income level families need some extra help. The new initiative- called the Home Loan Payment Relief program, or HLPR- makes below-market-rate mortgage loans available to borrowers with household incomes at or below the median in their markets.

With a HLPR loan, for example, a person would need an income of only $32,000 a year rather than $40,000 to qualify for a $115,000 mortgage.

"Credit unions are voluntarily bearing the cost themselves of offering the loans below market as part of their mission to help people of modest means," Mica said.

Participating credit unions will offer a three-year adjustable rate mortgage at one percentage point below the national average to qualifying borrowers. After three years, the rate will adjust annually to market rates, with rate adjustments capped at one percent per year, and five percent over the life of the loan.

Nearly 100 credit unions, including some of the nation's largest, are participating in the program. The Credit Union National Association expects hundreds more to come on board, with total commitments reaching $10 billion over five years.

Credit unions will not increase fees, but rather be encouraged to seek reductions in closing costs. Down payments will be no more than three percent, and gifts or grants will be permitted.

For more information on the HLPR loan, visit www.cuna.org. To find out how you can join a credit union, call 800-358-5710.

Pilot Light Safety Valve Prevents Gas Leak

Q. I'm writing in regard to your article on household emergencies. I agree with everything you said, except for the last one on "should the pilot light go out." You said that if the pilot light went out that natural gas could leak into the home. I disagree. If the thermocouple is working properly, all gas should be stopped when the pilot-light flame no longer heats the thermocouple.

I also have a conservation tip: We are gone a lot (we have a weekend home) and while we are away I turn our water heater to the pilot-light position in order to save gas. One time we came home after being out of town for a week, and I forgot to turn the water heater back to the "On" position. I was able to take a shower without any problems; unfortunately, my wife was not! She always reminds me now. —Sam K., via e-mail

A. Thanks for the point about the thermocouple! You're right, if it is working properly then little or no gas should enter the home should a pilot light go out.

The thermocouple is a type of temperature sensor that generates a small electric charge while the pilot light is lit and keeps the pilot gas valve open. If the pilot goes out, the temperature drops, the thermocouple stops generating this charge and the gas valve closes.

A slight odor of gas may be detected when a pilot light goes out. Before relighting it, open a nearby window to safely vent this gas. To keep the thermocouple and the entire gas appliance operating safely and efficiently, have the appliance serviced regularly (once a year) and keep it as clean as possible.

Treasury, IRS Guidance For Homeowner Energy Credits

The Treasury Department and the IRS have issued guidance (Notice 2006-26) on the certification that homeowners may rely on when they claim credits for purchases that make their homes more efficient.

During 2006, individuals can make energy-conscious purchases that will provide tax benefits when filling out their tax returns next year. The credit will also be available for purchases in 2007. Manufacturers offering energy efficient items such as insulation or storm windows can assure their customers that their energy efficient items will qualify for the tax credit if certain energy efficient requirements are met.

A recent tax law change provides a tax credit to improve the energy efficiency of existing homes. The law provides a 10 percent credit for buying qualified energy efficiency improvements. To qualify, a component must meet or exceed the criteria established by the 2000 International Energy Conservation Code (including supplements) and must be installed in the taxpayer's main home in the United States.

The following items are eligible:

- Insulation systems that reduce heat loss/gain.
- Exterior windows (including skylights).
- Exterior doors.
- Metal roofs (meeting applicable Energy Star requirements).

In addition, the law provides a credit for costs relating to residential energy property expenses. To qualify as residential energy property, the property must meet certification requirements prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury and must be installed in the taxpayer's main home in the United States.

The following items are eligible:

- $50 for each advanced main air circulating fan.
- $150 for each qualified natural gas, propane, or oil furnace or hot water heater.
- $300 for each item of qualified energy efficient property.

The maximum credit for all taxable years is $500- no more than $200 of the credit can be attributable to expenses for windows.

Additionally, the new law makes a credit available to those who add qualified solar panels, solar water heating equipment, or fuel cell power plant to their homes in the United States. In general, a qualified fuel cell power plant converts a fuel into electricity using electrochemical means, has an electricity-only generation efficiency of more than 30 percent and generates at least 0.5 kilowatts of electricity. Taxpayers are allowed one credit equal to 30 percent of the qualified investment in a solar panel up to a maximum credit of $2,000, and another equivalent credit for investing in a solar water heating system. No part of either system can be used to heat a pool or hot tub.

Additionally, taxpayers are also allowed a 30 percent tax credit for the purchase of qualified fuel cell power plants. The credit may not exceed $500 for each .5 kilowatt of capacity.

These items must be placed in service after Dec. 31, and before Jan. 1, 2008.

A Job Well Done

By LT. DAN MINTON
Quincy Police Crime Prevention Officer

On Feb. 22, at approximately 2:47 p.m., Officer Brian Flaherty was dispatched to a car accident at the intersection of West Howard Street and Quincy Avenue.

LT. DAN MINTON

While en route to the call, the dispatcher stated there could be injuries and that one driver left the scene of the accident. Upon arrival, Officer Flaherty interviewed numerous witnesses and learned that a brown Dodge pickup truck struck four cars and then fled into Braintree.

The impact of the accident knocked off the front plate of the suspect's vehicle at the crime scene. Dispatch notified the Braintree and Weymouth police departments to be on the lookout for the suspect truck. The search for the truck focused in Weymouth, where the truck was registered.

Officer Flaherty learned from witnesses the suspect was on West Howard Street, traveling east, approaching Quincy Avenue. The suspect vehicle had a red light but the driver drove into the opposite lane and struck the left side of a vehicle ahead of him, stopped at the light.

The suspect vehicle then swung wildly into the intersection and as it turned right (southbound) the suspect vehicle struck two cars in the northbound lane of Quincy Avenue, then fled. One witness, who viewed the male driver, said he appeared to be laughing.

As evidence and statements were being collected, another witness to the accidents followed the suspect into Weymouth and called police on her cell phone. The witness, who never lost sight of the suspect, directed the Weymouth police directly to him.

Weymouth Officer William Cuff stopped the suspect vehicle at Front and Winter streets. Officer Cuff examined the inside of the truck and removed a Coors Light 12 pack containing eight empty cans, as well as a travel mug with an alcoholic beverage inside. When asked to return to the accident scene, the suspect voluntarily agreed and was transported by Officer Cuff.

Once at the scene, Officer Flaherty noted the suspect had glassy, bloodshot eyes, slurred speech, the odor of alcoholic beverage and he was unsteady on his feet. Due to the suspect's high level of intoxication, field sobriety tests were waived. The suspect was placed under arrest and given his Miranda Rights by Officer William Lanergan.

The suspect admitted he consumed "a few beers" and took "four Percocet." As part of the custodial search, Officer Flaherty discovered nine loose white circular pills with the inscription "512" inside the suspect's pack of cigarettes. He matched the pills with a drug identification manual as Percocet.

The suspect, a 50-year-old Weymouth resident, was charged with "Operating Under the Influence of Alcohol," "Operating Under the Influence of Drugs," "Operating to Endanger," "Possession of Class B Drugs," "Leaving the Scene of an Accident with Property Damage" and "Marked Lanes Violation."

Fortunately, no one was injured in the accident. Nice work to the witnesses and the Weymouth and Quincy police departments!

In the short-term, sleep deprivation can lead to memory loss, mental confusion, morning headaches, irritability, decreased ability to concentrate, and feelings of anxiety and depression.

If untreated, sleep disorders can cause long-term health effects including high blood pressure, heart failure, diabetes, stroke, weakened immune systems, and obesity.

Straightening Your Teeth May Be Good For Your Health

(NU) Straightening your teeth can work wonders on your smile, but did you also know it may help lower your risk of developing serious diseases?

"Crooked, crowded or unevenly spaced teeth are harder to keep clean and tend to harbor more food and bacteria," said Dr. Jacqueline Fulop-Goodling, an orthodontics specialist in New York. "This can lead to an increase in plaque and bacteria in the mouth which can cause decay and periodontal disease, a bacterial infection of the gums, bone and periodontal ligament that can enter the blood stream, travel to major organs and cause systemic complications."

According to the American Academy of Periodontology, gum disease may contribute to the development of heart disease; increase the risk of stroke, premature birth and low birth weight; and pose a serious threat to people whose health is already compromised due to diabetes, respiratory diseases or osteoporosis.

Properly aligned teeth can help keep plaque and tarter from building up. Plaque and tarter are known causes of gum disease. Straight teeth help gums "Fit" tighter around them and also make it easier to brush and floss, which leads to better gum health.

With today's advances in orthodontic technology, straightening crooked teeth is easier and less noticeable than ever before.

Invisalign, for instance, is a popular technique that straightens teeth using a series of custom-made, clear and removable aligners. Clinical studies show that gum health may improve using Invisalign over other forms of teeth-straightening techniques. Because there are no brackets or wires to worry about, patients can take out their "braces" after meals to brush and floss.

Additional health benefits of straightening teeth include improving chewing and speech and less stress on supporting bone and jaw joints.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

FLUORIDE FACTS

About two-thirds of the U.S. population gets fluoridated water in their homes. Some communities have naturally occurring fluoride in their water while others add it to the water supply. Derived from fluorine, the thirteenth most common element in the earth's crust, fluoride helps combat decay by strengthening tooth enamel. This enables the hard, shiny, protective outer coating of the tooth to better resist the acid formed by plaque. In addition, fluoride allows teeth that are damaged by acid to repair (or remineralize) themselves. That is not to say that fluoride can repair cavities from forming. Though fluoride benefits adults, it is particularly important for children's developing teeth.

Could you or your child benefit from fluoride supplements? We provide quality, comprehensive dental care for both children and adults, and we're always happy to discuss improving your smile, and thus, your total feeling of self-esteem. Please call us and find out if fluoride supplements could be part of your solution. We're located at 44 Greenleaf St., where we are dedicated to saving and restoring your teeth and helping you look your best. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Tooth decays occurs when bacteria found in plaque breaks down sugars in food. This process produces acids that dissolve teeth's hard enamel surface to create a cavity.

Quincy Faces Hopkinton In Semi-Finals

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School girls' basketball team has chartered into unprecedented waters during this state tournament season.

The 11th-seeded Presidents (15-8) have reached the semifinals of the Division 2 South Sectionals where they will square off against No. 2 Hopkinton today (Thursday) at 6 p.m. at Brockton High School.

In the other semifinal game, No. 1 Oliver Ames takes on No. 4 Walpole, the defending champions. The final will be held Saturday at UMass-Boston.

Quincy opened the tournament with a 54-39 first-round victory at No. 6 Holliston last Thursday — the first tournament win in 25 years — and a 54-45 quarter-final triumph over No. 3 Burke last Saturday at New Boston Pilot Middle School.

"The team hadn't made the tournament in 20 years until four years ago," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "We've kind of turned it around. It's our fourth straight year in the tournament. We lost in the first round the previous three years. This was a chance for us to take the next step.

"Senior co-captains Jessica Page and Ashlee Scott were here for the previous two first-round losses. They were itching to move beyond that. It's our first tournament win in 25 years. It's exciting to see the team getting better every year. The culture of winning is becoming stronger and stronger. Players like Scott and Page make that happen."

The Presidents will be heavy underdogs today against Hopkinton, which has posted a 21-1 record and is coming off an impressive win over a strong Bishop Feehan group.

"They're a tough team," Bretsch said. "They won the Tri Valley League this year. They're an outstanding defensive team. That's how they win. Their full-court press is very solid. They're smart and disciplined. You don't go the whole season losing one game without discipline.

"If we play well the kids have confidence they can win. If we execute and do the right things we can definitely win."

In the Burke game, Quincy stumbled in the early goings as it fell behind, 11-2, right out of the gate. It regrouped to take the lead at one point but headed into the locker room down, 29-24, at halftime.

"We came out and struggled a bit at the beginning of the game," Bretsch said. "Their press gave us some problems. But then we settled in."

The Presidents cranked up their defense to outscore Burke, 30-16, in the second half.

Pee Wee C's Win Yankee Crown

The Quincy Pee Wee C1 travel hockey team captured the championship of the Yankee Conference C Tournament in Hingham with a recent 6-1 victory over Weymouth.

A fine blend of explosive offense and stingy defense propelled Quincy to the title. It defeated Westwood, 10-3, Weymouth, 5-1, and Whitman-Hanson-Kingston, 13-0, to advance to the final game.

Forwards Kevin Garity, Myles Riddell, David O'Connell, Matt McGuire, Nick McGaughey, Sean Hannon, Mike D'Andrea, Vinnie Cameron and Jarred Shiels had an outstanding tourney.

Defensemen Bob Kozlowski, Dom Collarusso, Harry Maxfield, Paul Mulvey and John O'Callaghan provided the foundation on which the team built momentum.

Goalies Trevor McCarthy and Matt Glynn both came up with some stellar saves as they shared goaltending duties.

North Bounced By Fontbonne

Head coach Doug MacFarlane thought his North Quincy High School girls' basketball team would match up well with Fontbonne Academy last Wednesday in the first round of the Division 1 South Sectional tournament.

But the Ducks quickly dispelled any notion of a close game by shooting 50 percent in the first half, including eight 3-pointers, as they sailed to a 73-43 triumph at Curry College.

"I thought we would match up well, but I didn't account for that kind of shooting and they also rebounded well," MacFarlane said.

Overall, North Quincy put together a solid campaign, finishing with an 11-8 record (11-10 if you count the two losses to powerhouse Brockton), slightly better than MacFarlane's expectations.

"We made the tourney," MacFarlane said. "We had a great year. We were right where I thought we'd be. I thought we'd be .500 and we did better than that.

"We'll be back because we have a young team. We had 15 girls dress the last couple of weeks and only three were seniors. A lot of young kids got playing time this year. We'll only be better next year because of our experience."

Fontbonne built an insurmountable 44-24 advantage at halftime behind its sizzling shooting display. Senior guard Julianna Eagles of Quincy netted four 3-pointers in the first 16 minutes and finished with 18 points.

"They're a great shooting team, obviously," MacFarlane said. "They shot 50 percent from floor in the first half which really crushed us. They hit eight 3's in the first half. I'm not talking about toeing the 3-point line, I'm talking about two to three feet behind the line. They're one of best 3-point shooting teams I've seen."

The Red Raiders did pull within 14 points in the second half, but that was as close as they got.

"From there, we ended up pressing and they got a lot of easy baskets," MacFarlane said. "We were trying to get back into the game."

Fontbonne held North Quincy's leading scorer, sophomore all-star forward Rebecca Gorcham, to six points and six rebounds.

Senior tri-captain and all-star forward Kayla Lenane stepped up with 16 points and nine rebounds. Senior tri-captain Kelly Barden scored four points with six rebounds and senior tri-captain Elyse O'Connell grabbed seven boards with two points.

"Not a lot of positives, but the kids tried and worked their hearts out," MacFarlane said. "It just wasn't there."

For Fontbonne, fellow Quincy residents enjoying the win with Eagles were head coach Clare Murphy, Christine Foley, Erin Cain and Aileen Croke.

NOT SO MUCH HOT AIR

According to government estimates, the lives of 15,000 people have been saved by air bags over the past two decades. That is not to say that this safety device was not without initial problems. For instance, some of the early air bags deployed with too much force. As a result, some small women and children were put at risk. Since then, the word has gone out that it is important to use seat belts in conjunction with air bags, and that children should be seated in the rear seats of vehicles. Moreover, by 2006, every new vehicle will have sensors to make sure that air bags inflate lightly (or not at all) if the seat occupant is too small.

Luckily for consumers, air bags, and car safety systems in general, have become safer by the year. at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, your safety is our number one concern. We know how important your car's performance is, and want you to trust us with your automobile needs. Located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, when you bring your car to us we guarantee your satisfaction with our work. Call 781-843-1550 for an appointment. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

LEAGUE ALL-STARS — Ten players from the Quincy and North Quincy high school hockey teams were named to the Atlantic Coast League North Division all-star team for their play this past season. The North squad defeated the South all-stars, 6-2, at Gallo Arena in Bourne. Goalies are seniors Frank Sorrento (left) and Alex Smith. No Puck-Luck For Presidents

ICE HOCKEY

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School hockey team suffered a 5-2 loss to No. 12 Boston Latin last Wednesday in the first round of the Division 2 South Sectionals at Brockton.

The fifth-seeded Presidents (14-7) outshot Boston Latin but their late-season trend of not putting the puck in the cage continued.

"I thought the kids played well," said head coach Bob Sylvia. "We outshot them. We had plenty of opportunities but we just didn't finish off. Again, putting the puck away kind of was our problem the last quarter of season.

"That's hockey. Any given night, anything can happen. We threw quality rubber at their goalie, especially in the second period, and their kid just came up with the saves. That's way it goes in the tournament."

Quincy fell behind 2-0 after the first period before scoring in the second on sophomore all-star defenseman Kyle Craig's slapshot from the point. Boston Latin answered to go up 3-1 after two periods.

In the third, the Presidents pulled to within a goal when their potent scoring duo hooked up, senior all-star center Matt Giordani scoring off a feed from senior all-star forward Mike McKeon.

Quincy couldn't net the equalizer, though, as Boston Latin grabbed a 4-2 lead before tallying an empty-netter to close out the scoring.

"We went into the tournament confident," Sylvia said. "We felt we had a good club. We certainly had a lot of good hockey behind us. We had a good year. We had a share of strong teams and teams not as strong and that balance kind of helped us."

"We had a great line with established veterans and the second group was a group of sophomores who had good years," he added. "Our biggest problem was lack of consistency on the third line. We tended to overplay Matt and Mike and that's what we're going to work on in the offseason, more consistency among the lines."

Although the Presidents graduate their explosive first line along with goalie Alex Smith and defensemen Mike McPherson and Steve Graham, many of the underclassmen received valuable experience.

"They got a taste of the tournament and a good education this year," Sylvia said. "But it's going to be tough to replace 40-45 goals. That's what the offseason is about, hitting the weight room and getting into a lot of summer hockey situations."

Framingham Foils Raiders

BOYS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Behind by a dozen points with five minutes left in last Tuesday's first round of the tournament, North Quincy senior tri-captain John Murray took matters into his own hands.

The 6-foot-4-inch center sliced through Framingham's defense to convert a 3-point play and, all in one spectacular motion, stole the subsequent inbounds pass and laid the ball in as he was fouled.

He missed the free throw, but hit 1-of-2 at the line on the next possession to cut the deficit in half in just 30 seconds. His scrappy play injected energy into his teammates and the home crowd, as the Red Raiders prepared to make one more run to extend their season another game.

There would be no "next" game.

No. 12 Framingham scored three devastating putbacks, two of them coming off missed free throws, as it regained control in the final minutes to pin a 60-44 loss on No. 5 North Quincy (17-6) in the Division 1 South Sectional match-up.

"We were in it," said head coach Jim Rendle. "We thought we had it. But it was rebounding. They missed two foul shots and got offensive rebounds for putbacks off of that. That should never happen. You can't allow that stuff to happen in a tournament game and expect to come away with a win."

Like Nick and Jessica, North Quincy's 2005-2006 season came to a bitter end. There were high expectations for success in the tournament. That's what happens when you win your final 10 games, one a thrilling triumph over your rivals for a piece of the league title and another the championship in the Vin Moscardelli Tournament.

"This is a bad loss," Rendle said. "It's a sour taste. We hate losing, but we accomplished a lot of things here. We had a lot of good basketball. We won 17 games over the course of the year and got a share of the title.

"I told them, 'Let's forget about this game and think about that Quincy game we had here because that was a special game.' They've got that to take with them for the rest of their lives."

The Red Raiders lost to Framingham because they had an off-shooting night and they failed to control the boards. They misfired on 16-of-17 3-point attempts for the game and shot just 4-of-18 to begin the second half as an 18-17 halftime deficit ballooned to 12 points during that span.

"They beat us on the boards and shot better; that's the story," Rendle said. "That's as bad as we've shot. I was disappointed we shot so poorly in our gym. We've had three big games where we shot well here.

"You have to give Framingham credit. They didn't let us run too much because they were so diligent on the boards. And when we did rebound they were back fast enough. They were faster than most of the teams we've seen. They took our break away so we didn't get too many easy shots, either. Very few layups."

Murray finished with 11 points, 12 rebounds and five blocks, senior guard Imad Elkatrib netted 10 points and had four steals and sophomore guard Dennis Martin scored nine points.

Senior tri-captain and forward Kevin Donovan scored seven points and pulled down eight rebounds and senior tri-captain and point guard Kyle Costa dished out six assists to go with four points.

Feehan Drains Quincy

The Quincy High School boys' basketball team would have needed some rain gear to make it out of the first round of the Division 2 South Sectional tournament.

No. 14 Bishop Feehan poured 10 3-pointers on No. 3 Quincy last Wednesday night en route to a 71-66 overtime victory that ended the Presidents' successful season in their own gym.

"They shot well," said head coach Bob Fisher. "I give them all the credit in the world. They shot the ball well. We weren't very good about defending the 3. Usually defense is our best trademark. Ten 3's. That was the difference in the game. It was more Feehan doing things that they wanted to do than us not doing things. I thought our defense hurt us tonight and it hasn't hurt us all year like it hurt us tonight."

For the second year in a row the Presidents dominated the regular season but failed to advance past the first round. While those playoff losses sting, they don't overshadow their other accomplishments.

Quincy has won 34 of 42 games in two seasons under Fisher, while capturing the Atlantic Coast League North Division title outright last year and a piece of it this season.

"The kids did have a great year and I'm proud of them," Fisher said. "Thirty-four wins in two years speaks volumes about where the program has come in two years."

Fisher praised his three senior captains, all-star forward Lovell Johnson, all-star center Joe Griffin and guard John Orlando.

"I was blessed with three phenomenal captains," Fisher said. "You're only as good as your leadership and I was blessed with great leadership."

The trio played well against Bishop Feehan, with Johnson netting a team-high 19 points, including three 3-pointers, Griffin adding 14 and Orlando four. But they couldn't survive the Shamrocks' outside shooting.

Whenever the Presidents grabbed control of the game, Bishop Feehan answered with the three-ball to thwart their run.

Quincy held a 16-11 lead to open the game before Bishop Feehan surged with a 10-0 outburst, highlighted by senior tri-captain Michael Lindberg, who drilled three consecutive 3-pointers in span of 51 seconds. He burned Quincy for a game-high 25 points and six 3's.

The Shamrocks took a 26-25 lead into the break, but the Presidents rolled in the beginning of the second half, outscoring Bishop Feehan, 13-4, for a 38-30 advantage with 11 minutes remaining.

Just when it seemed like Quincy was finally pulling away, senior Corey Carney (10 points) buried a 3-pointer in transition to ignite a 13-2 run for a 43-40 lead, forcing Quincy to call a timeout with 7:58 left.

The Presidents again seemed in position for the win with a 58-53 lead with 2:05 showing on the clock. But Carney canned another 3-pointer and Bishop Feehan scored a fastbreak layup to even the score.

Knotted at 60, Quincy had two chances to pull it out in regulation, but freshman point guard Doug Scott's long 3 and Johnson's desperation heave at the buzzer were off the mark.

In OT, the team's traded baskets with junior forward Steve Connolly driving for layups to score the first three Quincy hoops. Tied at 66, Bishop Feehan knocked down a jumper for the go-ahead points and added a free throw to go up three points with 39 ticks left.

Quincy couldn't connect on several 3's in the final moments and Bishop Feehan sealed the game when Nicholas Schwieger missed his second straight free throw with 4.5 seconds left but put in his own miss.

"We had our chances," Fisher said. "We had shots at the end. We had chances. We just didn't finish. It's a very, very disappointing loss because I know we're a better team than we showed. I have to give them credit. They made it difficult for us."

Quincy Reaches Semi-Finals

"We had a philosophy before the game to run their legs out of them," Bretsch said. "We had sensed we were a better conditioned team. We kept running and running and eventually got easy shots. We pushed the ball aggressively and played fantastic defense. They were averaging in the 70's. To hold them to 45 is a big deal."

Senior co-captain and forward Jessica Page paced the team with 24 points and pulled down eight rebounds. Sophomore guard Meagan Tobin added 12 and held one of Burke's leading scorers to five points in the second half.

Senior co-captain and forward Ashlee Scott (six points) turned in an outstanding defensive game, limiting its best player to just nine points, 16 below her average.

Junior forward Brighid Kyle chipped in eight points and sophomore point guard Marybeth Torpey had four.

"I was really proud of the kids in that game, playing against a very tough team with a lot of talent," Bretsch said. "We knew they were explosive. We just kept our composure. We never got rattled and just stuck to the game plan. They continued to believe they could win all game. A lot of teams would've folded when they jumped to an 11-2 run. We never stopped believing."

Against Holliston, the Presidents showed some early nervousness as they turned the ball over and misfired on many easy shots, resulting in a 20-16 halftime deficit. That all changed in the second half as their shots started falling, especially from downtown with seven 3 pointers.

"We came out really tight," Bretsch said. "We were feeling the factor that it was a state tournament game. We were jittery and missed a lot of easy shots and had a few sloppy plays. I told the girls at halftime that we're getting the shots we want. To win, we just have to make them. They started falling in the second half."

Page showcased a dazzling shooting display in the second half, scoring 24 of her 32 points, including five 3-pointers. It marked the fifth time the Atlantic Coast League's leading scorer went over 30 points this season.

"Jessica just took over," Bretsch said. "She had her best 16 minutes of basketball of the year at the perfect time. That was really the difference. That really broke it open for us. We kept striking from deep."

Tobin (10 points) also sparked the defense, taking Holliston's top player out of the game in the second half. Torpey added six points.

"We're having a good run rite now," Bretsch said. "These past two games we've seen what we're capable of. The biggest difference is our defense has been outstanding. We're not a high-powered scoring team. When we're able to shut down opponents we've been successful."

DAVID HODGON next to a window display of his various Winter Olympics memorabilia at Presidents' Place.

Quincy Center Display Showcases Winter Olympics

Displayed in the store front windows of Presidents' Place, visitors can feast their eyes on David Hodgon's prized collection of memorabilia of skis, pins and clothing from various Winter Olympics from 1980 to 2002.

Hodgon, founder of the Blue Hills Adventure and Quarry Museum, established the Nordic Ski Patrol as a pilot project 38 years ago in the Blue Hills as the Eastern Division Nordic Ski Patrol.

Hodgon ran the first "On the Trail First Aid Course" and then the "Nordic Ski and Toboggan Clinic" in Stowe, Vt., which led the patrols sprouting up all over the country.

As National Nordic Ski Patrol Advisor, Hodgon contacted the executive director for the 1980 Lake Placid Winter Olympics, a former ski patroller who agreed there should be a Nordic Ski Patrol as well as an Alpine one.

Hodgon and the Nordic Ski Patrol went on to do the Nationals in 1978, World Cups in 1979 and the Winter Olympics in 1980, all in Lake Placid, N.Y. He helped found the Canadian Nordic Ski Patrol, which participated in the 1988 Calgary Winter Olympics.

The 2002 Salt Lake City (Utah) Winter Olympics were the last games the Nordic Ski Patrol participated in. Hodgon and the Nordic Ski Patrol plan to participate in the 2010 Winter Olympics.

Hodgon's memorabilia will be on display through the end of March. Next to the display are pictures of the old St. Moritz Winter Carnivals in West Quincy of past competitors who participated in the 1937 Lake Placid Winter Olympics.

For more information on the Nordic Ski Patrol or activities at Blue Hills Adventure and Quarry Museum, call 781-326-0079.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

What we look for, you know, is a habit of goodness... Not sporadic, isolated acts of goodness, however great. These leave no lasting effect on society. They occur at the whim of the individual, and whim is a lightweight, unreliable thing. Whim seldom outlasts the feeling engendered it and many act of goodness dies, when whim dies, on the vine.

The habit of goodness. Not goodness performed because someone is watching, someone authorized to criticize or reward. This sort of "goodness" is not good. Its first consideration is always the self. The self seeks praise. The self avoids guilt, pain and punishment. There can be no true joy in a "goodness" meant to protect oneself and to curry favor.

What we hope and pray for, both in the community and within ourselves, is a habit of goodness. This goodness is motiveless, in that it needn't be argued or explained. It is a way of life. It's the person's personality – utterly spontaneous in deed but characteristic in spirit... There is no heroism in this goodness because there's no awareness of exceptional action. Goodness is natural. What other thing should one do besides this good thing? Why, there is no other thing... You see? This goodness springs from the quality of being.

The shamrock

The symbol of the seamrog ("summer plant") of Ireland has held much meaning to the various peoples that have lived there over the centuries.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might feel more encouraged about changes in your personal and/or professional life. However, it might be best not to rush things but rather work with them as they evolve.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's business sense is especially keen this week. But remember that it's always best to investigate before investing. Make sure there are no hidden factors that can rise up later on.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Working on a family project could create tension between and among those concerned. Your good sense and your patience can help reduce bad attitudes and raise positive feelings.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You should be seeing more progress in the development of your plans and more supporters joining in. News from the past could help change someone's long-held position.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) With personal aspects strong this week, Leos and Leonas might want to spend more time with family and others who are especially close to them. Also expect news of a possible career change.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Taking a strong stand can be helpful this week. But be careful you don't cross the line into obstinacy. Best to take a position on facts as they are, not as you want them to be.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You have a strong sense of the needs of others. This week, turn some of that sensitivity into an honest self-appraisal, and let it find places where you can help yourself.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Creating an emotional comfort zone to handle a personal problem helps at first. But by midweek, you'll realize you need to deal with it directly or it could linger for too long.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Turning the page on a mistake to start fresh might not be the thing to do. Better to go over each step that led up to the decision you made and see which one misled you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Goats enjoy a varied diet, but eating crow isn't on the menu — at least not this week. An embarrassing situation might have gone wrong before you got into it. Check it out.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your sense of honesty might impel you to speak up about a situation you disapprove of. That's fine. But do so without sounding accusatory. You might not know all the facts behind it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Being asked to create a reassuring attitude in the middle of chaos isn't easy, but you can do it. Support for your efforts comes slowly, but it does come. Enjoy an arts-filled weekend.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your honesty about people and issues is expressed in a positive, not painful, way.

Eric McLaughlin Named Account Executive At Fallon Ambulance Service

ERIC McLAUGHLIN

Fallon Ambulance Service, a three-generation, family-operated ambulance service with headquarters at 111 Brook Rd. in West Quincy, has named Eric McLaughlin as an account executive.

McLaughlin will support the company's expansion in the Metrowest region. He will work to develop new accounts and provide service to existing clients.

Before joining Fallon Ambulance Service McLaughlin was a funeral director in Quincy for 12 years and holds a Funeral Director's license in Massachusetts. He is a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree and earned a bachelor of science degree in finance from the University of Massachusetts in Boston.

McLaughlin lives in Quincy with his wife Erin and their daughter Hannah Rose. He is past president of the Scituate Country Club and is currently an active board member.

"Eric is a wonderful addition to our professional staff and we are pleased to have his support as we expand our services in the Metrowest region," said Peter Racicot, senior vice president of Business Development for Fallon Ambulance Services.

"Eric demonstrates great professionalism and people skills and he will serve as a wonderful representative for Fallon Ambulance in the communities we serve."

Fallon Ambulance Service traces its beginnings to 1936 when James R. Fallon, Sr., established the company; it remains a family-operated business to this day. Mr. Fallon's son, James R. (Ray) Fallon, Jr., and five of his children played a key role in the company's operation, development and growth.

Fallon Ambulance employs more than 400 personnel, operates more than 100 vehicles and provides 9-1-1 service for the City of Quincy and other area municipalities.

For additional information about Fallon Ambulance Services or programs that the company offers, call (617) 745-2117 or visit www.fallonambulance.com.

CELEBRITY extra

by Evelyn Green

Q. I'm betting that Glenn Close was once married to Michael Douglas, or was involved with him before they did "Fatal Attraction." Also, is it true she's related to Princess Diana? — Nicolette M.

A. Glenn Close has been married three times — never to Michael Douglas. He also never figured in any of her several relationships, one of which produced her now-teenaged daughter. The closest relationship Close and Douglas had before becoming film co-stars was as fellow alumni of a prep school, Choate Rosemary Hall in Connecticut.

Close, who lived for 16 years in the Belgian Congo (now Zaire), where her father ran a medical clinic, is related to Brooke Shields, and is a distant relative of Princes William and Harry, whose late mother was, of course, Princess Diana.

Glenn Close will repeat her stage role of Norma Desmond in the upcoming film remake of "Sunset Boulevard."

Q. Can you please tell me something about Josh Lucas ("Stealth")? Is he related to Matthew McConaughey? — B.A.

A. Josh Lucas, who stars in the upcoming "Poseidon," and who is also sometimes credited as Joshua Lucas, was born in Little Rock, Ark., in 1971. He oy9i0nce dated Salma Hayak ("Frida"). As a child, he often joined his parents when they campaigned against nuclear energy. Although Lucas and McConaughey do look alike, they are not related.

Q. Will Lucy Lawless ("Xena") return to "Battlestar Galactica"? — Tim W.

A. She certainly will. After her well-received short visit, Lawless will reprise as D'Anna Biers in a 10-episode arc on "Battlestar's" new season, which starts shooting in Vancouver in April.

Glenn Close

Q. I am looking for the title of a film about a traveling "executioner" who had a wagon equipped with an electric chair. I trhink it starred Burt Lancaster. — C.P.

A. The movie was called "The Traveling Executioner." It was made in 1970 and starred Stacy Keach as the executioner, Jonas Candide. Keach's character would comfort the condemned prisoners and even try to hypnotize them as a humanitarian act before pulling the switch.

To Elevate, Retrofit 17 Flood-Prone Residential Properties

Quincy Receives $473,640 FEMA Grant

The City of Quincy will receive a $473,640 Pre-Disaster Mitigation (PDM) grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to elevate or retrofit 17 flood-prone residential properties, announces Mayor William Phelan.

The City of Quincy also received a PDM grant in 2003, totaling $449,935.

"The Commonwealth continues to strongly support the hazard mitigation efforts of the City of Quincy with the implementation of their home retrofitting program," said Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency Director Cristine McCombs. "This project highlights Massachusetts' goal of reducing loss of life, property and infrastructure from Natural Disasters through a comprehensive mitigation program which involves planning, prevention, and preparedness."

"After disasters occur, home repairs and reconstruction are typically completed to restore damaged property to pre-disaster conditions," Phelan said. "While such efforts expedite a return to normalcy, replication of pre-disaster conditions only result in a cycle of damage, reconstruction, and repeated damage. This program, however, will give seventeen homeowners the opportunity to break the cycle of repetitive loss."

Quincy's Planning Department will oversee this program. Its Office of Housing Rehabilitation, which implements other housing rehabilitation programs, will handle the design and construction phases.

Quincy's Inspectional Services Department and the Water/Sewer Department will provide technical assistance as necessary on individual projects.

"I wish to thank our city employees for their hard work and determination in applying for, and overseeing, this important program," the mayor said. "By protecting and strengthening our neighborhoods through their efforts, Quincy is truly a better place in which to live."

Food Court Hearing Continued Regarding Beer, Wine Location

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board continued a hearing regarding the location of where beer and wine is to be served.

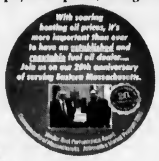
Also continued was the request of a transfer of the Merry Lamb doing business as the Little Q Hot Pot now held by Pacific Food Court, 1585 Hancock St.

Board members questioned the control the staff would have because of the replacement of the bar from inside of the door to the inside of the Hot Pot.

Julie Feng, owner of the Taste of Taiwan, soon to be opened at the food court said she did not think that there would be enough staff to control over who buys beer and wine. She said how could anyone tell "how many drinks they had in two hours."

She said she objected to the changing of the bar area from where it was originally planned.

Fire Chief Timothy Pettinelli was concerned over a long line of patrons waiting to buy a beer, and if there was enought staff.



Capt. John Dugan, filling in for Police Chief Robert Crowley said he was concerned over the difficulty to monitor who is buying the drinks, and whether or not they could slip out the door carrying the drink in a plastic cup.

Because of the many issues raised at the meeting, Atty. Christopher Harrington, counsel for the food court asked to the board for the continuation until March 21.

THIS RENDERING SHOWS the design and Woodward Ave. site favored for the new Quincy High School. Hearing On New QHS March 22

By MIKAELA SLANEY

The Woodward Ave. design and site for the new Quincy High School is favored by school committee members, but neighbors and the general public will get their chance to be heard at a public hearing March 22.

The hearing will be held at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library with issues such as parking, traffic and flooding expected to be raised. Letters are being sent to neighbors inviting them to the hearing.

Following a meeting Monday afternoon, school committee members said they were leaning toward the Woodward Ave. Plan which is favored by Mayor William Phelan, who is also school committee chairman.

Under that plan, the school would be built across Woodward Ave., with entrance from Coddington St. Woodward Ave. would be closed from that point to Huntly Rd.

According to architects from Symmes Maini & McKee Associates (SMMA) this plan has the advantage of an above-floodline basement, but may require changes to the current

Sending Proposed Ordinance To Council

Phelan Wants Code Officer

Mayor William Phelan will present a proposed City Ordinance to the City Council Monday night to allow for the creation of a City Code Enforcement Officer position.

The City Council requested a job description and expressed hope the mayor would submit one at an upcoming meeting.

"My goal of strengthening our great neighborhoods would be augmented by dedicating a position or positions to deal with the issues that plague our neighborhoods and detract from the quality of life in our city," Phelan said. "I am excited about the cooperation expressed by the Council on this important matter and I look forward to getting this done in time for next year's budget process."

The code enforcement officer would enforce the wide range of ordinances pertaining to quality of life issues such as:

The sign ordinance, the dumpster regulations, cars parking on front lawns, trash being put out on days other than pick-up day, illegal rooming houses, unregistered cars, sidewalk parking, the noise ordinance, commercial vehicles parking in residential areas, and overgrown yards and properties would be included in this position's job description.

Phelan's proposal would place the position(s) under the direction of the Inspectional Services Department. The proposed salary would be $45,000.

"We need to make the preservation of our neighborhoods and the quality of life in our city a priority," Phelan said. "By having someone tasked exclusively to deal with these issues, we can better address them, eliminate reoccurring problems, and improve our neighborhoods."

Phelan has launched a "Strengthening Neighborhoods Initiative" to focus on maintaining the quality of life in Quincy. A recent survey issued through the census mailing solicited concerns and input from Quincy residents. A series of community meetings will follow in the spring to propose solutions to residents' concerns and ideas.

City Begins Sixth Avenue Drainage Project

The City Department of Public Works has begun an on-site study of the drainage system serving Sixth Avenue in Quincy Point.

Mayor William Phelan has committed to alleviating the flooding conditions that have plagued this neighborhood for years.

DPW personnel are conducting the field study this week in anticipation of completing the design work this spring. Construction will likely commence this summer.

"We are committed to resolving the drainage issues that have achievable solutions," Phelan said. "We will continue to systematically address these problem areas and hopefully make life a lot more enjoyable in these particular neighborhoods."

Phelan has also requested the Conservation Commission undertake a study of the Black's Creek basin. Over the past few years, sediment has been building up rapidly in the basin between Furnace Brook Parkway and Merrymount Parkway.

"The buildup of sediments reduces the storage capacity in the basin," Phelan said. "Reduced capacity puts added stress on the surrounding area and the Furnace Brook. We should understand why the basin has been filling up and what we can do about it. Our efforts could have a wide-ranging impact as far up the brook as West Quincy."

Church Banner Needs Final HDC Blessing

By TOM HENSHAW

If all goes according to plan, the congregation of United First Parish Church will raise a banner in support of same-sex marriage across the face of their historic church in Quincy Square sometime around April 1.

The church last week got a tacit go-ahead from the Zoning Board of Appeals to display the 34-foot, 9-inch banner after church fathers agreed to cut the display time from 90 to 60 days, making their appeal unnecessary.

"It was a reasonable compromise," said the Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of the 366-year-old church that once claimed colonial patriots named Adams, Hancock and Quincy in its congregation.

The only possible hurdle left is the Historic District Commission, which turned down the original submission by the church pending a decision from the Zoning Board with an opportunity to resubmit later.

The commission will meet Monday, March 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall with the banner question on its agenda.

Commission participation is limited to the physical constraints of the banner since its message — "People of Quincy High School, which is protected as a historic building.

Parking with this plan, is still a problem, said Alex Pitkin, architect with SMMA.

"We envision parking along Coddington St., improving upon what is there now," he said. Staff parking is "something we'll continue to talk about."

This design includes a three court gym divided by soft panels lowered from the ceiling. It is expected to include wrestling and distinct weight rooms.

These plans don't include space for auto-body and auto-tech programs, or the Quincy Teen Mother Program.

"We've got our wrestlers taken care of," said committee member Linda Stice, "I'd like to be thoroughly informed why that trade-off is being made."

"The real reason we went with the third gym was an ROTC program," said Quincy High School Principal Frank Santoro.

There will be an approximate 800 person auditorium, and smaller rooms for community space.

"We're going to ask for everything we can get but we're lucky to be at the place we're at," said Mahoney.

A similar proposal, also intended at Woodward Avenue at Faxon Field, is backed by neither the school committee, nor the state, and did not get thoroughly covered at the meeting.

The state backs a plan submitted by STV Incorporated, of New York, to build along the edge of Faxon Field, with the main entrance off of Southern Artery.

"I'd love to see parents drop (students) off on the fly, when the light turns red," said Stice.

The plan includes many long ramps and stair cases, classrooms with no windows, and a narrow and elevated fire lane.

"I couldn't safely evacuate students from that building," said Santoro.

"There is a lot of class space that simply does not have daylight access with this plan," said Pitkin.

"Parking for this site, no matter what, is going to be a challenge," said Pitkin. He hypothesized that parking would either be underground, or disconnected from school property.

Another disadvantage was no compatible space for a school theater. The building itself would only be 15 feet from the street. "I can't answer whether that meets the current zoning standards," said Pitkin.

"With all the programmatic spaces that the city wants, the building is much taller," said Brian Lawder, architect with SMMA.

"A lot of reasons: safety, daylight, some of the other qualities... we decided a long time ago, that (this plan) probably wasn't a good choice for us or for our kids, for those reasons," said Dwyer.

"So for them showing it to us in 3 1/2 or 4 stories doesn't change my opinion of why we didn't choose that site in the first place."

"This is just a waste of time," said Mayor William Phelan, who is also chairman.

Dwyer said she hopes that site work could begin this summer.

"It's not a question of 'if' it's only a matter of what it's going to look like, and when we're going to get a shovel in the ground," said Phelan. "We still have a process to go through. We have to take a step back."

Early cost estimates indicate that all three options will range between $120-$130 million. It is estimated by the mayor that the city will receive a 90 percent reimbursement rate for the construction.

Before construction, the committee will have to gain approval from the Massachusetts Environmental Protection Agency (MEPA).

Committee members include:

Phelan, Dwyer, Kevin Mulvey, Stice, Mahoney, Jim Timmins, and Dave McCarthy.

The committee expects to answer questions at the hearing pertaining to the Historical Society and whether to leave the former high school untouched, the application process with MEPA, the construction timeline, the height of the building, effects on surrounding land, and traffic.

"The restaurants and food are excellent and the staff is stupendous. I'm extremely happy."

Like many, Glen Crowell had lived in his Quincy house for a long time and was a little hesitant to move to Linden Ponds, a dynamic community for people 62-plus. But after taking a closer look, he decided it was the perfect place.

"Everything that you'd ever need is here. I don't have to go anywhere or drive a car to get anything. It's a very convenient place to live," says Glen.

Since moving to Linden Ponds, Glen is using the time he used to spend on his house to do other things. "I golf, garden, and bowl in the wintertime, mostly with the friends I've made here at Linden Ponds," says Glen. "I also enjoy the woodwork and hobby shop; I play pool, and go to the Fitness Center three times a week."

"Is it too late for me to refinance?"

(The surprising answer? Probably not!)

If you just go by what you hear or read in the mainstream media, you might think that the refinancing "window" has slammed shut. But that's a simplification that's simply not true. Here are the facts: Mortgage rates are still bouncing around near 50-year lows. So if you want to refinance for whatever reason – to be mortgage-free before you retire, to pay for tuition, to consolidate other loans and debts or just to lock in a low rate before the window does close – you still have time. But possibly not much. So don't wait. Come see us or call 617-471-0750.

Frank's Planning Ahead

Frank McCauley, you would have to say, believes in planning ahead.

Even when planning ahead for something he hopes won't actually happen for years ahead.

Like, his funeral.

McCAULEY

He has the final arrangements completed and obituary information updated.

Funerals aren't what most people want to look forward to, but McCauley takes his in stride — with a dash of humor.

McCauley, who is 77, is in no rush. "I plan to live to 95 at least," he says.

"And, I told Dan Raymondi he better stay in shape."

Stay in shape?

RAYMONDI

"Yes, because I have selected Dan to give the eulogy and I want to be sure he's around when I need him."

McCauley's serious and Raymondi has accepted the honor.

"You know, Dan can be a little loquacious at times, but I told him he can talk as long as he wants to on that day," McCauley muses.

McCauley has mentioned in the past that he had asked Raymondi to give the eulogy but everyone thought he was kidding.

No doubt because the pair have come to be known as the Odd Couple of Quincy politics.

Though Quincy municipal elections are non-partisan, McCauley is a staunch Republican and Raymondi a Rock of Gibraltar Democrat. So they have different political philosophies, to say the least.

Their political relationship spans 35 years, back to 1971 when they were both elected to the school committee.

Ten years later in 1981 they were mayoral rivals when incumbent Arthur Tobin decided not to seek a third term.

McCauley was the winner and went on to serve four terms as mayor. He then returned to the school committee and then to the city council, stepping down last December, closing out a distinguished 32-year career.

McCauley and Raymondi served 12 years together on the city council. McCauley succeeded Raymondi as council president.

During their 35-year political relationship they became good friends with mutual respect for one another.

"We've been colleagues and friends for many years," says McCauley. "We've always got along although we don't see eye to eye on everything.

"Dan knows government. He always does his homework. He works hard at what he does and what he believes in. He is one of the most successful ward councillors I have ever seen."

Raymondi notes that McCauley is thought of by some only as "a Republican budget slasher."

"But there is much more to Frank. He has been a strong advocate for the construction of schools and was a driving force for the addition to the main library.

"I admire his work ethics. He loves and cares deeply for his Ward 1 and the city.

"We may disagree on certain issues. But the disagreement never gets disagreeable. The debate never gets personal. Never gets ugly. I don't think we have had a harsh word between us in the years we have known one another."

McCauley doesn't mind you knowing a little more about the funeral.

The Mass will be at Blessed Sacrament Church in Trinity parish with readings by family members and Brenda Kelly and former City Council President Peter Kolson as soloists.

Arrangements will be by Roger Hamel. But there will be no visiting hours.

The reason for that, McCauley muses:

"If it's in the winter I don't want long lines of people having to stand outside in the cold waiting to get in.

"Or, if it's in the summer, long lines standing outside in the heat."

He's only kidding about the long lines although, no doubt, he would draw them. But he's serious about there be no wake.

He just wants it nice and simple. No big fuss.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1912 postcard shows the coastal steamer the "South Shore" built in 1906 at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy Point for the Nantasket Steamboat Company. Only two coastal steamers were built at Quincy; the other was the "Sankaty" built for the New Bedford Steamship Co. The South Shore was 207 feet long and was the first Nantasket steamer built of steel. She had an opulent mahogany wood interior with a plush dining room where dinner was only $2. The Nantasket Company had a large fleet of these 1,000-plus passenger boats for trips between Rowe's Wharf and Nantasket. They would make 15 to 17 trips to daily with many more on Sunday. Business peaked during World War I when as many as 70,000 people would make the trip on a Sunday. The fare was only 25 cents each way. By the mid-1920's business had slacked off; the auto having a big impact. And then in 1929 a fire destroyed five steamers at the dock in Nantasket, pretty much ending the business just before the Depression. The South Shore wasn't in the fire having been sold in 1925 for $40,000. She met her fate while being towed to New York in April 1928 when a towline snapped and she drifted onto Atlantic City beach and broke up. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

United First Parish Church Separate From Adams National Historical Park

In recent publicity about our banner affirming marriage equality, there is the misperception that United First Parish Church is part of the Adams National Historical Park. The church has never been a part of the National Park. The church owns its land and building and does not receive any funds from the National Park Service.

The misperception perhaps arises because Congress passed a bill in 1980 authorizing the National Park Service to accept and maintain our building if, at some future date, the congregation should voluntarily choose to donate it. The church has no plans now or at any time in the foreseeable future to do this.

The church recently spent more than $1.7 million of its own funds to restore the roof structure and sanctuary and to landscape the grounds. We conduct a public visitor program at our own cost.

Our church is proud of its 366-year history. Originally Congregationalist, and Unitarian since 1750, the church is Unitarian Universalist today. We are proud that the Adams's, Quincys, Hancocks and so many others have been members of the congregation over the centuries. We are proud to be living our faith for a just and compassionate world today, just as they lived their faith in their time.

Treat Others As Brothers

Being retired I have much time for books and newspapers. I study them from morning to night, and often through the night as well. And all I read oppresses me and fills me with sadness at man's inhumanity to man.

No other group of man has ever celebrated Christmas, the Birth of Christ, so beautifully and so elaborately as Americans. And, if our decorations for Christ's birth correspond to our admiration for Christ, our duty would be to imitate Him and not our enemies as to how to treat them.

If we would consider only two of Christ's commandments: "Love your neighbor as yourself" and "Love your enemies," we would know that Christ would want us to "Treat others as brothers!"

Contest Underway To Select Theme For Christmas Parade

The contest is underway to select a theme for the 54th annual Quincy Christmas Parade, which traditionally is held on the Sunday after Thanksgiving, or Nov. 26 this year.

"The theme contest each year is the most important step in planning this event," said George White, chairman of the Christmas Festival Committee.

"Themes suggested for consideration should offer the wide range of imagination of ideas and challenge the vivid imagination of the float builders in their presentation approach."

The winning theme last year was "Christmas . . . A Time of Joy and Family," submitted by Linda Luccio of Braintree, who received a gift of appreciation and an invitation to ride in the parade.

This is the 28th year in which the general public has had the opportunity to enter a parade theme they consider appropriate. The theme contest is open to everyone.

Theme Entry Coupons appear in The Quincy Sun and the Patriot Ledger. When completed they should be mailed to Ms. Carol Flynn, 79 Freeman St., North Quincy, MA 02170.

All entries must be received no later than Friday, April 7. The Christmas Festival Committee will choose the winner at a meeting Thursday, April 20.

The annual parade, which drew an estimated 200,000 onlookers on a mild Sunday last year, has grown to be recognized as one of the best along the East Coast.

Mystery Author To Read, Sign Books At Library Sunday

Mystery writer Katherine Hall Page will be at the Thomas Crane Public Library Sunday, March 19, at 2 p.m. for a reading and book signing.

A children's mystery, "Christie and Company Down East," for which she was nominated for an Edgar award, features three eighth grade girls known as Christie and Company.

Page is one of only two authors ever to be nominated for an Agatha Award in three different categories and won Agathas for Best First Mystery and Best Short Story.

She is a native of New Jersey who came to college in Massachusetts and remained. She was a high school teacher for many years before turning to fulltime writing.

The free event for both adult and younger readers is part of the "Quincy Reads Together: Mystery By The Book" community reading program, sponsored by the Bill Flynn Foundation.

Church Banner Needs Final HDC Blessing

Faith for Marriage Equality" — is protected by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

"We still need a vote from the commission," said Bennett. "I expect we will get a favorable vote. I already have the construction permit from Building Inspector Jay Duca.

"I expect the banner will go up on or about the beginning of April. We will have a ceremony and the banner will be put up by professionals at the job."

The early April date is important since the state legislature will begin sitting as a constitutional convention May 10 with an amendment limiting marriage to one man and one woman on its agenda.

The banner's message will be visible in busy Quincy Square long before and during the convention to show that "marriage equality confirms the core values of the Unitarian-Universalist Church," in the words of Bennett.

Same-sex marriage has been a fact of life in Massachusetts since the State Supreme Judicial Court in 2004 declared it to be legal under the state constitution.

The same year, the annual meeting of the Congregation of the First Parish Church voted 92 per cent to support the court's ruling and oppose any effort to amend the constitution to forbid such unions.

Potato/Polenta Pizza

When we were all at home, and it was St. Patrick's Day, our mother always used a smoked shoulder rather than corned beef when she made a New England boiled dinner.

And we all loved it, and today I still make it that way. Sometimes in addition to the shoulder, I have also used a piece of roast beef. The combination of the two is also very delicious.

No matter what, once those great vegetables are added, anything would taste good. Today's recipe is for a great corn bread. is a family favorite. It makes two, but you can cut the recipe in half.

Potato /Polenta Pizza

2 cups corn meal

4 medium sized potatoes (boiled in their skin)

1 tablespoon pepper (for that spicy flavor)

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup flour

1/2 cup grated Romano or parmesan cheese

2 tablespoons olive oil

First , boil the potatoes in their skin and peel and mash. Mix them together with the corn meal, and all other ingredients. If mixture is a little dry, add a small amount of water..

In slightly greased pie plates, place the mixture and with a fork, scratch the top surface creating a distinctive look.

Bake in two slightly greased pie plates in a 350 degree oven until top is light brown. Then cut like a slice of pizza., Of course you can also use a square pan, no problem.

I hope you enjoy this as much as we do. Happy St. Patrick's Day!

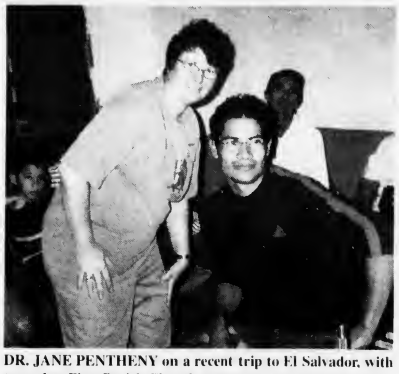
3 First Parish Members Bring Eye-Care to El Salvador

Three members of the United First Parish Church recently spent 10 days bringing eye-care and glasses to the needy in Apopa and La Mora, El Salvador.

They included:

Dr. Jane Pentheny, optometrist, Margie King Saphier, affiliate minister, and Pat Artis, social concerns chair, all of Quincy.

They were part of a 24 person delegation, "Team Sight and Bite," founded by an optometrist and dentist from Brattleboro Vt. They provided dental and eye care to the needy in El Salvador for a decade.



Members of the team include optometrists, an ophthalmologist, dentists, oral surgeons, technicians and other professionals.

Over 300 pairs of used eye glasses were donated to Salvadorans, some donated by local residents. Children of the church school at United First Parish Church collected 250 fast-food toys that were donated to child patients at the clinics.

Dr. Pentheny who practices optometry at 1250 Hancock St. has made five visits to El Salvador with this delegation, said that one of his patients, "only wanted to see good enough to plant his corn."

A Salvadoran woman was fired from her job in a textile factory because she could not thread a needle. With glasses, she was able to work again, Pentheny said.

Members of the Quincy team said, "the time and energy spent was rewarded by the warmth and the appreciation of the Salvadoran patients they served."

DR. JANE PENTHENY on a recent trip to El Salvador, with two other First Parish Church members, gave eye-care to the needy.

The liberal, Unitarian Universalist church has been working for affordable health-care with the Greater Boston Interfaith Organization, and hosted a "Let Justice Roll" campaign for an increased minimum wage, and participated in a vigil against illegal wire-tapping and showed support for same-sex marriage.

The United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents) runs the weekly covenant-lunch program, the Prison Book Program, and the bi-monthly, Friday-night ESL program.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

From Start To Fitness

by Andrea Wyatt M.S.S., C.S.C.S.

Group Class Is Fun Way to Exercise

Q. I am very interested in joining a group exercise class. I think I would enjoy exercising in a group and having a specific time to exercise, but I am a little concerned about doing this for the first time. How do I know what type of class would give me the best workout?

A. Group exercise classes are a great way to work out. Many people find that the music and interaction with other participants are an enjoyable way to exercise. Here are a few pointers about group exercise classes that will help keep you safe while you get fit.

• Consult your physician. Before beginning any form of exercise be sure to get clearance from your doctor, especially if you have any current medical conditions resulting from injuries. Past injuries to the ankles, knees, back, shoulders and neck should get the green light before you jump into class.

• Talk with the instructor. Before beginning a group exercise class, be sure to speak with the instructor or another fitness professional about the format, structure and intensity of the class. This can help you determine if a class is right for you.

• Utilize the knowledge of the instructor. Ask questions about the exercises that will be performed in class. Also ask if the class uses weights, and if so, discuss the appropriate resistance you should be using to exercise safely.

• Maintain your own pace. Although a group exercise class is designed to accomplish a series of exercises, use your judgment while in class. Your goal should not be to keep up with the person beside you, but to work safely to the best of your ability.

• Listen to your body and take breaks to recover when needed. Although classes can be challenging, remember "no pain, no gain" is not the goal. Slow your tempo and take water breaks or recovery breaks when your heart rate becomes too high or if you cannot complete the exercises safely and with the proper technique.

• Find a class you enjoy. Try a variety of classes until you find one that is fun and that you feel comfortable in. Try different classes every once in a while to keep your body challenged.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@ hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Easy Ways To Add Fiber To Your Diet

(NAPS) People may be able to lower their risk of some cancers, type two diabetes, heart problems and obesity simply by eating more fiber. Yet it's estimated that nine out of ten Americans do not eat enough fiber in their diets.

In fact, the latest data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention shows that the average American adult only consumes about half of the daily fiber requirement of 25 to 30 grams per day. So why do so many of us skimp on the fiber? One reason may be that people don't realize how simple it can be to add fiber to their diet. Nutritionists offer these tips:

• Good Health Grows On Trees- Choose fresh fruits and vegetables rather than vegetable or fruit juices. Leafy greens, apples, oranges, pears, peaches and grapes are all high in fiber. Be sure to wash your produce thoroughly and try to eat the skin of fruits.

• Great Grains- Choose fiber-rich whole grain foods whenever possible. Opt for sandwiches on whole wheat instead of on white bread or try a bran muffin in the morning instead of a blueberry one.

• Start Early- Breakfast is one of the easiest occasions to help you boost your fiber intake. For instance, a serving of Kellogg's Frosted Mini-Wheats, Raisin Bran or All-Bran can increase your fiber intake significantly. A bowl of Mini-Wheats alone has up to 25 percent of the recommended daily amount of fiber.

• Choose Food- Try to eat fiber-rich foods rather than taking fiber supplements, as the foods tend to contain more nutrients.

"Along with items like water, leafy greens and whole grains, fiber is an essential food, a cornerstone to good health," explains Andrea Pennington, M.D., author of "The Pennington Plan," noted lifestyle expert and past medical director of the Discovery Health Channel. Dr. Pennington encourages consumers to take the "fiber challenge."

The challenge encourages Americans to increase their fiber consumption by eating one bowl a day of Frosted Mini-Wheats, Raisin Bran or All-Bran. Challenge organizers say that participants should feel a difference after eating more fiber for just that short period of time. For more information, visit www.kelloggs.com

Simple Recipe For Better Health

(NAPS) To live healthier this year, the American Heart Association offers up a simple recipe: Get active and eat better. It's easy when you take these healthy, step-by-step directions to heart:

Start by Turning Activity to "On"

The body benefits from being physically active for at least 30 minutes each day. Regular activity can help you use more calories and build long-term heart health.

That's important because heart disease and stroke continue to be America's number one and three killers. So turn off the TV and video games and take walks with the family. Stride briskly through the entire mall before stopping to shop. Take the stairs rather than the elevator. in short, get up and move!

Add a Healthy Diet

Good food and good health are ingredients that DO go together in this simple, healthy living recipe. It's just a matter of selecting the right combination of foods to fuel your body and satisfy the tastes you love.

The first step in building your family's healthy and flavorful eating plan, says the American Heart Association, is to select a wide variety of foods low in saturated fat and cholesterol. Then, to complete your good nutrition resolution:

• Fill your grocery cart with plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables, which are naturally low in saturated fat and cholesterol.

• Choose whole grain products, including oatmeal, rice and whole-grain breads.

• Select lean protein sources such as skinless poultry, fish, legumes and extra-lean meats.

• Substitute low-fat, low-cholesterol snacks for traditional high-fat, empty-calorie snacks.

• Look for the American Heart Association's red heart with the white check mark on food labels to identify foods low in saturated fat and cholesterol.

Blend with Smart Shopping

With so many foods in the grocery store, it's hard to spot heart-healthy choices. That's why the American Heart Association created the heart-check mark. Backed by science, the distinctive red heart with the white check mark helps you easily and reliably identify heart-healthy foods that can be part of a sensible eating plan. Food packages bearing the simple logo meet the association's criteria for heart-healthy levels of saturated fat and cholesterol for healthy people over age two.

To make shopping even faster, create your list of heart-healthy foods online before you go. Log on to heartcheckmark.org. Click on "My Grocery List." Select, print and shop.

Serve Sensibly

Remember to keep your eyes on serving size. Oversized portions aren't allowed in a recipe for good health.

Quincy Medical Center Offers Free HIV Testing

A new public health initiative, co-sponsored by the Quincy/South Shore AIDS Cares at Quincy Medical Center and Project Umbrella at Boston Medical Center, brings free, confidential HIV testing to the South Shore.

"An estimated 22,000 to 24,000 people in Massachusetts are currently living with HIV, including nearly 7,000 people who do not know that they are HIV positive," said Kim Krueger, HIV program director for South Shore AIDS Cares at QMC. "This free HIV testing program is designed to expand accessibility of HIV testing and to make testing as available as possible."

The free HIV testing is offered by appointment on Fridays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the Quincy/South Shore AIDS Cares offices at Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

CROWNING GLORY

The dental restoration known as a "crown" is designed to augment and replace the portion of the tooth that lies above the gum line. Dental crowns are often suggested for teeth that are excessively worn, broken, or have large portions destroyed by tooth decay. When a dental crown is made on the basis of an impression of the patient's dental arch, the laboratory technician can visualize and examine all aspects of the patient's bite and jaw movements from a variety of angles. As a result, the crown can be sculpted with an anatomy that may be even more ideal than the tooth's original shape. Crowns with a porcelain surface provide a cosmetic appearance that is close to nature's own.

Crowns are an ideal restoration for teeth, which have been broken, or have been weakened by decay or a very large filling. We take time to listen to your concerns and develop a personalized plan to enhance your smile. Everyone wants a beautiful smile – and everyone should have a healthy one. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we feel a deep responsibility and commitment to provide the very best care with state-of-the-art equipment. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment for professional, gentle dental care. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. If an entire crown is not needed, the dentist can preserve the remainder of the tooth that lies above the gum line by augmenting it with an onlay.

We need you.

Quincy Men Face Charges In $30M Pyramid Scheme

Two Quincy men were among a trio of former executive of marketing firms arraigned for pyramid scheme that allegedly bilked some 400 victims out of about $30 million in 15 states.

Most of the victims were ethnic Cambodians, said U. S. Attorney Michael Sullivan.

Pleading not guilty in U. S. District Court were James Bunchan, 51, of Quincy, Attleboro and North Miami Beach, Fla.; Seng Tan, 57, of Quincy, Attleboro and Burnsville, Minn.; and Christian Rochon, 54, of Attleboro.

The three were principal of WMDS, Inc., aka World Marketing Direct Selling Inc. and an affiliated company, One Universe Online Inc., aka IUOL with offices in Canton, Attleboro and Boston.

The indictment alleges that Bunchan, Tan and Rochon fraudulently solicited and obtained investments in WMDS and IUOL and intentionally misappropriated the funds for their own use.

It was also alleged that they solicited investors by falsely asserting that a lump sum investment would provide a monthly payment for the rest of their lives and the lives of their children.

Make Plans Now for Spring Projects

The last days of winter are the perfect time to plan your spring home fix-up projects.

Whether it's outside landscaping, interior or exterior painting, or a new roof, your first step will be to determine whether you can do the work yourself or if you'll need to hire contractors.

If you're going to require a contractor, you'll need references. Look around your neighborhood for exterior projects similar to what you have in mind, and ask who did the work. Don't forget real estate offices as a source for quality contractors. Realtors often need to assist sellers when home sales hinge on repairs being made quickly and well.

Once you have your references, check them and ask questions. If the contractor has a current job, visit the site. Is it neat and organized? Does the material and workmanship seem to be quality? Ask for comments from the homeowner.

When it's time to sign a contract, make sure it includes the start and completion dates, as well as the draws, that is, the amounts to be paid to the contractor at various stages of completion. Never pay in advance, even for materials. Insist on seeing the invoices for materials, and question anything you don't understand.

For outside projects involving plants and terraces, the time to visit nurseries that offer free landscaping plans is now — before warm weather arrives — while they're not so busy.

If you're going to do the project yourself, take a few do-it-yourself classes at your local hardware store. While you're there, sign up for presale notifications for supplies you might need.

Here are some spring projects that can save money down the road:

- Check the drainage around your house. Inspect your crawlspace, foundation and basement for signs of water, and regrade the ground around your house or waterproof as necessary. Move downspouts and consider splashguards for gutters or decorative retaining walls to keep water away from the house.
- Consider installing replacement windows. Check screens for holes.
- Inspect your roof for missing shingles. Check the attic space for signs of water damage to trusses and plywood.
- Have your air conditioner inspected before warm weather arrives.

Advance legwork can save you time and money, and the right projects can help maintain the value of your home.

Write to David Uffington in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475 or send e-mail to letters.kfws@hearstsc.com.

What's The Best Time To Buy Flood Insurance?

(NAPS) You may be surprised to learn that there's no such thing as a flood season. Every day-in every season-flooding occurs somewhere in the United States.

Floods are the most common natural disaster in the nation, wiping out homes, businesses and personal financial resources. No one knows that better than the residents of the Gulf Coast states still struggling to recover from the devastating 2005 hurricane season.

But flooding is not limited to events such as hurricanes. Flooding also occurs during and after the winter months as a result of warming temperatures. In the past 11 years, all 50 states and territories in the U.S. have experienced a flood event. These include heavy rains, flash flooding, coastal floods, and snow melt. Along the West Coast, the likelihood of flooding is increased during seasonal rains and in the aftermath of wildfires.

While there is no way to eliminate the pan and suffering caused by flood events, individuals and families can lessen the motional and financial toll from flooding by purchasing flood insurance through the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP). The NFIP is managed by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

FEMA recommends that property owners purchase flood insurance whether they live in or outside of high-risk flood areas. One out of every four flood-loss claims is filed in low- to moderate-risk area. Flood insurance is available to any property owner located in a community participating in the NFIP.

Coverage Is Affordable

Flood insurance provides financial security at an average annual cost of approximately $500. For people living in low- to moderate-risk areas, coverage may be purchased for as little as $112 a year.

Flood Insurance Is Easy to Get

About 100 private insurance companies and 20,000 independent insurance agents offer the coverage. people without insurance agents can call (800) 427-2419 to locate an agent.

Coverage for Business

NFIP coverage is not only for homeowners. Businesses can purchase coverage for buildings and their contents, including equipment. Homeowners and renters may purchase separate policies to insure personal property.

Don't Delay

Flood insurance coverage usually doesn't begin until 30 days after the purchase date. For more information, visit www.FloodSmart.gov.

Insulation Can Help With Home Heating Costs

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

(NAPS) As the temperature drops, think before you reach for the thermostat. A colder winter and higher fuel prices are likely to drive up residential heating bills between 30 and 47 percent this year, according to a recent report by the U.S. Energy Information Agency. That makes it more important than ever before that homeowners take proactive steps to conserve energy in their homes. The North American Insulation Manufacturers Association (NAIMA) reminds homeowners a well-insulated home is the key to controlling costs without sacrificing comfort.

If your home is more than 10 years old, it is probably among the more than 63 percent of American homes that Harvard University found are underinsulated by today's standards.

The first step homeowners can take is to ensure that their homes are insulated with the proper amount of fiberglass insulation or R-value. The higher the R-value, the greater the insulating power. This not only includes insulation in attics but also in basement walls, floors above vented crawl spaces, cathedral ceilings, and floors over unheated garages or porches. Some of these areas may be hard to reach but any additional insulation will help keep your home more comfortable. Most homes would benefit from adding an R-30 fiber-glass in their attics.

At NAIMA's Web site, www.SimplyInsulate.come, you can find helpful tips and free literature on how to add fiberglass insulation to a home and how to hire an insulation contractor. The site also offers information on a new Federal Tax Credit for insulation and local rebates that may be available in your area for increasing the energy efficiency in your home.

Check out other great energy-saving tips at The Alliance to Save Energy (www.ase.org/content/article/detail/924) and the U.S. Department of Energy site at www.eere.energy.gov/consumer/.

Preparation Is Key When Moving

Spring is just around the corner, and for many people that's a signal to find new digs — whether that be an apartment, condo or house. Before even deciding where to live, begin preparing for a potential move so that in the flurry of activity that goes with moving out and moving in, you'll have that much less to worry about.

Finances: You may have the money for the down payment or the security deposit for the apartment, but do you have enough cash to cover an unexpected deposit or an appliance repair? Sit down and develop a "Murphy's Law" budget to cover life's little surprises.

Children: Prepare your kids, even if you're just moving down the street. Talk to them about your decision, what the new home will be like, and what will be happening before you start to pack.

Sort-and-Toss: This fun little weekend activity is critical before a big move. Go methodically through every room in the house and separate items you wish to take to the new home from items that can be thrown away or donated. Quite a bit of clutter can be eliminated this way, and it will make packing much less stressful.

Make a schedule: Like most people, you'll probably have to complete the move while working a full-time job and taking care of the kids. So give yourself several weeks to pack, putting least-used items into boxes first. A calendar hung in plain view (on the refrigerator, for instance) can remind you when to do certain tasks, such as scheduling the transfer of utilities.

Identify essentials: How many times have you moved and, the morning after settling in, can't find a toothbrush or change of clothes, or your daughter's favorite toy is missing? List items that need to be immediately accessible and place them in a separate area, box or travel bag.

Communicate: Keep family and friends up to date on the move before, during and after. Send out change-of-address information as soon as you have it. Ask for help if you feel overwhelmed, or just call regularly to maintain that connected feeling.

Relax: Take time out each day to rest and relax a bit, eat, watch television or spend time with the kids. You'll recharge quickly and run less risk of burnout.

Send questions or home repair tips to homeguru2000@hotmail.com, or write This Is a Hammer, c/o King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Transforming A Room From The Ceiling Down

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

(NAPS) People are often floored by the dramatic effect a ceiling can have on a room. Designers say the right ceiling can completely alter the look and feel of most any spa and make rooms feel more spacious or cozy.

Traditionally, white is the most commonly used color for ceilings. This is because it reflects light very well, and- let's face it- white goes with just about everything. Just keep in mind that leaving the ceiling white after painting the walls with color can sometimes make a room appear unfinished. So what's the best color for your ceiling and how can you paint ceilings in your home? Try these tips from the experts:

• If using white, choose a shade that will work with the room and the rest of the room's decor. There are many different types of whites- from subtly warm, to cooler and more blue-based. A bluer white may be ideal for a bathroom, while a warmer white might be an excellent choice for a bedroom.

• To add a little unexpected drama, consider painting the ceiling a color that contrasts with the color of the walls. Adding just a touch of color to a ceiling can bring a certain intimacy- and give that space a much more finished and refined look.

• To give an illusion of space to a room with a low ceiling or to add a feeling of coziness to rooms with higher ceilings, follow the eight-foot rule. If the room has ceilings that are eight-feet high, paint them a shade or two darker than the wall color. Then finish the room with crown molding painted the same color as the walls, but in a glossier sheen.

• Use paint specifically formulated for ceilings. For instance, BEHR Premium Plus Ceiling Paint is spatter resistant and hides surface imperfections. It can be tinted in any color and delivers a long lasting and durable finish.

Quincy Bows But Can Hold Heads High

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Jessica Page and Ashlee Scott walked towards their bench with less than a minute left, eyes filling with tears as their successful high school basketball careers would soon come to a saddening end.

The Quincy fans acknowledged the moment, applauding them in appreciation of their efforts during last Thursday evening's 51-37 loss to Hopkinton in the semi-finals of the Division 2 South Sectionals at Brockton High School.

When their emotions subside, they can take pride knowing they were instrumental in raising the program's proverbial bar up a notch. The two senior captains, members of the varsity squad the past three seasons, led a young Presidents team (15-9) to one of its best postseason runs in recent memory.

In their tenure, Quincy won 63 percent of its games (40-24) and made the state tournament each year, notching the program's first tournament victory in 25 years this season with the first-round win over Holliston.

"We're going to really miss their leadership," said head coach Jeff Bretsch. "You can't replace a kid like Jessica Page. She just got better and better every year and this year has been a real standout.

"I said to her downstairs (after the game) that her competitive fire, her desire to do what it takes to win, above all of her personal goals and stuff, is really what sets her apart as a really great player. Not just a scorer, but a really great basketball player. She was able to bring her teammates with her. She raised their level of expectations and competitiveness as well.

"Ashlee Scott contributed to that as well. Her intensity and her success in volleyball, she brought that to the table in basketball. She played with composure that you might not expect throughout this tournament. She really raised the level of her game."

The 11th-seeded Presidents, who came into the game averaging 12 turnovers, coughed the ball up 28 times, including 20 in the first half against a relentless Hopkinton press that led to a 30-19 deficit at the break.

Quincy actually jumped out to a quick start, grabbing a 5-0 lead in the opening minute when sophomore guard Meagan Tobin nailed a 3-pointer and Scott knocked down a jumper.

After the second-seeded Hillers countered with an 8-0 run, Page scored nine of Quincy's next 11 points as the teams were deadlocked at 16 with eight minutes remaining. But Hopkinton outscored the Presidents, 14-3, to close the half.

"We came out strong and played them tough for most of the half," Bretsch said. "And then they went on a tear towards the end. You could see the wind was out of our sails. We didn't take care of the ball. We knew their press was good and they forced a lot of turnovers all year. We prepared for it but I think we just got a little sloppy in ways that we don't normally do. We're usually a good ball handling team."

"Their defense creates panic," he added. "That's their point. We weren't able to punish them for their aggressiveness. We weren't able to capitalize with fast breaks that we were hoping. You start to get tentative and play not to turn it over instead of playing to score. I think that happened to us in the first half."

The Presidents solved Hopkinton's press in the second half and cut the deficit to 38-32 after junior forward Brighid Kyle hit consecutive jumpers and Page added a pair of free throws.

But that's as close as they would come as Hopkinton held the Presidents to five points in the final 10:14.

Page finished with a team-high 16 points along with 10 rebounds and three blocks. Kyle scored eight of her 10 points in the second half and grabbed six rebounds.

"We played a good team tonight," Bretsch said. "They only lost one game all year. Their defense is fantastic. They rebound well. They attack the basket relentlessly. We did a lot of good things. If we had taken care of the ball we would've had a chance to beat them. We're very proud of what we've accomplished this year and we hope that this carries over to the future of this program."

With six sophomores, including the starting backcourt of point guard Marybeth Torpey and Tobin, and three juniors returning, this year's success should carry over into next season.

"Their expectation of what basketball is and their experience and confidence they gained from this is invaluable," Bretsch said. "The standard has been raised. They're very excited about basketball.

"I think basketball is picking up in the City of Quincy again. The younger kids are all really excited to get involved. The boy's program has taken off. There's a real buzz about basketball around the City of Quincy right now. I'm hoping this kind of success will continue for us."

Quincy High School will be represented for the third straight year at the annual Massachusetts Shriners Football Classic.

Senior Pat Stroud, a 6-foot, 330-pound defensive lineman, has been selected to participate in the 28th annual event.

"It's a great individual honor and also a great honor for our program," said head coach Bob Noble. "We've been fortunate that we've had in last three years someone represent our team in the Shriners game.

"It represents that we're a football program that has slowly but surely gained some respect in the football community in Massachusetts. This is just an indication of that. We've been fortunate that we've had some good football players. I'd hope that continues in the future."

PAT STROUD

Last year, Noble served as an assistant on the South squad to become the first Quincy High coach to make an appearance in the all-star game. In 2004, J.J. Niamkey took part in the game as a defensive back.

An Atlantic Coast League all-star, Stroud anchored an outstanding defensive line for the Presidents this past season, which also featured two other all-stars, D.J. Andrews and Chris Pratt, along with Mike Neenan. The defense allowed 12 points per game.

"He was part of a very strong defensive line," Noble said. "His job was to occupy the middle of the line. He had an unglamorous role of sacrificing individual stats for the betterment of the team. Potential colleges see that he can't be blocked by one individual. Teams had to use a center and guard on him and that allowed our linebackers to run free."

Stroud is looking to continue at either a prep school or junior college. "His best football is in front of him," Noble said.

He is the 14th athlete from Quincy to be named to the Shriners team, joining:

Ralph Pickering ('79), Tom Brennan ('80), Fran Duggan ('81), Jamie Gravalese ('83), Kevin Riggs ('83), Chris Noble ('89), Tom Morrell ('90), Mark Bogan ('91), Chris Walker ('92), Mike Kavanaugh ('93), Michael Bartlett ('94), Butch Palaza ('95) and Niamkey ('04).

IS THE SPARKING MISSING?

Leaking spark plug wires can lead to engine misfires. To verify this cause, an auto technician will closely examine the wire jackets to see if they are damaged from the outside. If so, such damage may be due to abrasion caused by engine vibration (particularly at the plug-end boots) a hot engine compartment, spilled fluids or battery acid, multiple disconnections and reconnections for service, or even nesting rodents. If the outer jacket is damaged, the high-voltage electricity contained within may follow an easier path than the one that otherwise directs it to jump the gap between electrodes to produce the "spark" that ignites the fuel mixture. Replacing the spark plug wires will restore the spark to its proper place.

Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, our mechanics are experts who can check your car's spark plugs for any problems. If you are experiencing problems starting your car, it can be any one of many issues including spark plugs, bring your automobile to 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree. If you have questions about your car call 781-843-1550 today to speak to an expert. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm

HINT: In addition to compromising the spark, leaking high-voltage electricity produces radio waves, which can cause interference with all types of on-car electronic devices, from sensors and computers to radios.

Celtics, State Lottery Honor McDonough As 'Hero'

Sean McDonough of North Quincy was recently honored by the Boston Celtics and the Massachusetts State Lottery as a local hero as part of the team's "Heroes Among Us" program.

McDonough has been a fixture on network television and radio for the past 17 years. After participating in many charitable events, McDonough decided it was time to make a personal commitment to help children in need in Massachusetts.

In 2002, with considerable assistance from his sister, Erin, and several friends, McDonough established the Sean McDonough Charitable Foundation. Its goal is to raise and distribute funds to children's charities throughout Massachusetts.

In its first four years, the foundation has given nearly $1.2 million to 66 different children's charities, helping thousands of young people throughout the Commonwealth.

The "Heroes Among Us" award is presented to an individual or individuals who, through their unique commitment and humanitarian spirit, have made exceptional and lasting contributions to our community.

At each home game since the program's inception, the Celtics and their fans have saluted the exemplary efforts of these citizens during a special in-game presentation on the team's legendary parquet floor. To date, more than 350 individuals have received the "Heroes Among Us" award.

Cancer Survivor Mark Porter Running Boston Marathon To Support Children's Hospital

Mark Porter of Quincy will fulfill a promise he made to himself last year as he enters the Boston Marathon as a member of the Children's Hospital Miles for Miracles Team.

Last March, he checked himself into a local hospital for what he thought was a routine surgery to remove a piece of metal from his stomach. Four days later, doctors informed Porter he had colon cancer.

Doctors were able to successfully treat his cancer and Porter credits the tremendous generosity of people who financially support patient care and medical research for making it possible for him to receive the best care possible.

While recovering, Porter promised he would do whatever he could to support advances in health care that would benefit future generations. Running the marathon and supporting Children's seemed like a great first step at making that promise a reality.

Porter's mission took a new meaning when he was introduced to his patient partner, 6-year-old Andy Trevino of Auburndale. Born in Mexico, Andy and his family traveled to Boston in 2001 looking for a diagnosis and cure for his health issues.

Doctors at Children's discovered that Trevino had a mutation on the Nuclear Factor Kappa B Essential Modifier (NEMO) gene. This mutation led to a life-threatening condition known as a Primary Immune Deficiency. Trevino has spent nearly a third of his life — 650 days — at Children's fighting for his life.

Doctors provided the Trevinos with three options to treat his condition, but the family decided to go with the option that would provide Andy with the strongest chance for a healthy life. A stem cell transplant would replace Andy's immune system and give him a new lesson on life.

Attempts to find a family member or a fully compatible donor through a bone marrow registry came up empty, so the Trevinos made the difficult choice of going through in vitro fertilization (IVF) to try and have another child who would be a genetic match.

In March 2004, the Trevinos welcomed their daughter, Sofia, into the world and doctors confirmed that her health made her a perfect match for the stem cell transplant. Andy underwent his transplant in October 2004 and by mid-November doctors confirmed that the transplant was a success and his body was starting to function with the donor cells. Despite a few inpatient stays over the months that would follow, Andy is progressing very well and recently entered school.

Porter says that winning his battle with cancer to run in the Boston Marathon is a walk in the park when compared to what Andy and his family have been through in the past six years. Learning Andy's story and getting to know the family has provided inspiration for Porter's training and drive to raise money to help the thousands of other patients that turn to Children's Hospital for help.

Funds from Miles for Miracles are directed toward unrestricted charitable support, allowing the hospital to allocate monies to areas of greatest need: patient care, medical research, recruitment and training, and community health initiatives. Children's Hospital runners have raised more than $5 million for the hospital since the program started.

Individuals interested in supporting Porter and Andy Trevino should visit www.chtrust.org/bostonmarathon and click on "Sponsor a Runner" or call 617-355-6890.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

When is a person old? A person is old when his fire of learning has died; when he refuses to take a chance and hides behind a cloak of security. When he refused to accept a challenge; when his vitality runs dry; when he resigns himself to passive thoughts; when meeting new people is 'just too much trouble' . . . That's when a person is old (and it may be at 30 or it may be at 80+).

Routine, uninspired living, lack of challenge, laziness, non-creative thinking . . . these are some of the robbers of growth, maturity and longevity. Without them, one dies prematurely at 90. With them one lives a full life, REGARDLESS of the calendar. As long as a person is changing and enjoying, he is not old.

Emerson said: "We do not count a man's years until he has nothing else to count!"

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Consider moving beyond the usual methods to find a more creative means of handling a difficult on-the-job situation. Avoid confrontation and, instead, aim for cooperation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Seasonal change creates a new look for the outdoors. It also inspires Taureans to redo their own environments, and this is a good week to start redoing both your home and workplace. Enjoy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A misunderstanding needs to be straightened out so the wrong impression isn't allowed to stand. If necessary, offer to support the use of a third party to act as an impartial arbitrator.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A career change offering what you want in money and responsibilities could involve moving to a new location. Discuss this with family members before making a decision.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Feeling miffed over how you believe you were treated is understandable. But before you decide to "set things straight," make sure the whole thing wasn't just a misinterpretation of the facts.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Showing you care makes it easier to build trust and gain an advantage in handling a delicate situation. What you learn from this experience will also help you understand yourself better.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Planning for the future is fine, especially if you include the roles that family members may be asked to play. Don't be surprised if some hidden emotions are revealed in the process.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Making choices highlights much of the week, and you have a head start here, thanks to your ability to grasp the facts of a situation and interpret them in a clear-cut manner.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Carrying a torch can be a two-way situation: It can either keep you tied to the past or help light your way to the future. The choice, as always, has to be yours.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your watchwords this week are: "Focus." "Focus." "Focus." Don't let yourself be distracted from what you set out to do. There'll be time later to look over other possibilities.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A workplace opportunity might require changes you're not keen on making. Discuss the plusses and minuses with someone familiar with the situation before you make a decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Love and romance are strong in your aspect this week. If you've already met the right person, expect your relationship to grow. And if you're still looking, odds are you'll soon be finding it.

BORN THIS WEEK: You approach life in a wise and measured manner, which gives you an edge in many areas.

A Job Well Done

By LT. DAN MINTON
Quincy Police Crime Prevention Officer

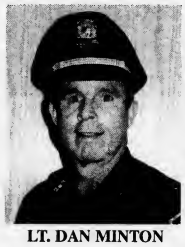
On March 2, at approximately 9 p.m., Officers Dennis Keenan and William O'Neill were dispatched to Furnace Brook Parkway to investigate a "hang-up" 911 call.

While en route, the dispatcher attempted to call back the residence, but it kept ringing busy. The officers knocked on the door and were met by an 88-year-old man, who said it was his home and initially stated there was no problem in the house.

Based on the officers' observations of the elderly man, who appeared nervous and upset, they asked if anyone else was in the home. A 45-year-old female came into view and identified herself. The officers inquired if others were there and the female said, "Yes, there are bodies everywhere."

Officer O'Neill sought and received permission to check the house for anything out of the ordinary. As Officer O'Neill checked the second floor, Officer Keenan learned from the female that she had been staying for about two weeks but "not technically living" there.

Officer O'Neill discovered numerous hypodermic syringes in a second floor bedroom, which also had a pocketbook and female clothing on the bed. The female was asked to show which room she was staying in and she led the officers to the same room where the syringes were.



Closer examination of one of the syringes showed a heroin-like substance inside the syringe. The female was arrested for "Possession of Heroin" and "Possession of a Hypodermic Needle."

Officer Keenan interviewed the elderly homeowner, who was shocked when the female was arrested. He said he had no idea drugs were being used in the house. He then admitted to calling 911 because the female suspect wanted to take his car and he did not want her driving it.

Since Officer Keenan had permission to search the house from the owner, he, along with Officer O'Neill, conducted a thorough check of the suspect's bedroom. This was a legal search because the female was not paying any rent and had no expectation of privacy there.

Officer Keenan found loose checks from the elderly man's checkbook as well as his department store credit cards, which the victim was shocked to learn about. Officer O'Neill found a metal spoon with cotton and brown residue, which, based on their training and experience, they believed this was paraphernalia used to cook heroin. More used spoons and a total of 24 syringes were found inside the bedroom bureau. The cards and checks were returned to the victim and the drug paraphernalia taken as evidence.

This was excellent work by two officers who prevented an elderly man from losing everything he had. But the story doesn't end here. During the search of the bedroom, Officer Keenan found a cell phone and credit card receipts dated Feb. 28, 2006. This perked his interest because he investigated the larceny of a credit card, cash, a driver's license and a cell phone from a pocketbook at the North Quincy post office.

LT. DAN MINTON

Prior to this victim canceling her credit card, it was used at a local food store in Quincy. The receipt was from the same store. Officer Keenan contacted this victim and asked her to call her cell phone number. Less than 10 seconds later, Officer Keenan was speaking to the victim on her cell phone in the elderly man's home.

It was also determined the total expense on the store credit card slip and the female victim's credit statement were the exact same amount. Officer Keenan met with the female victim in the lobby and returned her cell phone. He then added "Larceny under $250 (cell phone)" and "Larceny/Misuse of a Credit Card" to the suspect's booking sheet.

The suspect, a 45-year-old Quincy female, and her boyfriend, who the officers believe was also staying at the house, are well known for their criminal records and drug abuse.

Officer Keenan also filed an "Elder Abuse" report and South Shore Elder Services will be looking into the victim's situation. The victim was reluctant to speak of his connection with the suspect(s) other than to say he thought that "she" was a nice person and needed a place to live.

As a follow-up, Community Policing Lt. Brian Tobin and two of his officers joined me on a surprise visit to the home. In addition to checking on the well being of the victim, I also wanted to know if the suspect(s) returned. After receiving permission, we searched the house but no one else was there.

Surprisingly, the elder victim denied ever calling 911 and did not want his "friend" arrested. To prevent being victimized again, frequent checks will be made by the local community-policing officer and neighbors have been advised to call the police of anyone suspicious comes around.

I have contacted one of the victim's children and they are now aware and involved. Efforts will also be made to set up "Meals on Wheels" as well as other services through South Shore Elder Services.

Nice work!

Manet Health Center Receives ADA Award For Diabetes Program

The Manet Community Health Center was recently awarded the American Diabetes Association Education Recognition Certificate for its quality diabetes self-management education programs.

The program was originally recognized last year by ADA for offering high quality education as an essential component of effective diabetes treatment.

The Association's Education Recognition Certificate assures that educational programs meet the National Standards for Diabetes Self-Management Education Programs. These standards were developed and tested under the auspices of the National Diabetes Advisory Board in 1983 and were revised by the diabetes community in 1994 and 2000.

Programs apply for recognition voluntarily, and those that achieve recognition status have a staff of knowledgeable health professionals who can provide participants with comprehensive information about diabetes management.

"The process gives professionals a national standard by which to measure the quality of service they provide," said Toni McGuire, Manet Community Health Center CEO. "And, of course, it assures the consumer that he or she will likely receive high-quality service." Education Recognition status is verified by an official certificate from ADA and awarded for three years."

According to the American Diabetes Association, there are 20.8 million people or seven percent of the population in the United States who have diabetes. While an estimated 14.6 million have been diagnosed, unfortunately, 6.2 million people are not aware that they have this disease. Each day approximately 4,110 people are diagnosed with diabetes. Many will first learn that they have diabetes when they are treated for one of its life-threatening complications-heart disease and stroke, kidney disease, blindness, and nerve disease and amputation. About 1.5 million new cases of diabetes were diagnosed in people aged 20 years or older in 2005. Diabetes contributed to 224,092 deaths in 2002. Since 1987, the death rates due to heart disease, stroke, and cancer have declined.

The American Diabetes Association is the nation's leading non-profit health organization supporting diabetes research, advocacy and information for health professionals, patients and the public. Founded in 1940, the Association has an area office in every state and conducts programs in communities nationwide.

ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL, which opened in 1927, will close June 21, a casualty of financial problems and low enrollment. Quincy Sun photo/Robert Noble

Church To Remain Open

St. Joseph's School Closing Saddens Parishioners

By TOM HENSHAW

The same economic crunch that has closed Catholic churches all over the Boston Archdiocese has caught up with St. Joseph's parochial school in Quincy Point.

The Rev. Vincent Doolan, the pastor of St. Joseph's Church, announced at masses last weekend that the 79-year-old school would close June 21 in the face of an expected $100,000 deficit.

He assured parishioners that the church itself would remain open and disclosed plans to raise $200,000 to fix the roof of the church and the front and rear entryways of the rectory.

Parishioners with children in the school were given official word of the closing at a meeting with Father Doolan Friday night.

"I'm more saddened than shocked," said Mary Ellen Brennan, who lives on Connell Street in West Quincy but sends two of her three children to St. Joseph's School in the Point.

"We could see it coming. The enrollment wasn't there. I feel sad for the teachers. I've watched them struggling for a couple of years.

"I feel for the principal, Sister Kate Kinnally. She was only in her second year. I don't think she has had a chance to turn it around."

Father Doolan said in a statement that was passed out after mass that enrollment has been declining over the past five years, with 150 students there now and 85 enrolled for the 2006-07 year.

"It is my hope," he said in the statement, "that you will want your child to continue his/her education in another Catholic school," of which there are only three left in Quincy.

They are St. Mary's School in West Quincy, St. Ann's School in Wollaston and Sacred Heart School in North Quincy, although Quincy kids also can be sent to parochial schools in other towns.

Brennan said she went out and enrolled her two daughters in St. Ann's School Monday.

"My oldest daughter is headed into the eighth grade," she added. "We're looking forward to a new set of teachers at St. Ann's."

Brennan also has a second daughter at St. Joseph's and a son in the Atherton Hough School, a public school in Houghs Neck.

Most parishioners with connections to the school viewed the closing sadly but philosophically.

"I'm sorry to see it go," said Eleanor McBride of Curtis Avenue, whose grandparents were among those who started the school in 1927 with cake sales, raffles and other fundraisers.

"I guess families are not as large as they were once. A lot of people have moved out."

90% 'Misleading' Says Keenan

QHS Reimbursement Now Seen At 60%

By MIKAELA SLANEY

The original estimate of 90 percent state-funded reimbursement for the new Quincy High School is now seen as an approximate 60 percent.

"We keep hearing and reading about 90 percent, and I think that is misleading," said Councillor John Keenan at Monday's Council Meeting.

State support for the high school is capped at $72 million, currently, while construction costs are at an estimated $120 to $130 million, possibly higher, he said. These figures have a reimbursement rate of approximately 60 percent, Keenan said.

The publicized 90 percent reimbursement rate came from 2003 construction estimates of $80 million. Since that time, estimates have increased drastically, and no further vote has been taken by the council, since their 2004 acceptance of the figures of 2003.

Keenan proposed amendments to the 2004 bonding authority order, which supported the construction of the high school at 90 percent reimbursement. The amendment will be sent to the finance committee.

JOHN KEENAN

Included in the amendment was an invitation for Mayor William Phelan to appear before the council, and present updated construction figures.

"We need to bring the order back," Keenan said, "the mayor will need additional funds."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi questioned the validity of the original bonding authority order, and whether it needs amendments to be legally sufficient.

"The problem is, we were told by the city solicitor, that without 90 percent reimbursement, the school would not be built. That's not true," said Raymondi.

The source of funding for the additional construction costs is yet to be determined.

Phelan, with the School Committee, will host a public hearing, Wednesday, March 22, at the Thomas Crane Public Library, to discuss design proposals for the new Quincy High School.

MCAS Tests Scheduled At North Quincy H.S.

MCAS tests will be held at North Quincy High School March 28-29-30.

Grade 10 students will report to their test centers by 7:45 a.m. on those dates.

All other grades will have a delayed entry. They will report to their homerooms at 10:20 a.m. March 28-29 and at 9:45 a.m. March 30.

Church's Same-Sex Marriage Banner To Face Final Test Monday

The Historic District Commission will meet Monday, March 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall with the question of the same-sex marriage banner at United First Parish Church on the agenda.

The controversial meeting comes amid reports that attorneys for the church will question the jurisdiction of the Historic District Commission in a case involving a church.

If the dimension (34 feet, nine inches) of the banner and its location (high on the front pillars of the church) are okay with the Commission, the banner will go up around April 1.

The Rev. Sheldon Bennett, pastor of the church, said it will stay up for 60 days while the state legislature debates a constitutional amendment forbidden gay marriage.

A story in the March 16 edition of The Quincy Sun indicated that the Zoning Board of Appeals had given its approval to a banner.

Actually, the Zoning Board did not have to rule on the variance sought by the church once the display time was reduced from 90 to 60 days. The Sun regrets the confusion raised by the wording of its story.

Proceeds From Christmas CD To Benefit Homeless Children

Quincy Point Congregational Church Donates $10,000 To Quincy Schools

Quincy Point Congregational Church recently presented a $10,000 check to Quincy Public Schools' Project Access which provides rights and special services to homeless children.

The money was raised by producing a music CD entitled 'Tis the Season, A Quincy Christmas. The CD was produced by Quincy Point Congregational Church to raise awareness and funding for Project Access.

Lynne Penney and the Rev. Ann Suzedell, church pastor, presented the check to Janet Powell and Isabel Ventre from Project Access at a recent worship service.

The money was formally received by the School Committee at their March 15th meeting.

While there are still a few CDs left, the check represented the proceeds to date for the sale of the CD.

The church thanks four Quincy church choirs: St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Bethany Congregational Church, Houghs Neck Congregational Church and Quincy Point Congregational Church, together with Fr. Vincent Doolan on guitar; Peter Kolson, Tom Clasby, Jr. with guitarist Mark J. Carey, vocalist Kristen Huberdeau, vocalist Lutfullah Bulent Guneralp, keyboardist Paul Huberdeau, vocalists and guitarists John Robie and Susan Dolan, and bagpipers Matthew McArthur and Dr. Curtis W. Penney, who all donated their time and talent to the CD.

Project Access provides rights and special services to homeless children to help them succeed in school: those living in cars, the street, abandoned buildings, shelters, transitional housing, motels, bridge homes (group homes for emergency placement), double-up (living with friends or family due to economic hardship), domestic violence shelters and unaccompanied youth, who no longer live with their parents.

In 2004, Project Access helped 213 children in Quincy. Today, Massachusetts 20,000 children are homeless. Nationwide, it is estimated that 1.35 million children will experience homelessness over the course of a year.

Project Access provides transportation, clothing, bedding, medicine and eyeglasses, school supplies, after school programs, counseling, proper nutrition and academic support to Quincy's homeless children. Thanks to this program, many of the homeless children have succeeded both academically and emotionally.

Unfortunately, the number of homeless families is the fastest growing segment of the homeless population. In 1996, Congress passed the McKinney-Vento Homeless Act and Grant, which protects children's educational rights. The Act, which supports this program, was cut by 17 percent this year, making it difficult to provide all the services that the growing number of homeless children need.

"It does take a community to raise a child," said Rev. Suzedell. "With the support of the South Shore community and beyond, our children will succeed academically, socially and emotionally. Our students without homes can and deserve to dream and succeed."

To make a donation, make checks payable to Homeless Program and mail to Quincy Public Schools, Student Support Services, 70 Coddington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Rice Eventide Auxiliary Card Party March 27

The Rice Eventide Auxiliary will hold its annual Card Party Monday, March 27, at 1:30 p.m. at the home.

The auxiliary has been sponsoring this fund-raiser for many years and the moneys it raises provides for many of the "extras" the auxiliary is able to give residents for their birthday and Christmas presents and for the entertainment programs that are held at their regular monthly meetings.

Members are asked to donate plants to be sold as well as desserts for the food table and refreshments for those who attend.

Relatives and friends are asked to support and attend the fund-raiser. Refreshments will be served.

Correction

A story in the March 16, 2006 Quincy Sun reported the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals had given its "tacit approval" to the request of the United First Parish Church to erect a temporary banner.

According to ZBA Chairman Jack Garland, the Zoning Board did not give approval.

At the March 7, 2006 meeting of the Zoning Board of Appeals, the First Parish Church asked to withdraw their application for the banner. The ZBA allowed the Church to withdraw their application requiring no further action by the Board.

The Sun regrets the error.

Long Hearing On Alleged Open Bar Violation Continued

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After a five-hour hearing on an alleged liquor violation at the Water Club at Marina Bay on New Year's Eve, 2005, the License Board Tuesday continued the hearing until April 11.

Before the hearing began, Atty. Steve Tobin, counsel for the Water Club requested an executive session which was approved by the board by a 4-1 vote with Health Commissioner Drew Scheele dissenting.

Lt. Peter Turowski, liquor agent for the board said that he suspected that William P. O'Connell, the manager the night of the event was going to have an "open bar" which Turowski said is illegal when tickets are sold.

Turowski said that tickets were sold at $100 each that included an open bar He said he never saw the bartenders ringing up any drinks or take any credit cards indicating that they were not paying for them.

Tobin questioned Turowski at great lengths to how he came to certain conclusions as to the open bar, and the relationship between O'Connell and Kristie Hendrickson, who was the manager on record at the Water Club.

The meeting went on for more than 4 hours as more questions were asked from the board to O'Connell.

O'Connell explained that the crowd that attended the party were all paying their drinks with tabs. He said at the end of the night each person paid him in cash. He said no credit cards were used that night.

Turowski said he asked a computer company that supposedly prints the receipts at the Water Club if it is possible to verify O'Connell's statements. The answer was no. However, the big surprise of the meeting was the submission of receipts presented by Tobin.

And as the board members began reading the receipts more questioned were asked about the drinks ordered. O'Connell explained that if one ordered a Long Island Tea, and a button was pushed it might indicated another drink instead.

Chairman Joseph Shea asked O'Connell what persons received for $100 since they had to pay for their drinks. He said he served hor'deuvres and then later a buffet of sausages and eggs. He admitted though, that the appetizers "went in about five minutes." He said also that free tickets to the Celtics game were raffled off as well as other prizes.

Shea called a brief recess before the board voted to continue. Scheele said the statements made were an "awful lot to swallow" and made the motion to continue.

Tobin said as he was listening to the questions, it became clear to him that the hearing should be continued.

At the time, board members said they wanted the bartenders and any other witnesses to attend the meeting.

• On March 20, 1852, Harriet Beecher Stowe's anti-slavery novel, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," is published. The novel, written in reaction to tightened fugitive slave laws, sold 300,000 copies within three months.

• On March 25, 1911, at the Triangle Shirtwaist Company in New York's Lower East Side, a fire quickly engulfs the factory and claims 146 lives in less than an hour. Trapped inside the flaming building, many of the workers either expired from asphyxiation or leapt from windows — a fatal, 10-story fall. The company's owners were eventually found guilty on charges of manslaughter.

• On March 22, 1929, Will Rogers signs with Fox to write and star in four films for $600,000. With the dawn of talking pictures in the late 1920s, Rogers became a top box-office draw. His films included "Happy Days" (1929) and "A Connecticut Yankee" (1931).

Unlike giveaway game shows where the draw was huge cash prizes, "Truth or Consequences" paid only $15 for right answers. Corned Beef, Cabbage And Political Ribs

Photos On Pages 12, 13

The main course was traditional corned beef and cabbage but there were plenty of political ribs also on the menu at the Quincy Partnership's 10th annual St. Patrick's Day Celebration.

SHEA

FLYNN

It was an afternoon of jabs, zingers, barbs and laughs for the near 300 who filled the Quincy Elks Tirrell Room for the luncheon-roast co-emceed by City Clerk Joe Shea and real estate developer-manager Dan Flynn.

PHELAN

CAHILL

Some of the best shots were from Mayor Bill Phelan and state Treasurer Tim Cahill who have been feuding over the site of the new Quincy High School and Sheriff Michael Bellotti who "tried" to pass an olive branch to them.

Flynn got things rolling by holding up a copy of The Sun and referring to the Sunbeams column on Frank McCauley selecting Dan Raymondi to give the eulogy at his funeral.

"Unbelievable!" Flynn declared.

Then to Phelan, sitting in front of him, he said: "Mayor, there are nine people who have volunteered to do yours."

Phelan, thanking Council President Doug Gutro for attending the luncheon, said Dan Raymondi as president didn't have "the anatomy" to attend and Frank McCauley "was too cheap to buy a ticket."

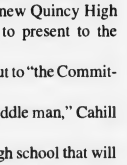
Raymondi was on vacation in Florida.

Phelan noted that Joe Finn who almost ran against him last year — and might yet — was among those attending. Finn held a recent fund-raiser.

"Joe is here," Phelan said, "to see what a hall looks like with more than 12 people."

"Thank you for living in Quincy," Phelan told to Gutro. And, to Cahill, "thank you for finally remembering you live in Quincy." An obvious jab for Cahill's past opposition to proposed sites for the new Quincy High School and now his clearing the way.

Phelan noted that Terry Lord-Piatelli, chairwoman of the Quincy College Board of Governors and a former adversary, was sitting at his table.



"You and I," he said to Cahill, "may yet patch things up."

It almost looked like they did when Cahill announced: "Quincy will receive $72 million for the new Quincy High School. And I have a check right here to present to the mayor."

The mock check, however, was made out to "the Committee to Elect William Phelan."

"I just thought we'd cut through the middle man," Cahill joked.

Cahill said he had a new plan for the high school that will cost "next to nothing" and produced a photo of the Huntly Rd. home of former Mayor Arthur Tobin, Phelan's father-in-law.

BELLOTTI

Bellotti took on the role of "peacemaker" in the Phelan-Cahill feud.

"We have got to get them together," he stressed. "We need them. They have got to work together. They have got to go out together . . . They have got to get close."

He then tossed a couple of girlish looking cowboy hats, one pink to Phelan and the other red to Cahill, mentioning something about "Brokeback Mountain."

Bellotti brought up the same-sex marriage banner First Parish Church wants to display. The bad news for the church, he said, is "the Concourse route has been changed . . . it will now go straight through the church."

Bellotti said Dick Cheney is coming to Quincy to campaign for Kerry Healey for governor. But no need for Democrats to worry. "Police Chief Robert Crowley will be there to take away all his guns."

GUTRO

Gutro observed: "It's nice to see the mayor repairing his frayed relationships."

He said Phelan is negotiating with the new owner of WJDA for fair and balanced news coverage. And for Tom Largey, City Hall's man for all seasons, to replace Joe Catalano. Phelan also wants to change the WJDA call letters to WINK, he said.

Shea did his popular "Amazing Shea-Zack" ala the late Johnny Carson routine, answers before the question, with Flynn in the Ed McMahon role. Among them:

A: Quincy first grader, Stevie Wonder, Sheriff Bellotti.

Q: Three people who couldn't find the House of Correction.

A: Lee Remick, Howard Johnson, Tim Cahill.

NEWTON

Q: Three famous people who used to live in Quincy.

Former Ward 6 Councillor Joe Newton produced a video satire of an alleged murder in the City Council with actors and cartoon characters portraying the roles. You really have to see it to appreciate it. Funny enough for an Academy Award nomination.

HANLEY

Former Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley, now a Pembroke resident, announced he is running for state representative in the 6th Plymouth District, challenging Republican incumbent Daniel Webster, a direct descendant of the Great Orator.

"I thought it was Henry Wordsworth Longfellow," Flynn injected.

Hanley has been politically active in Pembroke as chairman of the Wages and Personnel Committee and the Recreation Commission.

He returned to Quincy to present an award of appreciation from the town of Pembroke to Phyllis Godwin, owner of Granite City Electric, for providing the lighting for a new field.

But also left this political note:

"I'll be Quincy's fourth representative."

Troubadours Tom Clasby and Mark Carey and Quincy comedian Paul O'Donnell entertained and Pat McDermott closed it out with "Danny Boy."

Shock honors for the day went to a masked, scantily clad woman carrying a whip who marched to the podium while Phelan was speaking.

She apparently was dressed to look like a Quincy dominatrix recently acquitted of a manslaughter charge. She supposedly was looking to get her equipment back. Phelan went along with the gag.

It was all in fun. (I think)

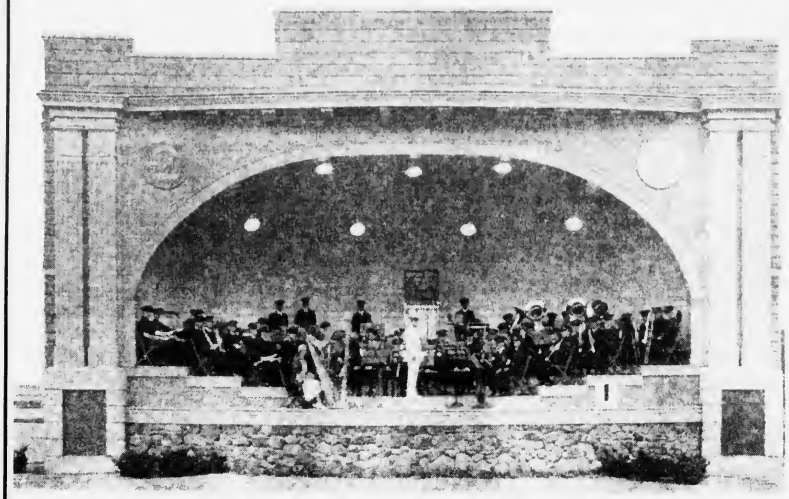
On a serious side: The event netted the Quincy Partnership approximately $2,500, estimates Tom Koch, who chaired the luncheon with Bob Galligan and Joe Shea.

KOCH

The money will go to a Quincy Partnership worthy cause.

And there have been a number of civic and cultural causes undertaken by the group. Like:

Commissioning of the bronze statues of John Adams, Abigail Adams with John Quincy Adams as a boy, uplighting historic sites and providing those inviting "Welcome To Quincy Signs" at the entrances to the city.



The Partnership has also contributed $75,000 toward the granite decorative fountain that will be a focus point in the restored Merrymount Park.

A tip of the derby to:

Chairman Ed Keohane, Joyce Baker, Richard Barry, Mark Bertman, Bob Curry, Dan Flynn, Bob Galligan, Tom Galvin, Tom Koch, Mike McFarland, Jim Mullaney, John O'Connor, Marianne Peak, Maureen Rogers, Joe Shea, Don Uvanitte and Sandra Williams.

A St. Patrick's pat on the back.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS a 1932 real-photo postcard reproduction showing the Walter M. Smith Memorial Shell that was at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park. This view shows Walter Smith's 50-piece Jenney Band giving a classical concert here when it was first built. He was a nationally known Quincy bandleader and cornet player who gave dozens of concerts in the shell. He died five years after it was built and it was then named after him. Funds to build the shell came from the Quincy Employment Service Bureau, an organization founded by a group of prominent Quincy citizens to create and secure work for Quincy's unemployed early in the Depression. These were private funds raised before the WPA and other federal relief programs were formed by the Roosevelt administration. In addition to raising money, materials were donated; for example, the Grossman family donated the granite for the shell's pilasters. After Smith died the shell got little use, particularly during World War II. In 1952, due to unchecked vandalism and a lack of maintenance funds the city decided to demolish it. D.A.R.E. Soliciting Hurts Local Cause

I found Lt. Dan Minton's information contained in a recent column as Quincy's Police Crime Prevention Officer to be most helpful. We often are confronted at supermarkets by folks soliciting money for various causes.

Passing on a phone call he had recently with a caller who had been shopping at Wal-Mart who made a donation to the D.A.R.E. program. She was concerned whether or not the person soliciting donations was in fact working for D.A.R.E.

Turns out it was legit but Lt. Minton gave the shopper and all Quincy Sun readers some good advice to remember the next time someone is trying to get money from you.

The solicitor for D.A.R.E. funds actually worked for a telemarketing firm that the national office of D.A.R.E. authorized to solicit on its behalf. He also found out the company received 80 percent of all donations collected and that D.A.R.E. received only 20 cents on the dollar. A great deal for the telemarketing company.

A few months back, a D.A.R.E. table was set up outside the Newport Avenue Shop & Shop doing pretty much the same thing, except in this case they were selling T-shirts and trinkets all with the D.A.R.E. logo printed on them.

When I asked them about Quincy D.A.R.E. Officer John Grazioso, they gave me the blank stare treatment. They didn't know Grazioso and probably needed a road map to find the Stop & Shop.

The bigger and more important question to ask is why the D.A.R.E. national office is doing something that really doesn't seem to be of great benefit to any children or Quincy kids in particular? Is it all about p.r. for them? Sell a few T-shirts and move onto Wal-Mart?

As a special state police officer working for the state Dept. of Mental Health for more than 20 years, I have seen firsthand so many folks young and old battling drug and alcohol addictions. D.A.R.E. does a great job on the local level with dedicated police officers like John Grazioso and their efforts can be effectively undercut by bad experiences with solicitors who seem to be practicing quasi-deceptive fundraising.

Shouldn't the national office be working with local D.A.R.E. folks before showing up in Quincy or anywhere else? Hopefully, the next time you cross paths with someone from D.A.R.E. selling T-shirts, you tell them you already support local D.A.R.E. efforts. Just say no to the T-shirts and don't feel guilty.

New Court Site Becomes An Issue

March 23-29
1969
37 Years Ago

Former Norfolk County Commissioner Russell Bates called the proposed land taking on Chestnut Street for a new $2 million court house "a big mistake."

He said it would take $100,000 off the tax rolls annually and use of city land off Sea Street would save money in land taking, and would preserve the city's tax base.

If the Sea Street land were not available, in the alternative, Bates suggested the courthouse be built in Braintree on county-owned land. The Braintree site would save $500,000 in land taking costs and would better serve the growing towns of the county, he said.

William O'Connell, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said it was "short-sight" to locate the courthouse outside Quincy Square.

Atty. Albert Slate, who with his brother, Harold Slate, owned the largest part of the parcel on Chestnut Street, said of the county commissioner's choice, "It doesn't seem to be the very best decision."

ENC TO RAZE MANSION

Officials at Eastern Nazarene College announced plans to raze the old Quincy Mansion and replace it with a new, two-story, semi-colonial designed building.

Once the home of Boston Mayor Josiah Quincy, the 1849 Georgian mansion was used by the Mansion School before its purchase by the college when it relocated to Wollaston from Rhode Island in 1919.

The mansion had been used for classrooms and a men's dormitory.

DARTMOUTH SUES WOODWARD

Dartmouth College sued Woodward School because the school ended a 75-year tradition of admitting only Quincy-born girls.

Under the terms of the will of Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, if the school closed, the property would be taken over by Dartmouth.

Arguing that admitting non-Quincy-born students would not violate the purpose of the Woodward gift was Woodward alumna, Atty. Ruth Paven of Wollaston Avenue.

QUINCY-ISMS

Four hundred students walked out of chapel at ENC in support of Dean Donald Brickley. "The restaurants and food are excellent and the staff is stupendous. I'm extremely happy."

Like many, Glen Crowell had lived in his Quincy house for a long time and was a little hesitant to move to Linden Ponds, a dynamic community for people 62-plus. But after taking a closer look, he decided it was the perfect place.

"Everything that you'd ever need is here. I don't have to go anywhere or drive a car to get anything. It's a very convenient place to live," says Glen.

Since moving to Linden Ponds, Glen is using the time he used to spend on his house to do other things. "I golf, garden, and bowl in the wintertime, mostly with the friends I've made here at Linden Ponds," says Glen. "I also enjoy the woodwork and hobby shop; I play pool, and go to the Fitness Center three times a week."

You too can start enjoying the enviable Linden Ponds lifestyle.

Do you have trouble falling asleep or sleeping through the night?

Worried about a loved one's snoring, sleepwalking or restless legs?

Or concerned that your constant travel or work schedule is affecting your sleep health?

Quincy Medical Center (QMC) will host a free HealthMatters health education lecture focused on Getting a Good Night's Sleep Wednesday, March 29 from 6 to 7 p.m., 114 Whitwell St., Quincy.

Dr. Sanford Auerbach, medical director of the Quincy Medical Center Sleep Disorders Center, will lead the free lecture. A board certified neurologist and sleep medicine physician, Dr. Auerbach is also director of the Sleep Disorders Center at Boston Medical Center. He received his medical degree from New York Medical College and completed his medical internship at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Dr. Auerbach completed his training in Neurology and a fellowship in Behavioral Neurology at Boston University School of Medicine.

The free lecture series is open to the public. Light refreshments will be served.

Advance registration is requested and available, 24-hours per day and seven days per week, by calling the QMC Physician Referral Service at 1-877-479-CARE (2273).

About 70 million Americans suffer from a sleep problem and nearly 60 percent have a chronic disorder, according to National Institutes of Health research.

In the short-term, sleep deprivation can lead to memory loss, mental confusion, morning headaches, irritability, decreased ability to concentrate, and feelings of anxiety and depression.

If untreated, sleep disorders can cause long-term health effects including high blood pressure, heart failure, diabetes, stroke, weakened immune systems, and obesity.

Quincy College Offers Bridge Program To Hull High Students

In an effort to increase the number of area high school students going on to college, Quincy College has signed a dual-enrollment agreement with neighboring Hull High School.

The agreement will allow Hull High School juniors and seniors to enroll in college level classes that will be taught at the high school. In addition to taking college level courses, successful dual-enrollment students at Hull High School will be guaranteed admission to all Quincy College associate degree programs, excluding Allied Health.

President of Quincy College, Sue Harris said she is excited about the opportunity to reach out to local high school students and let them see that a college education is a very viable option.

"According to recent studies including The Toolbox Revisited (U.S. Dept. of Education, February 2006), one of the keys for student success in college is for educational institutions to work together to help young people formulate educational goals and a plan that will allow for their future success.

"We hope that our dual-enrollment program with Hull High School will be one step toward joining with other local school departments to foster this type of long-range planning that our young people need to be involved in at an earlier age," Harris said.

Hull High School Principal Jonathan Ford called the agreement "a win-win situation" for everyone involved.

"Students here at the high school can receive a year of college courses under their belt at a reduced cost, there are more course options for students, and our faculty is excited with the new opportunities for teaching college level courses," Ford said.

Hull High School students will pay a $25 per credit for the first year of the program and Quincy College has also agreed to waive the admissions fee for dual-enrollment students.

While Quincy College will be providing the college curriculum, instructional partnerships with the college faculty and recordkeeping, Hull High School will provide classroom space, instructors that meet or exceed Quincy College faculty qualifications, and academic support services for students enrolled in the bridge program.

"Bringing Quincy College to our campus will hopefully encourage students to consider the benefits of a community college, particularly a college that is so close to their home. This program can reach those students who tend to shy away from AP courses and the idea of pursuing education after high school," Ford added.

For more information on the bridge program between Quincy College and Hull High School contact Quincy College at 617-984-1640 or Hull High School Principal Jonathan Ford at 781-925-3000 ext.1103.

Jabs, Barbs And Laughs At 10th Annual Quincy Partnership Luncheon

St. Patrick's Day, Quincy Style

STATE TREASURER Tim Cahill presents a mock check of $72 million to Mayor William Phelan for the new Quincy High School, jokingly made out to "the Committee to elect Mayor Phelan."

HIS NEW SITE for the Quincy High School is displayed by Treasurer Tim Cahill, the home of former Mayor Arthur Tobin, Mayor Phelan's father-in-law.

CITY CLERK Joseph Shea did his popular Amazing Shea-Zac (ala Johnny Carson) routine with Dan Flynn in the role of Ed McMahon.

SHERIFF MICHAEL BELLOTTI waves two cowboy hats he presented to Mayor William Phelan and state Treasurer Tim Cahill hoping to end their feud and bring them "close."

SHE WASN'T LISTED on the program but she got everyone's attention when she suddenly appeared at the podium while Mayor William Phelan was speaking. She apparently was dressed to look like a recently acquitted Quincy dominatrix.

CITY COUNCIL PRESIDENT Doug Gutro tells Mayor William Phelan he's glad to see him "repairing your frayed relationships." He is flanked by Dan Flynn and Joe Shea.

ON A SERIOUS NOTE, former Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley, representing the town of Pembroke where he now lives, presented an appreciation award to Phyllis Godwin, owner of Granite City Electric, for providing the lighting for a new field in that town. Co-emcee Dan Flynn is at the right.

PART OF THE near 300 who enjoyed the St. Patrick's Day festivities at the Quincy Elks Lodge.

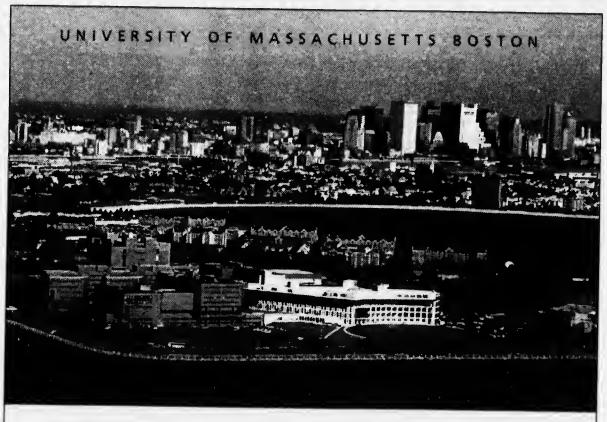
THOUGH THEY'VE HAD their differences over the new Quincy High School, Mayor William Phelan and state Treasurer Tim Cahill were all smiles as they joined Tom Koch, co-chairman of the event.

REGISTER OF PROBATE Pat McDermott closed out the St. Patrick's Day festivities with "Danny Boy." Accompanying him was Mark Carey, executive director, Discover Quincy.

Quincy Sun photos/Robert Noble



FORMER CITY COUNCIL President Chuck Phelan, retired city Auditor Bob Foy and Rhonda Merrill enjoyed the festivities.

CO-EMCEE Dan Flynn holds up a copy of The Quincy Sun with a Sunbeams column on Frank McCauley selecting Dan Raymondi to give the eulogy at his funeral. Flynn had some related news for Mayor William Phelan.

Civilian Conservation Corps To Celebrate 73rd Anniversary At State House March 30

The Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) will celebrate its 73rd anniversary Thursday, March 30 at noon in Room 2B at the State House in Boston, announces Francis J. Derwin of Quincy, the Northeastern Regional Director for the National Association Civilian Conservation Corps Inc.

In 2002 the governor proclaimed March 31 as Civilian Conservation Corps Day. Each year, a proclamation is issued recognizing the contribution of its 100,000 members who helped build roads, construct bridges and towers and preserve the nation from 1933 to 1942.

Since 2002 there have been annual events taking place throughout the state honoring a person or organization that contributed with charity to the CCC.

Each year a new "theme" and a new "honoree" is selected. This year's theme is the Educational Program honoring the Educational Advisor of the camps. One educational advisor was assigned to a camp; some advisors served more than one "camp."

Derwin said there were many camps in the Commonwealth, an estimated 28. The number of Massachusetts "enrollees" in the nine-year existence of the Civilian Conservation Corps were 100,000 young men. Many enrollees took advantage of educational advice offered with great results during his CCC time and into civilian life.

For more information, contact Francis Derwin at 617-471-5664.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Plan A Home Fire Escape Route

I'd like to highlight a few aspects of a public fire safety announcement from the office of the State Fire Marshal. It has to do with being proactive, preplanning an escape from your home in the event of a fire.

"When fire strikes... you may have less than one minute to safely get out of the building."

This fact alone highlights the importance of working smoke detectors for early notification and practicing home fire escape drills for safe evacuation.

"Fires double in size every minute."

The time to develop an escape plan isn't during an actual emergency. Smoke obscures visibility while it can easily confuse and effect our judgment. Following your escape plan in an emergency should be an automatic response.

"Plan a home fire escape route."

Locate all windows, halls and stairways that can be used to exit the building. Make certain door locks and window latches are functional, working properly. Make certain windows are not painted shut or too difficult to open. Security bars, if present, should have a quick release feature.

"Have two ways out of each room. Crawl low beneath smoke."

Where heat and smoke tend to rise, the freshest, coolest air will be down low by the floor. Roll out of bed onto the floor and crawl to a primary exit and if unusable, your predetermined secondary exit. A secondary exit can be another doorway, stairway or window. Never use an elevator as a means of escape. If you must go to a window, don't jump, turn on the room lights, open the window and signal for help.

"Choose a meeting place."

Choose a spot outside and away from the home where all family members can meet and confirm each other's safety. How tragic would it be to have all family members escape and someone then reenter not knowing all are well and safe. Designate a meeting spot to confirm full evacuation.

"Call 911 from a neighbor's house."

"Practice, practice, practice!"

Discuss your plan with family members so that everyone understands their options. Review your plan occasionally, conduct an actual drill and do so during the evening hours as well, simulating an evacuation while all are in their bedrooms. Will someone need assistance? Then predetermine a plan to help that family member. If you know someone is difficult to awaken, be aware of that fact as well.

"Remember... when the alarm sounds:"

- Leave the building.
- Get out, stay out!
- Go to the family meeting place.
- Dial 911 from a neighbor's house.
- Wait at the meeting place for the fire department to arrive. Let them know if everyone is safe.

Girl Scout Troops 4202, 4157 Recognized By Council

Cadette Senior Girl Scout Troop 4202, and Junior Girl Scout Troop 4157 of Quincy, were recognized Monday night by the city council for earning the highest awards in their levels, the silver and bronze awards, respectively.

"It's refreshing," said Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis. "I think these young women are what's right about Quincy."

"These young ladies have set a fine example for all of their peers," said Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, who presented the girls with the citations.

Cadettes are scouts up to grade 10, and Junior Scouts are up to grade 7.

Led by Judy Morash, Senior Cadette Troop 4202 includes: Rachel Barrett, Catherine Farrell, Amanda La Montagne, Carla O'Connor and Courtney Wills, (Wills and Barrett were unable to attend the council meeting.).

Led by Rebecca Lampert-Egan, Junior Troop 4157 includes: Kathryn Doherty, Abigail Egan, Montana McBirney and Nicole Regal.

Troop 4202 Cadettes completed two projects, that encourage the development of language skills in children

They are the first Quincy recipients of the Silver Metal in 13 years, according to Morash

Four Cadette Scouts collected and delivered 45 packages to the South Shore Hospital nursery. The packages included books and instructional pamphlets to familiarize new parents with the importance of literacy from an early age.

Each book included an attached poem about the joys of reading, and the packages were distributed with the help of Head Nurse Linda Digsby.

Their efforts served the Reach-Out-And-Read organization, which has distributed books through hospitals to children, aged six months through five years, nationally, for the past 15 years.

Through two years of fundraising events, O'Connor has stocked 400 reference and scholastic books in the St. Anne reading room for the school's after-school reading program. The program serves 120 Quincy children, grades one through eight.

Junior Scout Troop 4157 earned the bronze award for their efforts to support Iraqi girls, last November.

They carried out "Operation Dolls," creating and shipped 15 dolls to Iraq. The dolls, made to look like each of the scouts, were dressed and covered like observant Muslim girls. Each came with a letter of introduction.

Christopher Williams of Hanover helped with the cooperative efforts of both the US Army and the Iraqi National Army to deliver the dolls.

The scouts sent information about the Girl Scout program with the dolls, in an effort to spread the program's codes of courage, confidence and character.

Iraq is awaiting approval and the practical opportunity to join the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts (WAGGGS).

Last November, honorary recognition went to former Troop 4157 junior girl scout, Victoria Greenleaf of Hanover, who originated the concept.

Electrical Safety Month

May is National Electrical Safety Month- time to begin year-round safety awareness efforts, according to the Electrical Safety Foundation International (ESFI).

"Despite the fact that improved product safety engineering, standards and electrical codes have reduced electrical hazards, thousands suffer from electrical shock and fires each year," said ESFI President Brett Brenner.

To increase electrical safety awareness and protect those at home and in the workplace, ESFI has developed an electrical safety took kit that includes statistics on electrical hazards and recommendations to avoid electrical shock, burns and fires.

Electrify kills nearly 400 people and injures thousands more each year. Most of these deaths and injuries could be avoided with an increased awareness of electrical safety, such as noting locations of power lines when working outside. Power line contact with construction equipment, ladders, and gardening tools are among the leading cause of electrocutions. Use of ground fault circuit interrupters (GFCIs) to protect against lethal electrical currents can also reduce electrocutions.

Estimates indicate electricity causes 140,000 fires each year. These fires kill hundreds of people, injure thousands more, and cost billions of dollars in property damage. Aging electrical systems, combined with the growing power demands, contribute to electrical fire hazards. Overloaded circuits, flickering lights, and discolored electrical outlets and light switch face plates, point to the need for electrical upgrades. Addressing these hazards can save lives, reduce injuries and cut economic losses caused by electrical fires.

For more information on electrical safety, visit www.electrical-safety.org or call 703-841-3229.

Tax Time Tips For Rental Property Investors

(NAPS) While owning a rental property can be a terrific way to bring in income, those extra dollars can make things complicated when it comes to preparing a tax return.

Fortunately for the 13 million people who own rental properties in the U.S., there are ways to make tax season a little more manageable:

• Store your receipts, bills and statements during the year. This will make it much easier to locate and organize them at tax time. Create an envelope or folder for each property, and put all of your receipts in there during the year. Do the same for regular bills such as the mortgage, property taxes, insurance, utilities, etc.

• Keep good rental payment records. You probably get a lot of checks-and even cash-from your tenants during the year. It can be really hard to figure out tax time if you don't stay organized during the year.

• Know what property each check comes from. You can record this with your bank deposits in your checkbook or spreadsheet or rental property software.

• Use rental property software like Quicken Rental Property Manager 2.0, designed for people who own up to 10 properties and 25 total units. It makes it easier to file taxes and manage rental property income and expenses. This can help eliminate hours at the end of the year preparing for that Schedule E. Using the software, you can simply print the tax report and transfer the data to the form, give it to your accountant, or export data directly to tax preparation software like TurboTax.

• Separate security deposits from rent payments. Security deposits are not considered income if you intend to return them to the tenant, so make sure these deposits are separated from rent payments.

• Flag expense receipts. Some expenses are hard to classify properly for the IRS. When you replace the faucet in the bathroom, is that considered a repair or a capital improvement? It makes a big difference to Uncle Sam because 100 percent of repairs can be deducted this year, but capital improvements must be deducted over time. When you're not sure, flag those receipts so you can later discuss them with your accountant. Keep them in a separate place or flag them in your expense journal.

• Lastly, don't forget the mileage deduction. You probably rack up a lot of miles driving to and from your properties and those trips to the hardware store. It can be tedious to keep track of the mileage, but it really pays off since the IRS allows you to deduct about 45 cents/mile. To make it easier, use an Internet map service such as MapQuest to look up the mileage for common trips-like between your home and each property.

Make Household Chores Easier With Softened Water

(NAPS) If you find yourself spending too much time on household chores and not enough time with your family, there's a simple solution that can make your life easier. The answer is to use softened water.

Dreary tasks such as washing dishes, doing laundry and cleaning up the bathroom and kitchen are easier and less time-consuming with softened water-and softened water brings added benefits such as softer skin and shinier hair.

Hard water forms when naturally occurring minerals enter water sources. It is also very common in this country. Eighty-five percent of the U.S. geography has hard water, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. As our population grows and becomes more diverse, many homeowners may be feeling the effects of hard water without even realizing it.

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

The naturally occurring minerals in "hard" water make it difficult for soaps, detergents and shampoos to lather, which in turn forces you to scrub harder when cleaning your home. In fact, the term "hard water" originally referred to water that was difficult or hard to work with.

Installing a water softener in your home can greatly reduce the natural hard minerals found in water. Inside the water softener, salt pellets are used to charge thousands of tiny resin beads with sodium ions. As hard water moves over the resin beads, the minerals are replaced with sodium ions, creating soft water.

While the joys of soft water greatly outweigh the maintenance of a water softener, one task most people dread is changing the softener pellets as instructed by the manufacturer. Carrying bags of salt to the water softener was a chore that hadn't seen much improvement in a long, long time-until now. Diamond Crystal® water-softening salt now comes in a two-handled bag makes it easier and more comfortable to change the salt. Simple instructions are printed in English and Spanish, and the product works in any water softener.

After all, wouldn't you rather spend more time and energy on family fun than tiresome household tasks?

Household Tips-Using soft water to simplify daily life:

• Make clothes last longer. Clothes tend to wear out 15 percent faster when washed in hard water. Softened water is gentler on your clothing.

• Keep kitchenware looking new. Hard water can create unsightly film buildup on dishes and glassware. Softened water keeps kitchenware sparkling like new.

• Clean up with ease. Hard water can create hard filmy soap rings on bathtubs and sinks. Softened water helps keep fixtures clean and shiny.

• Ensure that appliances last longer. The American Water Works Association has found that washing machines used with hard water can wear out up to 30 percent faster than machines used with soft water. Softened water reduces wear and tear on your washer.

• Use less soap, detergent and shampoo. Hard water inhibits soaps and shampoos from lathering, so you may be using more soap and shampoo than necessary. Save money by using soft water, which requires less soap to get things clean.

• Enjoy softer skin. When you bathe or shower in hard water, mineral deposits are left behind on your body, which may dry out your skin. These minerals are removed from softened water to make your skin feel soft and smooth.

• Keep hair shiny and clean. Hard water mineral deposits can also leave your hair looking dull, while shampooing in softened water can reveal your hair's natural shine.

• Maintain your water-softening unit. Once your water softener is installed, check it monthly and keep the salt level at least half full at all times using a high-quality salt product. For example, Diamond Crystal® water-softening salt is packaged in convenient-to-carry, two-handled bags and includes easy instructions in English and Spanish.

Oil Stains Ruin New Driveway

Q. Last fall we had a beautiful gray paver driveway installed, and it really looks beautiful. However, during the Christmas holidays we had lots of company, and someone had an oil leak that we noticed after everyone had left. We have tried everything you can think of to remove this stain from the paver bricks. It is on one brick completely and slightly on three adjoining bricks. So far, nothing has worked, and we are at a loss as to what else to try. I am hoping that you might have some good ideas to share with us. — Dolores G., Toms River, N.J.

A. Unfortunately, it sounds like a pretty deep stain, and since it's an oil drip from a vehicle — meaning the oil likely is "dirty" from running through the engine as opposed to "relatively clean" oil like that just purchased from a store — the stain may be permanent. This is because brick pavers — and concrete pavers, or any masonry for that matter — are quite porous and absorb liquids quickly.

You've been treating this stain for some time without any improvement, so you may have to take the most drastic course, which is replacement of the stained paver. A do-it-yourselfer can loosen and lift out the paver, being careful to set the replacement so that it sits flush with the rest of the bricks. Paying attention to the level of the underlying material (sand, usually) is crucial, as is remembering that this material gradually settles under the weight of the paver. If you aren't sure that you can make the replacement fit exactly, or if the pavers are prohibitively large, call in the contractor who installed the driveway to make repairs, or contact a driveway repair specialist.

Because of their makeup, treating oil drips as quickly as possible is essential to saving the pavers' appearance. This means soaking up the spill, first by wiping away excess oil and then covering the stained bricks with an absorbent material. Household products like talcum powder, cornmeal or cornstarch are excellent for soaking up masonry stains. Powdered chalk, fuller's earth and whiting are also very good absorbents, and cat litter is said to work well.

One recommended method is to mix mineral spirits and whiting into a thick paste, apply directly to the stain, and allow it to dry (about 24 hours). These powders can typically be brushed away, using a synthetic-bristle cleaning brush so the stain can be scrubbed a bit.

Bleach, vinegar and lemon juice do not work well on oil stains.

'Buon Giorno' Greets Quincy Students On Language Week

Bonjour . . . buenos dias . . . buon giorno . . . salve . . . nihao.

The words greeted students at Quincy High School each morning via television recently as the Foreign Language Department observed Foreign Language Week at the school.

The greetings were delivered in French, Spanish, Italian, Latin and Mandarin Chinese.

For the week, foreign language mini-classes also explored languages not taught at Quincy High, the study of word origins, language identification and cultural reports.

There were also foreign language scavenger hunts, cultural trivia and video presentations pertaining to various aspects of foreign language study.

"In today's interdependent world," said the school, "the ability to speak a foreign language bridges the communications gap, provides opportunities for cross-cultural understanding and also enhances career opportunities and communications skills."

Women, Don't Neglect Your Upper Body

Q. My legs are really strong and I have great lower-body strength. Unfortunately, my upper body is not so strong, and I have trouble even lifting heavy objects to put them on a shelf. I work out three days a week at the gym, but don't do many upper-body exercises. My friends say that many women have weak upper bodies and that I shouldn't worry about it, but I do. Should I add more upper-body machines to my workout?

A. Many people who exercise tend to find a few exercises that they enjoy and continue to do them all of the time. They often shy away from exercises that are difficult or "hard," because who wants to subject themselves to pain, right?

We also tend to perform exercises that target areas we would like to improve, and for women this is usually the lower body (thighs, glutes). This causes us to neglect or fail to complete exercises for the shoulders, back and chest, even though the muscles of the upper body are equally important. Posture, stability and strength are all needed from the upper body to work well with the lower body and provide efficient daily function.

Most people's lower-body muscles are stronger than their upper body due to standing, walking, squatting, climbing and supporting their body weight throughout the day. The greater size of many of our lower-body muscles is also a factor. Compared with men though, women normally do not have as much upper-body strength in relation to the strength of their lower body.

However, you shouldn't use men's strength as a guideline. Your focus should be on a well-balanced and progressive exercise program that improves the strength of all of your muscles.

So yes, you should begin to incorporate upper-body exercises into your workouts. If you already have upper-body exercises in your workout routine, begin to complete them on a consistent basis. Exercises for the upper body can be as basic as the push-up (which is actually beneficial for the whole body) or as advanced as pull-ups.

Your current level of fitness, medical conditions and exercise experience will determine what type of exercises would be appropriate for you to begin. Ask a fitness professional about the proper technique and intensity so you can complete these exercises safely. And remember that although they may be difficult, they are beneficial.

It is also important to remember that if your goal is weight management — increasing your lean muscle mass and decreasing body fat — concentrating on strengthening both your upper and lower body can reap great results.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@ hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Chasing Sleep When It's On The Run

(NAPS) We can lose it, we can never find it and we always want it. It's sleep. Ask any traveler, especially one on business with high-adrenaline days, sleep is almost as valuable as gold. The marathon meetings, the late-night dinners, rushing to and from the airport and the multiple time zones all make getting a few winks harder to achieve.

It happens to most of us: a sleepless night in a hotel room just before a big meeting. you want to sleep. you need to sleep. No matter how hard you try, you just can't get to sleep.

With action-packed schedules, a traveler would think sleep should come as easily as counting sheep. For many, however, trying to sleep on the road brings on a case of temporary insomnia, called transient insomnia. Most travelers know they have it when they find themselves staring at the ceiling or twisting and turning in frustration.

Fortunately, there are things every traveler can do to avoid losing Zzzz's. Here are five tips for finding a comfy, cozy night of sleep away from home:

• Look for the love. One hotel chain conducted nine months of research and testing before introducing a new bed as part of "Make It Hampton," the largest and fastest transformation ever undertaken by a hotel brand to dramatically enhance the guest experience at each of its hotels. The bed features nine new attributes so that the bed looks as great as it feels. From the crisp duvet cover that holds a down-like comforter, triple sheeting on 200-thread count linens, a decorative lumbar pillow and a higher sitting bed, it could feel like home.

• Watch out for the imitations. There's more to a mattress than meets the eye. Choosing a mattress that's right for you can mean the difference between a peaceful night and a scary nightmare. According to Pawn Kongkosonkichkan, a bedding trainer with Rich's Macy's/Lazarus/Goldsmiths, pick a mattress with a high coil count and you can be snoring in no time. Also, look for hotels featuring plush-top mattresses, as these will keep their form better and avoid the lumpy mattress feeling associated with tossing and turning.

• Sometimes, faking it is good. Goose down-filled comforters and pillows are great for personal home use, but some travelers may prefer today's synthetic fabrics, which are just as top-quality. Travelers with sensitive noses will want to avoid the opportunity of sleep-interrupting allergy attack. For travelers who prefer down pillows, Hampton Inns provide a choice.

• Re-create habits from home. Take a look at the habits you have every night before you go to bed; do they include some light reading, maybe listening to soft music or a quiet conversation with loved ones? Any traveler can re-create those homey feelings by simply taking a warm bath, turning off the TV or calling home for a quick "good night." Whatever your bedtime behaviors may be, take about 15 minutes before you go to bed to really relax. (Remember, a caffeinated drink late at night affects those on the road just like at home, regardless of how tired you may feel.)

• Tick-tock, find a good clock. With so many confusing versions of the clock radios in hotels, some people may lose sleep just worrying if the darn thing will work as expected. For a more pleasurable sleep and wake-up experience, look for universal clock radios that offer simple alarm settings and a digital display that allows you to select your favorite type of music effortlessly.

Stroke Screening April 20 At St. John's Church

Life Line Screening will conduct screenings to help reduce the risk of stroke Thursday, April 20 at St. John's Church, 21 Gay St., Quincy.

Appointments will begin at 9 a.m.

A stroke, also known as a "brain attack," is ranked as the third leading killer in the world, the second among women. Through preventive screenings, the risk of having a stroke can be greatly reduced.

Screenings are fast, painless and low cost. They involve the use of ultrasound technology, and scan for potential health problems related to: block arteries which can lead to a stroke; aortic aneurysms which can lead to a ruptured aorta; and hardening of the arteries in the legs, which are a strong predictor of heart disease. Also offered for men and women is a bone density screening to access their risk for osteoporosis.

Each screening requires 10 minutes or less to complete. A complete vascular screening package, including the stroke/carotid artery, abdominal aortic aneurysm and ankle brachial index (hardening of the arteries) screenings is $109. The complete vascular package and osteoporosis screening costs $129.

For more information regarding the screenings or to schedule an appointment, call 1-877-237-1287. Preregistration is required.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SHEDDING NEW LIGHT ON TOOTH DECAY

Traditionally, dentists have probed teeth with a handheld instrument to detect decay. However, this method's effectiveness is limited by the size of the probe head, as well as by cavities' proclivity to hide along fissure lines or inside biting or occlusal surfaces to remain undetected. Recently, new technology has helped to overcome these shortcomings. DIAGNOdent technology employs a laser to inspect teeth for decay by comparing reflection wavelength against a healthy baseline wavelength. Once the laser obtains a benchmark reading of healthy enamel, it is then directed at enamel elsewhere to find surfaces that have less than a healthy baseline value. This allows the dentist to find areas of decay more precisely and sooner than would be otherwise possible.

Rely on us to answer all your questions about dental treatments and procedures. Let us help you keep your teeth healthy. We appreciate the opportunity to provide you with quality dental care. Our staff is made up of well-trained professionals who work together as a team to provide you with the highest quality treatment in a warm, caring setting. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. DIAGNOdent technology helps detect decay at its earliest stages, which enables the dentist to better preserve tooth substance.

Raiders Defeat Quincy For City Championship

NQ Jayvees Post Impressive 17-3 Record

BOYS' BASKETBALL

The North Quincy High School boys' JV basketball team finished its most successful season in recent memory with a 17-3 record and the mythical Atlantic Coast League championship.

Coached by Kevin Barrett and Paul Bregoli, the Red Raiders compiled an 11-1 record in the league, with their only loss coming in overtime, 57-56, at Dennis-Yarmouth.

North Quincy ended its season on an up note, cruising past cross-town rival Quincy, 53-32, in the season finale to win the JV city championship. It defeated the Presidents earlier, 52-50.

Leading scorer David Ray (12 points per game) was immense in the Quincy triumph, netting 20 points and pulling down eight rebounds. Sophomore guard Alex Tragellis had four steals and five assists and sophomore forward Mike Horgan had five steals.

North Quincy, which had 22 members, averaged 53 points a game and held opponents to 43, while collecting 26 rebounds a game and 11 steals.

Highlights of the season included an emotional, come-from-behind victory against Whitman-Hanson. Down 19 points, the Red Raiders pressured the Panthers into turnovers which resulted in many transition baskets. Sophomore Matt O'Neil poured in a season-high 18 points and grabbed seven rebounds.

The Red Raiders also had an impressive victory against Bridgewater-Raynham, 56-35. The win was the first over their former Old Colony League rivals in years. Sophomore guard Tim Kerins had a breakout game with 14 points, including 8-of-8 from the foul line, and five assists.

Ray also had a big effort with 19 points, 12 assists and nine rebounds. He scored in double figures in 12 of 16 games before being called up to varsity.

Marcellus Lee, a 6-foot-5-inch sophomore center, played seven games for JV before being called up to varsity. Lee had a season-high 22 points against Plymouth North and had 13 blocked shots for the season, three behind O'Neil.

Junior John Huerth had a strong year, finishing as the team's second leading scorer. He had 16 against Barnstable and 17 in the first win over Quincy. Smooth-shooting Ricky Bjork hit for 12 points and seven rebounds against Sandwich and netted three 3-pointers against B-R.

Tragellis, lightening quick on the defensive end, led the team in steals. He had eight points, four steals and five rebounds against Falmouth. Point guard Phuoc Nguyen displayed a nice shooting touch, tallying seven 3's for the year while also leading the team in taking charges with seven.

Billy Constantopoulos showed great improvement during the season. His best game came at Barnstable with eight points and four rebounds. Horgan showed flashes of brilliance before an injury shortened his season. He drained a team-high 16 points against Marshfield and had 10 against Plymouth North.

Sophomore guard Chris Doyle was perfect from the free-throw stripe. Junior Brendan Carnell, a transfer from Boston College High School, had several excellent games and was the team's best defensive forward. He took four charges.

Sean Clifford was a spark plug off the bench and was a factor in several rallies. Zack O'Hara showed a deft scoring touch from long range. Jim Holcomb showed improvement, especially on the boards, and sophomore center Greg Ingram had the best post moves of the big men.

Other members of the team included Chris Boyd, Jim Bleiler, Jimmy Ly, Tyler Costa and David Thomson.

"The future looks bright for North Quincy basketball," Bregoli said. "This group was very hard-working and had great team chemistry. They listened well and all showed great improvements during the season. They made it fun for the coaches to come to practice.

"With only three returning varsity players for 06-07, this year's JV group will need to step into those spots. With their work ethic, talent and commitment to improvement, the staff is confident they will meet the challenge."

IN THE CLEAR

First popularized in the early 1990s, clear coats are the non-pigmented topcoats of paint that are applied over the colored base coat. The clear coat increases the paint's durability, gloss, and resistance to the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays. While it provides depth and gloss to the finish, a clear coat requires special consideration. Because it is clear, it scratches, and swirls tend to be more obvious. With this in mind, pay particular attention to using detailing products that are clear-coat safe, which generally means that they are non-abrasive or minimally so. While a clear coat will prevent the finish of your vehicle from oxidation which turns it dull, it will provide a definite advantage.

Clear coats of paint are great if you maintain them. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we stress preventative maintenance for all aspects of your car's health. By taking the time needed to preform regular maintenance you end up saving money over the life of your automobile. Need automotive service? Bring your car to our convenient location 258 Quincy Ave. E. Braintree or call 781-843-1550 to schedule an appointment. We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted vehicles. We are A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer.

HINT: Regular polishing and waxing will help preserve the clear coat, as well as maintain the value of your vehicle.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We all know that life is not an everlasting picnic in perfect weather. On the contrary, it is a matter of struggle, a mixture of triumph and failure, joy and sorrow. In our daily lives we continually face difficult decisions, trying circumstances and situations. It may be hard for us at times to face these issues and realize that even the most strong and most favored persons in life have their share of burdens too.

It takes courage to keep on going when circumstances conspire to thwart our hope and aspirations. Yet burdens born in the right spirit have a way of building character and making us strong and sufficient as we face the problems in life. Burdens can and often do teach us great lessons.

Nathaniel Hawthorne, who traveled a difficult road before he found the key to triumph, once said, "He must keep his faith in himself while the incredulous world assail him with its utter disbelief."... That, we suspect, is where all of us have to begin when our hopes are thwarted. Faith in ourselves is one thing we never can afford to surrender. It is the key to courage to keep on going when we feel drained. When we cease to believe in ourselves and our God-given powers and possibilities, we are finished. It is the man who can go on believing in himself while the incredulous world assails him with its utter unbelief who comes thru undefeated.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The week promises a calmer aspect. Although there might be some lingering effects of a recent job problem, things should continue to ease up. Also expect a change in a home-based situation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) If you feel uneasy about a colleague's suggestion, it might be that your wise inner Taurean guide is alerting you to a potential problem. Stepping away could turn out to be the right thing to do.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A family get-together opens up new opportunities for renewing ties. It can be especially effective in dealing with disagreements that should have been, but were never fully resolved.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might be surprised at the response you get to a recent decision. You might be even more surprised by the reasons behind it. In any event, you'll learn something important.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your aspects favor resolving any tensions left over from a recent incident. You might want to consider having a "clear-the-air" talk as soon as you can. A call can lead to a change of plans.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Avoid repeating yourself. If your first few efforts fail to connect, maybe it's because you haven't found the right way to get your message across. Try changing your approach.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Good intentions plus a strong resolve to succeed can take you where you want to go. Don't give up just because someone suggests you might be pursuing an impossible cause.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An unexpected setback can be a blessing in disguise. Use it to recheck your facts and how you've presented them. Meanwhile, look for ways to expand your contacts.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You should finally be seeing a positive change in a recent personal situation. However, an on-the-job matter might need more attention than you realized. Stay with it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While you should be close to completing an important matter, you still need to focus on being focused. But things ease up in time for weekend fun with family and friends.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A certain matter might take an unexpected turn. Don't simply accept it; ask for an explanation. What you learn might be helpful in shifting the situation around to your benefit.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Projecting a positive attitude helps restore calm even when you're confronting some pretty stormy situations. Stay the course. The outcome will be well worth your efforts.

BORN, THIS WEEK: While you enjoy tradition and stability, you also appreciate the good things that change can bring.

A Job Well Done

Sometimes the criminals make our job easy . . . On March 7, at approximately 5:07 p.m., Officers William Horick and Mike Kelly were dispatched to the CVS store in Wollaston for a female fraudulently attempting to fill a prescription.

Upon arrival, the officers met with the pharmacist, who told them the female (suspect) at the counter was attempting to pick up a prescription for a barbiturate called "Fioricet," which she called in earlier in the day on behalf of her boyfriend.

LT. DAN MINTON

The problem was that, according to CVS records, the boyfriend died in January. When questioned by Officer Horick, the suspect said she knew her boyfriend was deceased as she attempted to get his prescription. She said she thought she could fool the pharmacist. The suspect, a 34-year-old Boston resident, was arrested on the charge of "Uttering a False Prescription."

On March 7, at approximately 12:32 p.m., Officers Paul Matthews and Harry Breen were dispatched to Citizen's Bank on Southern Artery to investigate a male suspect attempting to cash a fake check.

The officers learned from the manager that one of his tellers was suspicious of a man attempting to cash a check valued at $6,756.98. The manager examined the check, which was from "Citizen Bank" and made out to the suspect by a social service agency in Dorchester.

The manager noticed the "s" was missing from "Citizen's Bank" and called the Dorchester agency and the Quincy Police. He spoke with the social service employee, who stated the check with that number had been cashed in August 2005 and they had never made a check out to the suspect.

Officer Matthews questioned the suspect about the check. He said, "A friend gave me the check and asked if I could cash it." When asked who the "friend" was, the suspect said he had never met the party before and had no idea what his name was. The suspect, a 21-year-old Hanson resident, was arrested and charged with "Forgery," "Uttering" and "Attempt to Commit a Crime of Larceny." Nice work!

Update: A few months back, I wrote an article about scams, specifically about telemarketing companies claiming to be from the federal government. They promised to give out grant money if the victim was willing to pay a processing fee of $259.

On Friday, March 10, two out-of-state telemarketing companies were fined $1 million and barred from conducting business in Massachusetts. A total of 600 victims who sent in the money were mailed a booklet that listed government grant programs only. The victims will receive restitution.

It is estimated that 1,600 Massachusetts residents were contacted. The companies were identified as "Consumer Grants USA Inc." of Florida and "Freedom Grants Inc." of Nevada. A third company, "Your Choice Inc." of Wyoming, is contesting the charge.

Quick and thorough investigative work by the Attorney General's Office brought this case to Superior Court, where Judge Janet Sanders came down heavily on the telemarketers, sending a strong message to those intent on scamming the good citizens of the Commonwealth. Nice work!

Latest Scam: Information comes from a Dunbarton Road resident. He received a telephone call from a man with a foreign accent, stating he was with a federal agency. He was offering $1,000 under a new program to help offset the costs of prescription drugs. In order to qualify for the money, the caller required the "victim" provide bank account information.

As always, never provide bank account information or any other personal data to unverified sources. Any offer via the telephone should always be considered "high risk and highly questionable." A simple request for literature to be sent to you before you make a decision often reveals the caller as a scam artist because they usually don't spend money to make money. The best action is to "just hang up."

St. Joseph's School Closing Saddens Parishioners

bers of the parish once placed on a Catholic education is shown by the fact that St. Joseph's Parish, which attained that status in 1915, is only 12 years older than the school.

Joan Jaehnig of Edison Street saw seven sons pass through the school between 1969 and 1988, helping out at Christmas bazaars and other fundraising events.

"I feel bad," she said. "We worked hard to put them through. I had four in school at one time. Now mothers don't do it. The young people don't do it anymore."

Some people pointed out that many of the young families with children that once populated Quincy Point have been replaced by senior citizens complexes with no children.

"Change is always difficult," said Father Doolan's statement. "It is especially painful when the change involves a school that is loved by so many."

Over 475 Guests Expected To Attend

The Y anticipates more than 475 people will attend the event.

A committee, led by Melanie Cataldo and Lisa Virello of Hingham, is planning the event.

Herb and Paulie Emilson, of Marshfield, will be honored that evening. The Emilsons will be recognized for their support of the South Shore YMCA and the South Shore community.

Cuisine will be provided by 18 area restaurants: Atlantica (Cohasset), Bon Caldo (Norwood), Bridgeman's (Hull), Caffe Tosca (Hingham), Dancing Deer Baking Co. (Boston), Lombardo's (Randolph), Malai Thai (Randolph), Red Parrot (Hull), Stars on Hingham Harbor (Hingham), The Chef's Table (Pembroke), Tosca (Hingham), Tullio's (Quincy), Phillips's Candy House (Boston and Braintree), Saporito's Florence Club CafÈ (Hull), Hancock's Steak and Seafood (Quincy), Konditor Meister (Braintree), Coffee Break CafÈ (Quincy and Braintree), El Sarape (Weymouth Landing), and The Neighborhood Club of Quincy (Quincy).

Tickets are $75 per person and sponsorships are also available. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Y's Strong Kids Annual Support Campaign, which provides over $1,000,000 in direct financial assistance and youth programming to thousands of families each year.

The South Shore YMCA is a not-for-profit association of individuals dedicated to improving the quality of life for all through programs that promote healthy spirit, mind and body. Programs and services strive to strengthen the family, guide the youth of today and meet the ever-changing needs of the community.

The South Shore YMCA has branches in Quincy, Hanover, and two resident summer camps in Sandwich and serves the communities of Braintree, Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

Square Named In His Honor

Legacy Of Alan Brudno Helps Erase Ill Will Of Vietnam War

By TOM HEN SHAW

The legacy of Capt. Alan Brudno, the Quincy pilot who spent seven and a half years as a POW in Vietnam only to die by his own hand after four months of freedom, may be an end to some of the bitter divisions brought on by an unpopular war.

His brother, Robert Brudno, thinks so and he put the thought into words for the crowd that gathered Monday for the dedication of the intersection of Billings Road and Hancock Street to Alan Brudno, who grew up around the corner on Buckingham Road.

After 32 years in which small groups of Vietnam veterans would gather in late March to remember their fallen comrades, said Robert Brudno, the community as a whole finally got together last year to honor and welcome home Alan Brudno.

NEW SIGN designates the intersection of Hancock Street and Billings Road as Captain E. Alan Brudno Square in memory of the Quincy boy who grew up around the corner and lost his life as a result of the Vietnam War.

"For a while," he said, "I wondered why Alan's story attracted so much attention so many years after his death. Why did the ceremony in Quincy last year honoring him so many years after he died attract so many people?

"Now I understand. This country finally realizes how poorly it treated so many who served in Vietnam, not just the POWs. Today this country truly understands. I am happy that military service is again a noble calling.

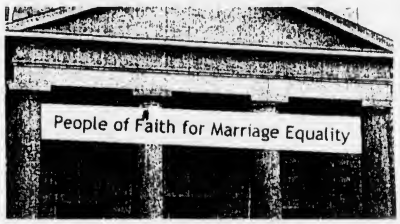
Same-Sex Marriage Church Banner Gets Green Light

By MIKAELA SLANEY

United First Parish Church received the final green-light Monday night from the Historical District Commission to display a large banner in support of same-sex marriage.



The vote was 4 to 1 allowing the 34 foot by 4 foot banner proclaiming "People Of Faith For Marriage Equality" to be displayed for 60 days.

Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister, of the historic church where Presidents John and John Quincy Adams are entombed, told The Sun that he plans to raise the banner Friday, weather permitting.

He said there will be an open invitation dedication and celebration Sunday at 11:45 following the morning service.

Voting favorably were: Tony Ricci, Christopher Baker, Anne Corcoran, and Dr. Edward Fitzgerald.

Commissioner Rose McCarthy was the lone dissenter, and Maralin Manning abstained from voting.

THIS IS what the banner will look like.

The church shortened their previous application from 90 days to 60 days, making the banner valid under the sign ordinances of the Department of Inspectional Services, said Bennett.

This allowed them to proceed without approval from the Zoning Board of Appeals, he said.

Fitzgerald made the motion to grant the permit.

There was no discussion preceding the vote at Monday night's hearing. Preliminary hearings to discuss the banner remained content-neutral, and only the dimensions and physical appearance of the banner was disputed.

"It offended my good sense of design and the integrity of the building," said Manning after Monday's hearing adjourned.

At a Feb. 27 hearing, McCarthy had suggested to Bennett that the church avoid posting a banner, and instead circulate a marriage-equality newsletter to the congregation.

"Our primary purpose is to publicly proclaim that as people of faith we support

Public Meeting On Preservation Act April 6

Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis, chairman of the city council's Special Committee on the Community Preservation Act, has scheduled a public meeting Thursday, April 6, to discuss the impact of the act.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. at Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Harvard and West Squantum streets.

Other members of the committee are Councillor at-large Joseph Finn and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin.

"As a Special Committee we plan on visiting various neighborhoods of the city to enable residents to learn about the act and to share their views about its impact," Davis said.

The meeting, held in conjunction with the Wollaston/ Montclair Neighborhood Association, will be the second of several that will be held throughout the city. Representatives from the city and community groups, including the Quincy Environmental Network, will be present to discuss the act.

"But for those still affected by their service in Vietnam directly or indirectly, the pain will never go away without being welcomed home, as Quincy did for my brother last year."

His brother's death, he said, also helped to provoke the military into recognizing that, while Vietnam POWs may have looked physically well, there were psychological demons lurking inside — "as one expert told me, 'this was not psychiatry's finest hour.'"

"After Alan died, they all got it," he said. "Many other POWs revealed their demons and treatment was extended. Programs are in place today for POWs and their families that will continue for the rest of their lives. One of Alan's legacies is that other lives were saved.

"And perhaps the extensive programs that exist today for our men and women fighting in Iraq and Afghanistan resulted from a better understanding of the psychological wounds of combat."

Robert Brudno noted that the newly named Capt. E. Alan Brudno Square was an intersection of long familiarity with the Brudno family.

"Alan, my other brother, Steve, and I walked through this intersection twice a day every school day for a decade," he said.

"like many other Quincy boys, Alan left this town to follow his dreams. He took with him on that journey what he learned here growing up: a sense of honor, courage and a desire to do the right thing.

"I hope that as future generations of Quincy kids walk by this sign on their way to school, they too will raise their sights, as Alan Brudno did, perhaps to the stars themselves.

"Alan Brudno came from this neighborhood, just up the street, and look at the legacy he has left for others."

The dedication of the square took place on site Monday morning with the annual Vietnam Veterans Day ceremonies in the afternoon at the Vietnam Memorial Clock Tower in Marina Bay also focused on the 48 Quincy servicemen who lost their lives in Vietnam.

Those ceremonies included a flyover by four A-10 Wart Hog jets from Bradley Air Force Base in Connecticut who were scheduled to be at last year's tribute to Brudno but were canceled due to bad weather. They executed the missing man maneuver.

Also at the Clock Tower were Lt. Col. Orison Swindle, Brudno's cellmate in captivity; Joseph McCain of Alexandria, Va., younger brother of Sen. John McCain and a friend of Robert Brudno and war correspondent Joseph Galloway, the guest speaker.

The ceremonial wreath was placed by Joseph Booker, president of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces (VCVCAF); Lawrence Norton of the VCVCAF was master of ceremonies and Marines Daniel and Robert Curry read the roll call of departed brothers.

Officer Donald Sautter of the Quincy Police sang the national anthem and bugler Sgt. Steven Kring, also a Quincy policeman, sounded Taps.

"The restaurants and food are excellent and the staff is stupendous. I'm extremely happy."

Like many, Glen Crowell had lived in his Quincy house for a long time and was a little hesitant to move to Linden Ponds, a dynamic community for people 62-plus. But after taking a closer look, he decided it was the perfect place.

"Everything that you'd ever need is here. I don't have to go anywhere or drive a car to get anything. It's a very convenient place to live," says Glen.

Since moving to Linden Ponds, Glen is using the time he used to spend on his house to do other things. "I golf, garden, and bowl in the wintertime, mostly with the friends I've made here at Linden Ponds," says Glen. "I also enjoy the woodwork and hobby shop; I play pool, and go to the Fitness Center three times a week."

You too can start enjoying the enviable Linden Ponds lifestyle.

Neighborhood Street Sweeping Starts Monday

The city's spring neighborhood street sweeping project will begin Monday and continue through June.

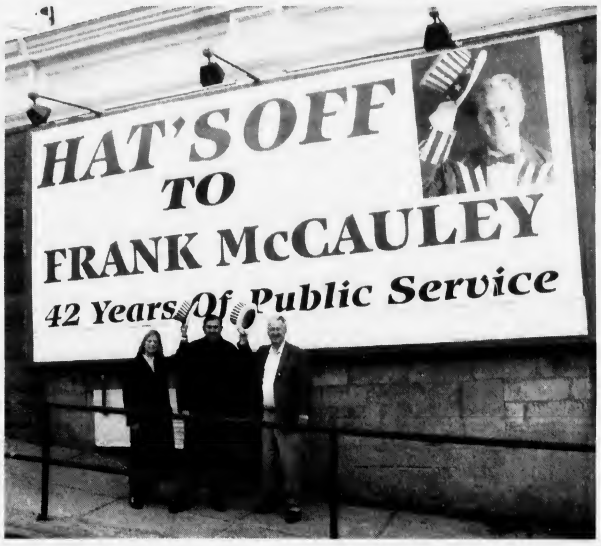
Mayor William Phelan said street sweepers will systematically travel through the city's six wards beginning in Ward 5 with the goal of sweeping every street.

"It's exciting to announce that it's the time of year to begin cleaning up the winter sand and prepping for spring," Phelan said. "I urge our residents to pay attention to the schedule and cooperate by getting cars off the street. This will be just the first of many steps we take this year in improving our city's great neighborhoods."

City sweepers have been in action along the city's main thoroughfares for the past month.

Residents should be aware that significant weather affects the schedule and changes to the schedule will be announced and posted on the city Web site.

"I am committed to beautifying our city and maintaining the qualities that made Quincy so attractive to us when we first all chose a home," Phelan said. "It's the attention to the little details that can make life in our neighborhoods much better."



For more information, call the DPW at 617-376-1953.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 30, 1867, the United States government puts the finishing touches a deal to purchase Alaska. The U.S. paid Alaska's owner, Russia, $7.2 million, or roughly two cents per acre of land. In certain circles, the deal was derisively known as "Seward's Folly" after Secretary of State William Seward.

• On April 1, 1877, prospector Edward Schieffelin begins his search for silver in the area of present-day southern Arizona. Later that year, he found one of the richest silver veins in the West, naming it the Tombstone Lode. Tombstone attracted gamblers, criminals and would-be lawmen such as Doc Holliday and the Earp brothers, famous for their shoot-out at the O.K. Corral.

• On March 31, 1889, the Eiffel Tower is dedicated in Paris. Gustave Eiffel's tower was greeted with skepticism, as critics argued it would be structurally unsound. Within a few decades, however, the tower came to be regarded as an architectural masterpiece.

• On April 2, 1902, the first American theater devoted solely to movies opens in Los Angeles. Housed in a circus tent, the venue was dubbed "The Electric Theater." Admission was about 10 cents for a one-hour show.

• On March 27, 1912, in Washington, D.C., on the northern bank of the Potomac River, Helen Taft, wife of President William Taft, plants two Yoshina cherry trees in celebration of a gift of 3,020 cherry trees from the Japanese government.

• On March 28, 1969, Dwight D. Eisenhower, the 34th president of the United States and one of the most highly regarded American generals of World War II, dies in Washington, D.C., at the age of 78.

• On March 29, 1973, under the provisions of the Paris Peace Accords, the last U.S. troops depart South Vietnam, ending nearly 10 years of U.S. military presence in that country. Roughly 8,500 U.S. civilians stayed on as technical advisers to the South Vietnamese.

You're Still Better Off Now

Seems like most things you bought last week cost more this week.

And, next week the price probably will be even higher.

Whether it's food, oil, gasoline, gas, electricity, etc. the price is something like an elevator that goes up but doesn't come back down.

Of course, there are some pretty good sale leaders now and then like 10 jars of pasta sauce for $10 ($1 each) or buy a half gallon of ice cream and get one free.

But while your attention is drawn to items like that, prices in some of the other aisles have quietly gone up since the last time you were there.

Today's prices on just about everything are a far cry, say, from the 1930s. With today's paychecks and the prices back then, most of us would be living like millionaires.

Check these prices advertised in an issue of the old Quincy Evenings News — Quincy's then other daily newspaper. The copy, dated May 15, 1934, was dropped off to us by former City Council President Peter Kolson who noted, "The prices in the ads are really something."

KOLSON

And, really something, they were. Examples:

You could pick up a pair of men's slacks at Donaher's Clothing Store for $1.95.

At Morgan's, another Hancock Street store, you could get a family-sized steel refrigerator for $12.85. (That's 12 dollars and 85 cents).

Or, a table-model radio (tubes included) for the same price.

Foy's Market was offering two cans of Heinz soups for 25 cents, five rolls of bathroom tissue for the same price and three bars of Lux soap for 18 cents.

You could also pick up a can of fancy ripe tomatoes at Foy's for 10 cents. Or save two cents by buying six cans for 58 cents.

And someone had a year-old Chevvy business coupe for sale at $435.

If you were apartment hunting there were plenty around to choose from:

Three rooms and a den for $25 a month. Four rooms for $28. Five rooms for $30.

And, if you needed more space, you could have a six-room apartment, plus sun parlor and steam heat for $40.

Of course, everything is relative. The prices were low but so were the paychecks — if you were lucky to have one. We were still struggling to get out of the Depression. Many were on welfare. If you were working and making $14 or $18 a week, you were doing pretty well. And if you were getting $40, you were sitting very pretty.

So, if you had your choice, you no doubt would take today's salaries and prices over that of the 1930s. You're still better off now.

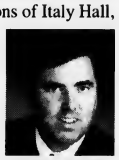
Incidentally, the News was founded in 1928 by former Mayor Perley Barbour (1925-26) who was in the welting manufacturing business. The story at that time was that Barbour started the News to compete with the Ledger because he felt he wasn't treated fairly by the Ledger's coverage while he was in office.

BARBOUR

So, he supposedly started his own newspaper in retaliation.

The competition between the two newspapers for the news was keen and the battle for advertising, a war.

The News was a good paper with a talented staff but lasted less than a decade. The Ledger won the battle for the life-supporting advertising and bought out the News in May, 1937.



Speculation at the time had the Ledger on shaky ground from the all-out fight and if the News had hung in there a little longer, it might have been the survivor.

And if it had, The Quincy Evening News would be Quincy's local daily newspaper today.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1915 POSTCARD view of the old Washington School in Quincy Point. Designed by a young Quincy architect, Albert H. Wright, this building was erected in 1903 on a large lot diagonally across from the fire station on Washington Street. The red brick building was demolished in the late 1960s, and the site is now home to the Constanzo Pagnano Towers Senior Citizens housing complex. The site was originally used for one of Quincy's first public schools in the early part of the 19th century. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Storm Isolates Homes In Squantum, Houghs Neck

March 30-April 5
48 Years Ago

High seas, raised by gale force winds, isolated large areas of homes in Houghs Neck and Squantum and caused an estimated $500,000 damage on the South Shore, largely in Quincy and Hull.

Tides three feet above normal put the Squantum Causeway under one foot of water and homes in the Rhoda and Rockland streets section of Houghs Neck were flooded. Winds were clocked at 53 mph at the Blue Hill Observatory.

Fire Chief Thomas F. Gorman ordered a ladder truck from the Atlantic station to standby duty in Squantum and assigned extra men to the Houghs Neck station which was all but inaccessible from the outside.

'ILLEGAL' SIGNS HELP

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa reported the new "walk" and "don't walk" signs put up in Quincy Square have been very effective in reducing automobile-pedestrian accidents. Unfortunately, he said, the signs were illegal.

Della Chiesa, who is also a state representative from Quincy, spoke in support of a bill that would legalize the signs before the Legislative Committee on Highways and Motor Vehicles.

Quincy Schools Celebrate 'Read Across America Week'

Elementary schools in Quincy recently celebrated "Read Across America Week" with a host of activities, including guest readers who read books to students.

The Montclair Elementary School kicked off the celebration with a Family Literacy Night. Families gathered to hear local author and Quincy firefighter Bill Arienti discuss his series of stories Tales from Faxon. Arienti showed how his memories of growing up near Faxon Park turned into creative inspiration for his first published story Scooter The Rabbit.

Families had opportunity to "demonstrate their creative juices" and create a book together. Each family turned fond memories into a priceless treasure to be enjoyed for years to come.

The Montclair School PTO opened its annual Scholastic Book Fair for preview and purchase during the night's festivities.

On March 2, students spent an enjoyable day listening to extended members of the Montclair family share their favorite childhood story.

Guest readers at the Montclair School included:

School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro; Mayor William Phelan and his wife, Tracy Phelan; School Committeeman Jim Timmins, Timothy LaConte, Brian Tobin, Peggy Joyce, Quincy Sun Editor Bob Bosworth, Quincy Access TV Director Bette Campbell, School Committeeman David McCarthy, Geri Herbert, Sharyn Waters, Bob Kachinsky, former mayor Frank McCauley, Abby Murphy, Larry White, Elaine Haraska, Angela Ponte, former mayor and Quincy District Court Magistrate Arthur Tobin, Carol DeMeritt, Mary Beth Curran, Kao Li, Dr. Pattavina, Joanne Morrissey, Police Chief Robert Crowley, Lt. Servais, Sheriff Michael Bellotti, Mike Ryan, Rep. Steve Tobin, John Pasciucco, Hank Logan and Officer Kent Yee.

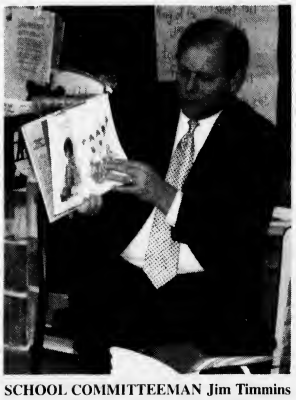
The readers were coordinated by Colleen Dufresne, literacy specialist for the Montclair School.

The reading week culminated as students and staff dressing up as their favorite book characters.

The school also thanks Derek Dufresne, Nancy Joyce, Judy Tobin, Laurie Guthrie, Scott Perfetuo, Peggy Joyce, Kathy Brooks and Kevin Marks with helping make the week run smoothly.

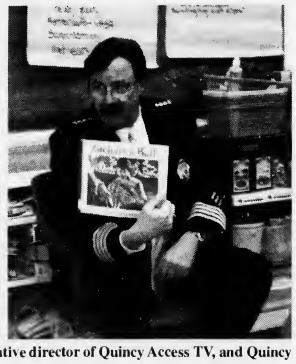
MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN and his wife, Tracy, read some of their favorite children's books to students at the Montclair Elementary School. The school, as well as other elementary schools in the city, took part in the national "Read Across America" campaign to support literacy and reading. (Derek Dufresne Photos)

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT Dr. Richard DeCristofaro reads a favorite children's story to students at the Montclair Elementary School. The school was among local elementary schools celebrating "Read Across America Week."



NORFOLK COUNTY SHERIFF Michael Bellotti reads Miss Nelson Is Back to fifth grade students at the Montclair Elementary School.

QUINCY SUN EDITOR Bob Bosworth was a guest reader at the Montclair Elementary School's celebration of Dr. Suess's 102nd birthday. Bosworth read Marc Brown's Arthur's Family Vacation: An Arthur Adventure to kindergarten students of Julie Connolly.



FIREFIGHTER BILL ARIENTI reads one of his books to students at the Montclair Elementary School during "Read Across America" week.

SCHOOL COMMITTEEMAN Jim Timmins was among the guest readers at the Montclair Elementary School's "Read Across America" celebration.

GUEST READERS Bette Campbell (left), executive director of Quincy Access TV, and Quincy Police Chief Robert Crowley, visited the Montclair Elementary School during "Read Across America Week."

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL Girls Volleyball Team recently visited Lincoln Hancock Elementary School to participate in Reading Across America. Pictured with Kelly Raymer's First Grade Class are: Head Coach Christine Barrett, Hillary Mills, Talisa Faustin, Abigail Riddell, Tahina Chery, Sarah Sullivan, Principal Dennis Carini and kneeling in front of Mr. Carini is Teacher Kelly Raymer.

marriage equality and that marriage equality affirms the core values as Unitarian Universalists," said Bennett.

"And we want to stand together for people out in the community who are experiencing prejudice, bigotry, and hatred around issues of their sexual orientation.

"We were reserving our rights under both Massachusetts and federal law that protect freedom of religious expression, and the use of our building for religious purposes.

"We asked that we be granted a certificate of non-applicability (to the sign ordinances) because of the federal law, the federal statute that applies in this case. No motion was made to reconsider. There was not an actual vote on that.

"Attendance on our Sunday services has increased significantly in the past four weeks, and some of the people who have come, have just come to thank us. Others have come saying that they want to come to a church that has the courage to live its faith in a publicly-visible way.

"We know it's making a difference, people are telling us, just from the newspaper publicity. People are very grateful.

"We've gotten many calls and letters to the editor and so forth. People are showing up in church on Sunday, thanking us for making this statement.

"We also hope this will make a difference in the larger public debate that's taking place in the Commonwealth over the issue of marriage equality," said Bennett.

Quincy 'Tree City USA' For 10th Straight Year

The National Arbor Day Foundation and the State Executive Office of Environmental Affairs have named Quincy "Tree City USA" for the 10th consecutive year.

Mayor William Phelan said Quincy was recognized for its efforts to plant new trees, maintain its existing urban forest, and its commitment to public education about the benefits of the urban street trees.

"What makes Quincy's neighborhoods feel so much like a small town is our treelines streets," Phelan said. "We are committed to maintaining that rustic feel and the aesthetic benefits that our trees provide our neighborhoods.

"It's truly what makes an urban area like Quincy so unique amongst cities our size. I want to thank the City Council for their support of my efforts to plant new street trees in conjunction with our open space efforts."

Last year, Quincy planted more than 450 new trees along its streets. The trees replaced the more than 250 trees that were removed due to disease and decay.

This past winter, the city issued a contract to help catch up on requests for tree care, maintenance and removal. A contract for stump grinding will be issued in the coming weeks.

"I recognize the importance of this issue to our neighborhoods and the quality of life in our city," Phelan said. "It is vital that we remain committed to this issue and I am truly honored to receive this recognition for the 10th consecutive year."

Women's History Month Program At Adams NHP

The last in a series of five afternoon programs commemorating National Women's History Month will be presented today (Thursday) at 1 p.m. in the Carriage House at the Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Today's program will focus on Phillis Wheatley, who was an eight year old African girl when she arrived in Massachusetts on the slave ship Phillis and purchased by John Wheatley of Boston to serve in his household.

Educated in the pious home of John and Susanna Wheatley, she accepted the Christian faith offered her in the Old South Church. The Wheatleys provided Phillis with an education and encouraged her poetic inclinations. She won national and international acclaim as a gifted writer of poetry, and she made the voyage across the Atlantic three times. But her greatest accomplishment of all was that she survived.

Phillis Wheatley will be portrayed by Dorothy Mains Prince, founder of "Sojourns," an enterprise designed to bring the lives of outstanding African American women to students and community organizations across the country. Prince holds BA and MA degrees from Emerson College in Boston and a MA from Teachers College, Columbia University in New York. For more than 20 years, she has been teaching, directing, and performing throughout the New England area.

The program is free and open to the public. Street parking is available. Light refreshments will follow. For more information about this and the other programs, call 617-773-1796.

Irish-Italian Night Celebration At Sacred Heart School

Sacred Heart School's PTO recently celebrated its annual "Irish/Italian Night" with more than 120 people attending.

The event is a family centered night of fun and festivities. A spaghetti and meatball dinner, catered by Dominies of Quincy, was followed by crafts, Irish music and performances of traditional Irish step dancing by students at the school.

The night began with a blessing by Fr. John O'Brien, pastor of Sacred Heart Parish.

Nancy Licari, who has coordinated this event for over five years, said it remains one of the most popular events at the school because it is relaxing for the parents and fun for the kids.

The Holy Ground, Alfredo's Restaurant, and Giannaro's Restaurant in Quincy all supported this event by donating gift certificates which were used as raffle prizes. The PTO appreciates those businesses for their continued support of Sacred Heart School.

Committee To Plan Local Organization For Traumatized Youths

By MIKAELA SLANEY

"Community peer support is really essential. We really need to find a local champion, and I think there are champions in this room," said Betsy McAlister Groves, appealing for assistance from a room of 41 organization representatives.

Groves was the keynote speaker at a March 8 conference, at the Thomas Crane Public Library, urging local organizations to establish a Quincy branch of the Child Witness To Violence Project (CWVP) of which she is the project director.

A 14-person volunteer committee was named from participants of the conference, to tackle issues of funding and location.

CWVP, located at the Boston Medical Center, provides clinical intervention and free counseling to children, ages up to eight years, who have witnessed violence. The program also assists the community in identifying these children and responding to their needs.

"We always have to do what we can to combat and deal with the issues of domestic violence," said Mayor William Phelan.

Organizations represented at the meeting included: the Police Departments of Milton, Holbrook, Weymouth, Braintree, and Randolph; the Mayor's Office, the City Council, and the State House; the Quincy District Court, the Norfolk Sheriff's Office, and Norfolk District Attorney's Office.

The Boston Medical Center, and the Quincy Medical Center; Quincy Public Schools, Quincy School Committee, Braintree Schools, and the Department of Social Services.

"This is a really impressive group," said Groves, citing the large number of attendees, and the diversity of their backgrounds.

Groves stressed the need for intervention, saying that children who are affected by violence have an increased risk of becoming abusive as adult men or victims of abuse as adult women.

Statistics taken from DOVE reports, (Domestic Violence Ended) submitted by the Quincy police, show that in 2004 through 2006 there were 2,355 reported cases of domestic disputes, with an average of 98 per month.

According to Lt. Patrick Glynn of the Special Investigations Unit, an estimated 70 percent of these local disturbances involved children.

"It's pretty widespread," he said. "There are a lot of reports filed. The numbers may seem high, but they do fluctuate.

"Not all reported cases involving children actually involved the child being abused. It could just be a verbal argument and children were present."

Since its establishment in 1992, the number of people seeking assistance from CWVP has increased dramatically, said Groves. The program now counsels 150 families annually.

She attributes the increase to the project's growing reputation.

"We've been around long enough now that they know us and trust us," she said.

There has also been a shift in society so that victims are now more comfortable seeking help from abuse, she said.

Although the Boston branch of CWVP is run from the Boston Medical Center, the location of the proposed branch is still up for discussion by the committee.

"It doesn't need to be in a hospital," said Groves.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin has suggested to the mayor the utilization of a vacant building adjacent to the Quincy Medical Center. His proposition is still up for review.

Locations of similar programs are battered women and children agencies, the YMCA, and Boston Children and Family Services.

Coughlin believes that the Department of Justice may be a financial resource worth looking into. "We just need to write a good proposal," he said.

Members of the Planning Committee include:

Dr. James A. Evans-Convener, chief of psychiatry at the Quincy Medical Center; Janet Powell, Quincy Public Schools; Linda Stice, Quincy School Committee; Kevin Mulvey, Quincy School Committee; Carole Bambrick, Quincy District Court; Joseph Madigan, Department of Social Services.

Stacy Sylvester, Norfolk County Sheriff's Dept.; Roberta Kety and Tracy Phelan, both of Quincy; Lt. Patrick Glynn, Quincy Police Dept.; Jeanmarie Carroll, Norfolk District Attorney; Kevin Coughlin, Quincy City Council; Stephanie Flaherty, DOVE; and Harry Shulman, Social Services Mental Health.

Judge Mark Coven of the Quincy District court credited Arthur Tobin, Clerk Magistrate, for doing the "mechanics" of the meeting.

"Tobin has been instrumental," said Phelan.

Judge Coven also credited the mayor for his efforts.

"I want to thank the mayor in his assistance to drive this whole program," he said.

"This is very sobering for us, it's important go get this thing off the ground," said Garry Gibbons, CEO of the Quincy Medical Center.

CWVP is a division of Developmental and Behavioral Pediatrics of the Boston Medical Center.

CWVP is sponsored by: Massachusetts Office of Victim Assistance, US Substance Abuse & Mental Health, Services Administration (National Child Traumatic Stress Network) Massachusetts Attorney Generals office, private foundations and individual contributions.

For more information call 617-414-4244, or visit: www.childwitnesstoviolence.org.

OBITUARY

Mary C. Papile, 98

Retired Quincy Assistant Treasurer

MARY C. PAPILE

A funeral Mass for Mary C. Papile, 98, of Quincy, a retired assistant treasurer for the city of Quincy and the matriarch of a family of 16 children, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at St. John's Church.

She died Monday at Carney Hospital after a very brief illness. She would have turned 99 in April.

She was the assistant treasurer for several decades, serving under several mayors.

She previously worked as the head cashier at the F.W. Woolworth Store in the Adams Building on Hancock Street in Quincy.

She was also involved in banking and was a traveling auditor for the Lincoln Department Stores based on Hancock Street for many decades. She would often boast of being a pioneer for a young woman being involved in a lone traveling occupation prior to so-called "women's liberation."

Her source of inspiration was the well-being and accomplishments of her several nieces and nephews, for whom she was very proud of.

She was very alert and articulate and enjoyed conversation and discussion on most all matters including current events and sports. She was an avid Boston Celtics fan and enjoyed talk shows, game shows and daily Catholic Mass on TV.

She will long be remembered by all who knew her for her feistiness.

She was the daughter and first of 16 children to Lucia and Raffaele Papile. As a very young girl, she assisted greatly in caring for her younger siblings. Seven of her brothers served in World War II.

She is survived by three brothers, James P. Papile of Quincy, Ralph J. Papile of Hingham and George W. Papile of Weymouth, all World War II veterans; and a sister, Gloria J. Kelly of Weymouth.

She is the sister of the late Alphonso D. Papile, Angelo M. Papile, William J. Papile and Leo Q. Papile, all World War II veterans, and Sadie E. Papile, Edward S. Papile, John P. Papile, Albert V. Papile, Jenney Papile, Amelia V. Flaherty and Helena M. Mariano.

She also leaves her live-in home care provider of 14 years, Christina Camara.

Burial will be in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Visiting was 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St.

Volunteer Open House At USS Salem April 2

The USS Salem's annual volunteer open house, which was snowed out of its original winter date, has been rescheduled to Sunday, April 2, from 12 noon to 2 p.m.

The event is used each year by the Salem and the U. S. Navy Shipbuilding Museum to recruit volunteers as tour guides of the 716-foot retired heavy cruiser and restoration personnel.

The Salem recently celebrated the 10th anniversary of its return to Quincy where it was built and also received a new 10-year lease from the MBTA, which owns that section of the old shipyard.

Much of the operation of the ship and museum is done by volunteers.

"Our volunteers are the life's blood of the ship," said Michael Condon, the executive director. "We are fortunate to have so many wonderful people donated their time to preserving our shipbuilding heritage.

"Things are pretty busy around here in the spring, summer and fall so we try and recruit new volunteers in the winter months so they can figure out what interests them and still have time to be trained before we really get busy."

Anyone interested in serving aboard the ship, which is moored at 739 Washington St., near the Fore River Bridge, should call 617-479-7900 or visit the web site www.uss-salem.org.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

'Nicole's Law' Takes Effect On Friday

As you probably already know, the "Nicole Law" takes effect tomorrow (Friday).

On that date, anyone who owns a residential property that contains fossil burning fuel equipment (oil, gas, wood, coal, etc.) or contains enclosed parking, is required to install carbon monoxide alarms. Residential property includes any one- or two-family homes, multi-family buildings, apartments, condominiums, townhouses, etc.

The alarms are required within homes on every level except for basements and attics that do not have habitable living spaces. An entirely finished or partially finished basement or attic requires an alarm. On levels with sleeping areas, the alarms must be placed within 10 feet of the bedroom doors.

Battery-powered CO alarms are acceptable, as are plug-in type or hard-wired type, while the latter two both require battery backup. All must be approved by an independent testing company such as Underwriters' Laboratories (UL). All must be installed as per the manufacturer's recommendations.

Landlords must install CO alarms in each dwelling unit. They must also inspect, test and maintain the alarms at least once a year or at the beginning of any rental period. Batteries are required to be replaced once a year as well.

In larger buildings, with multiple dwelling units with little or no sources of CO inside each unit, an alternate compliance option is offered. In such an instance, a boiler room for example, is targeted for alarms, as are immediately adjacent areas. A prerequisite for consideration for this alternative option includes an alarm system, which must notify the fire department directly should it be activated.

As of Friday, when you sell your home, you must have a certificate from the fire department stating that you have appropriately located working carbon monoxide alarms, in addition to smoke detectors. Contact the Quincy Fire Department should you have a question about this new law.

Meanwhile, if you think you have symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning or your CO alarm is sounding, contact the fire department and leave the building immediately.

Thank you!

Easy Steps For Removing Old Wallpaper

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

(NAPS) Love the look of new wallpaper but dread the thought of removing the old? If you've ever tried stripping wallpaper using a homemade vinegar and water solution-or a heavy commercial steamer- you know what a tedious, unpleasant and time-consuming task it can be.

But wallpaper removal doesn't have to be a chore if you use the right tools and learn a few tricks from the professionals. Here's some advice from the experts at ZINSSER that can make removing old wallpaper quicker and easier than you ever dreamed possible- even if you've never stripped wallpaper before.

• Step #1: Score the wallpaper. Most wallpaper has a washable, waterproof surface. If the top layer won't easily pull away, it's necessary to score the wallpaper first to ensure that the wallpaper stripper is able to reach and loosen the glue underneath. PaperTiger, a palm held tool with small cutting wheels that perforate the wallpaper without damaging the wall, is designed specifically for safe, fast and easy scoring.

• Step #2: Apply a wallpaper stripper like DIF Wallpaper Stripper. Available in liquid concentrate, gel or fast-acting liquid, it is safe, nontoxic and easy to use. Apply the stripper one wall at a time, starting at the top and working your way down. It's formulated to penetrate and break down wallpaper paste quickly. In 20 minutes or less, the wallpaper will be ready to be removed.

• Step #3: Scrape off the loose wallpaper. ZINSSER's Paper Scraper helps get the wallpaper off without hard work or surface damage. If any glue remains, simply reapply the stripper to the area, wait 15-20 minutes, remove it with Paper Scraper or a sponge and rinse with clean water. It's that simple.

For more information about removing or hanging wallpaper-or for more helpful home improvement tips-visit www.zinsser.com or call ZINSSER at 732-469-8100.

Homebuyer Workshop Begins April 10

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, in conjunction with Randolph Banking Collaborative, will host a First-Time Homebuyer Workshop April 10 and 15.

The two-day workshop will run from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday, April 10, and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 15, at Randolph Savings Bank, 10 Cabot Place, Stoughton.

Attendance at both workshops is mandatory to receive a homebuying certificate. Participants are asked to arrive at 8:45 a.m. at the April 15 workshop.

All potential first-time homebuyers are encouraged to attend. Participants will have the opportunity to be pre-qualified by a lender.

Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate professionals.

There is a $15 fee per person. Breakfast and lunch will be provided. Call 617-770-2227, ext. 31, or visit www.neighborhoodhousing.org.

Tips To Help Sell Your Home For More Money

(NAPS) One way to be sure you can gain a better price for your house is to have a home inspection before you put it on the market.

This profitable new trend in real estate is helping homeowners uncover any necessary repairs, so they can attend to them. This not only helps homes sell faster-because a buyer will be more likely to commit to a home with no major flaws-but a home that can pass inspection may earn the seller more money.

Inspecting a home and repairing such problems can speed home sales by as much as 30 percent. It's a small investment that really pays off.

"It's cheaper to fix it than to negotiate the price down," says Dan Steward, president of Pillar To Post, North America's largest home inspection service. "It's been suggested that for every $1 of identified repairs, the buyer would be looking for double that in price reduction." For example, paying as much as $5,000 to repair a leaky roof is cheaper than having to lower the selling price of your home by $10,000.

These are the 10 most common repairs that need fixing:

1. Improper surface grading and drainage. This can be responsible for water in the basement or crawlspace.

2. Improper electrical wiring. This includes insufficient electrical service, inadequate overload protection and amateur (often dangerous) wiring constructions.

3. Roof damage. Leaking roofs are a frequent problem.

4. Heating systems. Defective items include broken or malfunctioning controls, blocked chimneys and unsafe exhaust venting.

5. Poor overall maintenance can include cracked, peeling or blistered painted surfaces; crumbling masonry; makeshift wiring or plumbing; and broken fixtures and appliances.

6. Structurally related problems include damage in such components as foundation walls, floor joists, rafters and window and door headers.

7. Plumbing problems include old or incompatible materials, as well as faulty fixtures and waste lines.

8. Exterior problems include inadequate caulking and/or weather stripping.

9. Poor ventilation can be the result of many homeowners "oversealing" their homes, resulting in excessive interior moisture. This can lead to rotting.

10. Miscellaneous components may require minor cosmetic adjustments.

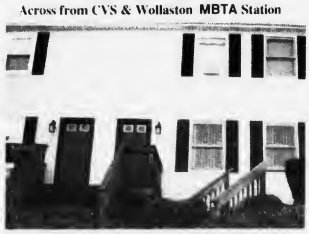
For more tips on getting your home ready for the real estate market, visit www.pillartopost.com.

Maintenance Matters

(NAPS) Your home is probably your single largest investment and regular maintenance can be a good way to protect it.

Routine home maintenance can prevent damage from everyday perils like plumbing failures that can lead to costly problems and become significant personal disasters.

The Institute for Business & Home Safety (IBHS) offers tips to help you avoid many unpleasant surprises and the inconvenience of major repairs:



• Regularly inspect plumbing and hoses to all appliances, including your refrigerator's ice maker, for signs of leaks bulging or cracking;

• Check for cracks and leaks in and around windows, doors, the roof, foundation and exterior walls;

• Check the condition of metal flashing, vents, air conditioners, siding and drywall.

Sprucing Up Your Home

(NAPS) With a few simple improvements you can add character and curb appeal to your home at a reasonable price and make it the envy of the neighborhood.

Tidy up perimeter landscaping. Collect and remove all weeds, loose leaves and litter from the property. Put up a fence or replace an old one in disrepair. Today's attractively priced vinyl fencing is one option that is easy to install, easy to care for and looks good for years. New styles and darker colors give you a wealth of options.

Inspect your home's siding. Is it chipping, staining or rotting? Your siding may just need a power wash or it may need to be replaced. If it's the latter, talk with your local contractor about low-maintenance vinyl and fiber cement siding options. New styles, such as CertainTeed's Board and Batten vertical vinyl siding, mimic the look of traditional siding and come in a wide range of colors.

Look at the roof. Asphalt shingles can last many years depending on the quality of the shingle, the slope of the roof and proper ventilation. To be sure your roof is in tip-top shape, use binoculars to look for missing, cracked, curling or decaying shingles. If any are spotted, it may be time to replace your roof. Consider asphalt shingles as new styles can add dimensional appeal to your home. They're long lasting and feature a Class A fire rating.

Picture your home online. Home improvements are also home investments. If you want to see how your chosen fence, cladding, roofing or other selection fits on your house, go to www.certainteedpictureyourhome.com to give your home a virtual makeover.

For more information on low-maintenance home improvements tips call 800-782-8777 or visit www.certainteed.com.

Tips For Healthy Houseplants

(NAPS) Houseplants bring a little bit of nature indoors-a beautiful touch of green that's not only soothing but that softens hard lines and glaring light in a home or office. They can even improve indoor air quality.

"Houseplants can be a natural way to decorate your home," says Bayer Advanced garden expert Lance Walheim, who is a regular contributor to Sunset magazine and who has authored or contributed to more than 30 books. "They can last for years if you provide the proper care".

• Match plants with light conditions. Houseplants vary in their light requirements. Some prefer strong light found right next to a south-facing window. Others thrive in the soft morning light of an east-facing window. For more information on choosing houseplants for various lighting situations, visit: http// www.bayeradvanced.com/garden/gardening/houseplants/.

• Use quality potting soil. Good potting soil (never use regular garden soil in containers) promotes healthy roots by providing a balance of proper aeration, nutrition and moisture-holding capability.

• Water properly. Houseplants need frequent watering. Stick your finger into the top two inches of the soil If it is dry, it's probably time to water. Water thoroughly, so the entire rootball is wet and the excess water runs out the bottom of the pot. Don't leave standing water in the catch tray for more than a day or two because that can promote root disease.

• Fertilize regularly. The frequent watering required by most houseplants leaches nutrients out of the soil. Be sure to fertilize regularly.

• Increase humidity and avoid drafts. Keep plants away from heater vents, doorways or drafty windows. Increase humidity by setting plants on trays layered with small pebbles and filled with water. Or place them in naturally humid areas like kitchens or bathrooms (but only if there is adequate light).

• Keep the foliage clean. Dust that accumulates on the leaves of houseplants will block light and harbor insect pests. Clean leaves by wiping them with a moist towel or, in mild winter areas, take plants outdoors and hose them off.

• Control insect pests. Many insect pests, including aphids, whiteflies, mealybugs and scales, can quickly get out of control on houseplants. You can keep them at bay with Bayer Advanced Duel Action Rose & Flower Insect Killer. Its two-way action kills insects on contact and keeps on protecting for weeks. One 24-ounce container treats 34 medium-size plants.

All Bayer Advanced products carry a money-back guarantee. Visit www.bayeradvanced.com or call 1-877-BAYERAG for more information.

Flamingo 'Flocking' Aids Rainbow Girls' Mission

By MIKAELA SLANEY

If there is a property that is so covered in plastic flamingos that the lawn itself appears pink, chances are that it wasn't a lapse in decorating taste, but the work of "Rainbow," a local girls service organization.

Their mission is to raise money to benefit Shriner's Hospital Classroom by "flocking" south-of-Boston properties.

The Wollaston Assembly #10, of the International Order of Rainbow for Girls, has raised $700 with this project, to date, with proceeds purchasing supplies for the classroom at Shriner's Hospital for Children in Boston.

"Flocking" is the scattering of flamingos by a crew, patroned by benefactors who volunteer their friend's properties.

The flocking crew then leaves a sign describing which of their friends paid to have them flocked, where the money was going to, prices to have the flamingos removed, and prices to flock someone else.

Participating in the flocking crew are:

Erin Frawley of Weymouth, Danielle Vecchione of Weymouth, Meredith Deacon of Weymouth, Elizabeth Rooney of Quincy, Caitlin Rooney of Quincy, Danielle Rodeck of Quincy, Jenna Lundin of Weymouth, and Autumn Oster "head flocker" of Quincy.

Participating adult flockers include:

Gus Oster of Quincy, Lois Prouty of Weymouth, Laurel Oster of Quincy and Debbie Vecchione of Weymouth.

A flocking crew is made up of four or five girls, with one in a getaway car. They arrive dressed in pink T Shirts with "flocking crew" displayed on the back, to distinguish them as a group to the casual onlooker.

"We're not a bunch of random people putting flamingos on your lawn, said Autumn Oster, a North Quincy High School student, and Worthy Advisor of Wollaston Assembly #10.

"From every flocking we've done, we've gotten at least one flocking from it. We've had no one who was mad or upset, they've all thought it was funny or a joke," said Oster.

Ward 3 councillor Kevin Coughlin apparently was in on the joke. He flocked Mayor William Phelan's yard, and bought himself preventative insurance protecting his own property for the rest of the season.

"I told (Phelan) he would be getting a surprise in, or around Valentine's Day," said Coughlin, "I hoped he would participate. He loved it and his kids thought it was great."

"It was a cute way to contribute and raise some funds for a worthy cause," he said.

Before flocking season, the troops were prepared with a "Meet The Flockers" party, where they were trained in the event of angry property owners, or dogs.

If a person is not local, but is visiting the area, their car may be flocked with pink paper flamingos, and a baggy for disposal.

Prices are:

• One flocking is $15.

• Removal alone is $10, for an extra $5 a flocking is included.

• Four flockings are $50.

• Special occasion flockings are $25. (These include extra flamingos and signs announcing birthdays, anniversaries, graduations, birth announcements, or Mother's or Father's Day.) • Insurance to prevent flocking for the whole season is $20.

• "I've been flocked" T-shirts are $15.

Flocking season runs from Feb. 1 to June 18, (Father's Day).

For more information, call 617-471-3121, or email www.littleoster1115@yahoo.com.

Marina Bay Provides On-Site Training To Local Students

Four North Quincy High School students have completed a three-month custodial and culinary arts training program from staff of the Marina Bay Skilled Nursing and Rehabilitation Center.

The students participated in the Learning Center, a program designed to assist students ranging from 16-22 years old.

Accompanied by their vocational teacher and paraprofessional, Marina Bay provided the students with on-site training, and social interaction with employees.

Participating staff and residents of the center included:

Rosemary McGlaughlin, David Goulart, and Kevin Lavimodiere.

On-site training is considered imperative to students who do not attend traditional trade schools, said Tina Markarian, Vocational teacher for the Learning Center.

Many students with cognitive impairments may not be able to meet demands of formal vocational programs, without on-site training, said Markarian.

The Learning Center at NQHS teaches students employable skills to ease the transition from school to work. Marina Bay, The Blue Hills (DCR), Quincy Medical Center, and the Bayshore Athletic Club are among the caregivers who have welcomed participating students.

For more information, call the center at 617-786-8812.

Board Grants License For South Quincy Restaurant

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Richard McKay, who is opening a restaurant called McKay's Breakfast & Lunch, 144 Franklin St. received his common victualer license Tuesday at the License Board meeeting.

Chairman Joseph Shea remembered that McKay owned the restaurant a few years back. McKay said he owned it from 1989 to 1995 and decided to re-open it.

It was formerly Basile's.

McKay said he is going back to basics with traditional Irish breakfasts, and lunches which will include meat loaf and turkey dinners.

He said "people are more health conscious these days so you have to go along with the changes."

McKay has managed several restaurants and was once employed at The Egg & I.

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said McKay is a "great grill cook" and cooks a "heck of a breakfast."

McKay said the front of the building needs some repair including the windows and said "with the Adams houses across the street, I feel it necessary ."

After some cosmetic renovating, McKay said he hopes to open by May 1.

Hours of operation will be from 5 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Quincy's Goal: Make Tourney

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

One would expect the Quincy High School baseball team to take a step back after graduating a handful of talent from last year's successful 14-6 squad that bowed out to top seed Walpole in the quarterfinals.

Head coach Mike Draicchio, though, likes what he has seen on the field so far this spring.

"It looks good to me what we have right now," he said. "We still have four returning starters. Our goal is to take it one game at a time and we want to make the tournament. We've made it three years in a row and hopefully we can do it again. The kids are pretty enthusiastic with what we're trying to do."

The Presidents open their season next Wednesday against O'Bryant at 3:30 p.m. at Adams Field., and they'll host Brighton next Friday at 3:30 p.m. and travel to King Philip Regional the following day at noon.

The pitching staff has undergone a major overhaul as only one players returns with varsity experience, junior Steve Connolly who threw a total of one inning.

With star pitchers John Folino, John Santon and Steve Sullivan gone, the new cast will not be asked to pitch entire games like last year's big three.

"There's going to be a lot of kids throwing," Draicchio said. "A lot of different arms on the mound. Obviously we lost the three big guns. It's going to be broken up between a lot of guys. It's going to be a little different with a lot of arms, guys probably getting three, four innings and not going seven innings like last year."

In the mix are Connolly, seniors Joe Griffin, Dan Scribi, co-captain Mike MacPherson, Jon Pelletier, juniors Danny Myers, Matt Boyle, Anthony Gilbody, Wendall Cosgrove, and sophomore Ricky Salvucci.

Defensively, the Presidents have many kids who can play multiple positions and they're still fighting it out for the jobs.

"We're making sure they understand more than one position, being versatile," Draicchio said. "As far as position wise for us, it's going to fluctuate especially when some guys are pitching. Almost all the outfielders can throw."

Junior John Alexander, who started at third base last year, returns to his regular position as the starting catcher. Senior Jason Thomas will back him up.

In the infield, Griffin and Pelletier will play first base, senior co-captain John Orlando is back at second base, Connolly returns to shortstop and Salvucci is a newcomer at third base.

Orlando will move to short when Connolly pitches, and Connolly can also man the hot corner. Senior Mark Demlin and sophomores Teddy Walsh and Mike Lebel will see time at second.

In the outfield, MacPherson returns to left field and center and right field will be shared among those on the pitching staff.

Although the Presidents also lost some big bats to graduation, the returnees are very capable with the stick.

Orlando is a contact hitter who batted .300 last year, Connolly had some big games, including a 3-for-3 performance against Walpole, MacPherson is quick, bunts well and gets on base, and Alexander can hit for power.

Draicchio also believes the new players can do the job, including Boyle, Pelletier, Gilbody and Griffin.

"We have a lot of guys that have won," Draicchio said. "Guys that have played in the basketball program, guys that have played in the hockey program. That's a big plus for us."

"You just want the success from last year to carry over," he added. "I hope we get off to a good start in the first week and that will let us know where we'll be. I believe Quincy High School can get into the tournament."

Olympian Sarah Parsons At Presidents' Place Tonight

United States 2006 Torino Winter Olympian Sarah Parsons, a hockey medalist, will be at Presidents' Place today (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the corridor of the Park Service Visitor Center.

The Blue Hill Adventures and Quarry Museum is presenting the event. There is no charge. There is also a window display of past and present Winter Olympics memorabilia and pictures of the old St. Moritz Winter Carnivals in West Quincy.

AS YOU MAY RECALL

As design cycles become shorter and automobiles become more complex, it is understandable that some mistakes may be made along the way, especially in a model's first year of production. As vehicle manufacturers diligently "work out the kinks," it is entirely possible that recalls may be issued to owners. It might be that a faulty part is the subject of a recall, in which case the manufacturer will replace it free of charge, with minimal disruption to the vehicle owner. What is important to note is that a recall is not a sign of unreliability. If anything, it is a tangible sign of the manufacturer's commitment to safety and trouble-free operation. As such, consumers should view recalls as positive measures.

If you have any questions about existing or possible recalls please don't hesitate to consult the experts at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. We enjoy helping our community handle their automotive needs. Bring your car to 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree today to have it looked at. Preventative maintenance saves you money in the long run. Have questions? Please call 781-843-1550 at your leisure. Rebuilding Red Raiders Hope To Reach Tourney

By CHRIS POISSON

BASEBALL

Head coach Rick Beach finds his North Quincy High School baseball team in another rebuilding season after graduating eight seniors and losing several other kids for various reasons.

"It's another rebuilding year," he said. "Our goal, still, is to get to the tournament. We haven't been in it the last three years. The kids are working hard. Hopefully we can make it. We still have some good players."

The Red Raiders kick off their 22-game season Saturday afternoon at 2 at St. Joseph's Central, located out in the Berkshires.

Next week, they travel to Bourne Monday at 3:30 p.m., take on Hingham Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the home opener at Adams Field and head to Boston Latin Thursday at 4 p.m.

North Quincy, which posted a 7-13 record a year ago, will be led by senior tri-captains Tom Power, Paul Doolan and John Allen, who have been varsity starters since their freshman year. But there's not much varsity experience after that.

Behind the plate, junior Steve Matos and freshman Matt Rodriguez, who played on last year's Babe Ruth World Series team, will split time.

Around the infield, Doolan and junior Matt Edgerly will share first base duties and juniors Chris Boyd and Brendan Carnell will rotate at second base.

Junior transfers Joe Lousararian (Boston College High School) and Pat Totten (Catholic Memorial) will man the shortstop and third base positions, respectively.

As for the pitching staff, Power, Allen and Doolan will receive a lot of innings with Guerriero also getting some work and Edgerly pitching in relief.

"Offensively, we'll struggle a bit with the young kids," Beach said. "Defensively, I think we'll have a decent team."

Also on the team this season are seniors Joe Ferris, James Mullaney, Andrew Dwan, Josh Brabazon and Phi Nguyen. Sophomores Alex Tragellils and Dan Richards, who also played on the Babe Ruth World Series team, will float between varsity and JV.

Several players should return during the season, including senior Joe Ceurvels, juniors Mike Jay and Jay Lewis and sophomore Mike Horgan.

"There's a lot of young kids so the future looks bright," Beach said. "I have a good junior class and a good sophomore class. Hopefully we can get through this year and work from there."

Brendan Mulcahy, Brian Sullivan On BC High Hockey Champ Team

Quincy residents Brendan Mulcahy and Brian Sullivan are members of the Boston College High School hockey team that captured the Division 1A "Super 8" state championship with a recent 2-1 win over Catholic Memorial at TD Banknorth Garden.

Mulcahy, a senior forward, will attend Suffolk University and play hockey for the Division 3 program. Sullivan is a sophomore forward. Both have been players in the Quincy Youth Hockey program for many years.

Spring Sports Season Underway At Eastern Nazarene College

BASEBALL

March 25

The Crusaders (7-10 overall, 4-2 Commonwealth Coast Conference) split a double-header with Colby-Sawyer at home, winning, 6-3, and losing, 9-7.

In the first game, ENC held a 6-5 lead going into the seventh inning, only to give up four unearned runs on a walk and three errors to waste an effort by ace pitcher Brad Mountain, who gave up one earned run.

In the second game, Justen Smith went the distance, scattering seven hits and allowing an earned run. Leif Janson and Craig Turner each went 2-for-4 to spark the offense.

March 24

ENC pounded out a pair of 12-2 victories in a double-header at Anna Maria College.

In the first game, Matt Maganelli gave up one earned run on five hits in a complete-game effort. A.J. Turner, Tyler Abel, Jarred Wiedenroth and Shawn Bohannon each had two hits.

In the second game, Josh Daniels gave up two runs and stuck out six in four innings for the win. Graham Crain and A. Turner (two RBI) each had two hits and Matt Watson knocked in three runs.

March 23

ENC managed only four hits off UMass-Boston sophomore Nick Conway in a 4-0 loss at home.

Freshman pitcher Dave Dickerson pitched well, scattering nine hits and giving up two runs over 7.1 innings.

Junior left-hander Brad Mountain tossed a no-hitter to lead the Crusaders to a 1-0 home victory over Massachusetts Maritime Academy.

Mountain, who almost threw a no-hitter earlier in the year, struck out 18 and walked none in the nine-inning gem. He nearly had a perfect game but he hit a batter and the defense committed an error.

MEN'S TENNIS

March 25

ENC (4-4, 2-0) earned a tough 7-2 victory over league opponent Endicott College, grinding out three set matches on more than one occasion to remain unbeaten in CCC play this year.

No. 5 singles Phil LaFountain earned his first victory and No. 6 singles Matt Woodley came back from a 2-5 deficit in the first set to win, 7-5, and then won, 6-1, for the point.

SOFTBALL

March 24

The Crusaders (4-8, 0-2) dropped a pair of 5-1 games in a double-header against Nichols College.

In the first game, freshman pitcher Rebekah Sorensen of Quincy pitched well but the offense managed only two hits. Sorensen allowed only two earned runs and fanned eight in seven innings.

In the second game, freshman pitcher Rachel Sorensen of Quincy pitched into the seventh inning with ENC trailing, 2-1, before Nichols added three more runs.

Rebecca Walsh went 2-for-3 and scored the lone run in the fourth inning on singles by Melaina Genovese and Brittany Hardie.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

ERODED CONFIDENCE

If your teeth experience sensitivity to cold, it may be that they are eroding. Dental erosion is a chemical process that gradually eats away at teeth's outer enamel coating. This process should not be confused with cavities (caries), which result from a bacterial process that can bore through the enamel as well as through the inner dentin layer of the tooth. The major culprit in erosion is acidity. The crystalline calcium salts that comprise most of the tooth enamel start dissolving below a pH level of 5.5. Generally, the primary offenders are the mild acids contained in many beverages and citrus fruits. The worst dental erosion is produced by non-cola drinks such as ginger ale and bottled ice tea.

This column on dental erosion is prepared as a public service to help our readers better understand today's modern dental care and to offer some practical hints for you and your family. If your teeth are especially sensitive to cold consult with your doctor. If you need answers to questions about any dental health care, don't hesitate to contact us at 617-479-6220. Even the subtlest change in your smile can make a dramatic difference in the way you look and feel. Our recommendations for dental treatment are always in the best interest of the patient. Ruth H. Wainwright, 91

'Quincy Sun Citizen Of Year,' Houghs Neck Activist, Volunteer

RUTH WAINWRIGHT

By TOM HENSHAW

They say if you want something done, ask the busiest person to do it.

For half a century in Houghs Neck, they asked Ruth Wainwright.

She was, at various times, a Houghs Neck correspondent for The Patriot Ledger and a staff reporter for The Quincy Sun and co-founder of the monthly Houghs Neck Community Council's Bulletin and its editor since 1959.

She and her friend Dorothy Liang co-authored "The History of Houghs Neck" and she also wrote "Atherton Hough, A Puritan's Progress" and a children's book, "Clorinda's Box."

She was a founding member of the Houghs Neck Community Council and twice was voted its Good Neighbor of the Year as well as serving as its secretary and a member of the scholarship committee.

She was a den mother for Cub Scout Pack 6, a legal secretary during World War II, a member of the Quincy Historical Society and for more than 30 years a volunteer at Quincy Medical Center.

When she was chosen The Quincy Sun's Citizen of the Year for 1986, and was asked to supply a resume of her activities, she wrote:

"I am very uncomfortable about this. I have done very little more than any parent would do. Maybe you could reconsider."

Ruth Holly (Lewis) Wainwright died Sunday at Quincy Medical Center after a brief illness at the age of 91.

"I am saddened to hear of the death of Ruth Wainwright," said Frank McCauley, the former mayor and a Houghs Necker who lived on the same street as the Wainwrights.

"Sandra and I, along with the entire McCauley family, extend our sincerest condolences to members of Ruth's family."

"She was cherished and loved by the community," said Leo Kelly, the city councillor from Ward 1 which includes Houghs Neck. "We will miss her. She leaves a deep void in the community."

Kelly, who contributed to the Community Council's Bulletin, recalled the monthly calls, warning him, "You're late with your article for the Bulletin — but I'll give you a couple more days."

Mrs. Wainwright was born Aug. 12, 1914, in Stamford, Conn., and moved with her husband, Richard, to Houghs Neck in September, 1949, after a year's stay in Pembroke.

She was educated in Stamford schools and Merrill Business School in Connecticut. She was married Sept. 28, 1940.

She and Richard had seven children, Laurel Wainwright of Quincy, Stephen C. Wainwright of Pembroke, Holly Wainwright of Hanover, Paul W. Wainwright of Wrentham, David D. Wainwright of Marlboro, Richard S. Wainwright Jr. of Glendale, Ariz., and the late Jonathan Wainwright. Her husband died in 2003.

She was a member of the Atherton Hough PTA from 1949 to 1971, its president in 1958-59, and a member of the Broad Meadows PTA from 1958 to 74.

Mrs. Wainwright joined the Ledger as district correspondent in 1952 and remained until 1966. She wrote for The Quincy Sun from 1969 to 1971.

In addition to her work for the Houghs Neck Community Council, she was a

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Recently we came across a statement by that most inspiring of women, Helen Keller. Living in a world in which there was neither sound or light, she became one of the world's greatest figures. Her statement awakens us to the possibilities of human nature at its best . . . We pass her statement to you without comment . . . It speaks for itself. . .

"I, too, have my humble testimony, and I shall be most happy if through a word of mine even one individual gains a sweeter sense of God's presence or a keener zest for mastering the difficulties of outward environment. As I wander through the dark, encountering difficulties, I am aware of encouraging voices that murmur from the spirit realm. I sense a holy passion pouring down from the spring of Infinity. I thrill to music that beats with the pulses of God. Bound to suns and planets by invisible chords, I feel the flame of eternity in my soul. Here, in the midst of the everyday air, I sense the rush of etheral rains, I am conscious of the splendor that binds all things of earth to all things of heaven – immured by silence and darkness, I possess the light which shall give me vision of a thousandfold when death sets me free," wrote Miss Keller.

The Garden Bug

Soil testing

Fill a glass jar with 1/3 of your garden's soil and 2/3 water. Add 1 tsp. liquid soap, screw on the lid, and shake. Sand settles quickly, silt in a few hours, and clay takes days. More clay means your garden will retain water and nutrients better, but will dry out slowly. Sandy soil is less fertile than clay, but drains water faster and heats up quicker. Amend your soil as needed, and note the soil needs of anything you intend to plant.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) With change dominant this week, don't be surprised to find new facts emerging that could put another slant on a situation and offer you another choice. Think it through before you decide.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) There could be some lingering problems from a previous matter that involved a decision you felt you had to make. Resolve the situation with your strong Taurean nononsense approach.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The Gemini's carefully made plans could be undone by someone's unexpected decision. Getting the full story behind that surprise move can help you decide how to deal with the matter

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Recently uncovered information might put a new light on a situation you thought had been resolved. Keep an open mind about possible changes that you might have to consider.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) With a potential revision of an old agreement, you can't beat the Big Cat for knowing how to sharpen a "clause" to the best advantage. Someone close could have the news you've been waiting for.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Certain issues in the workplace could put you in the middle of a dispute you'd rather not deal with. Express your honest feelings before the pressure to take sides builds up.

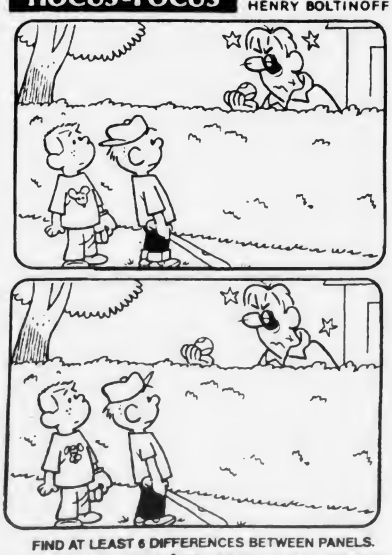
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might feel uneasy disagreeing with someone you've been close to. But your relationship should be able to withstand and even thrive when confronted with your true feelings.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A romantic situation seems to be creating more confusion than you can handle. If so, own up to your feelings. The sooner you do, the better your chances are for working things out.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) With change directing the Archer's aim, consider a second look at your plans and see where they might benefit from a revision. A workplace matter is close to a resolution.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) New contacts help you learn some important information about upcoming developments. The week calls for the Sea Goat to be more flexible than usual in a number of matters.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) With both change and uncertainty in your aspect, you might feel less confident in a previous decision. That's OK. Check it out and see where it could be modified, if necessary.



PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Old relationships that seemed to be sinking are buoyant again, and new relationships are benefiting from Cupid's loving care. This could be a good time to make a major move.

BORN THIS WEEK: You prefer making your own path, but you'll go out of your way to help someone in need.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Rev. David Hefling Installation As Rector At St. Chrysostom's May 6

The Rev. David Hefling will be installed as rector of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, 1 Linden St., Wollaston, at The Celebration of a New Ministry Saturday, May 6 at 1 p.m.

Late last fall the parish of St. Chrysostom's called their first full-time rector in nearly eight years. The Rev. Hefling began his ministry there in January, coming to the Quincy church from Akron, in the Diocese of Ohio, where he had served two parishes.

The decision was significant for the people of St. Chrysostom's and part of their overall "Great Faith Venture" that included a four-year building project of 10 condominiums on land next to the church formerly occupied by the church rectory. All units were quickly sold last spring, with the exception of one that the parish kept for the new priest.

REV. DAVID HEFLING

In addition to the building project and the calling of a full-time rector, the parish took on an extended building and grounds upgrade project that is on-going, and have made a major commitment of support to the Quincy Chinese Ministry program currently housed in the church's parish hall.

The Rev. Hefling was ordained a week after graduating with an M.Div. from Seabury-Western Theological Seminary in Evanston, IL in June 2003. Prior to coming to Quincy, he was an early childhood educator as well as an administrator at Kent State University, among his other positions.

Rev. Hefling holds three other degrees: a bachelor's in early childhood education; a master's in family development; and an Ed.S. in administration. He credits his extensive background in education and social services with helping him discern his call to the priesthood.

Rev. Hefling says his priorities at St. Chrysostom's include providing a welcoming and inclusive house of prayer and worship; involving the parish as more of a community outreach center; and establishing a solid and consistent array of Christian formation programs for all ages.

A Job Well Done

On March 11, at approximately 2:44 a.m., Officer John McGovern and Fallon Ambulance were dispatched to the Lincoln Avenue area on a call of "a possible overdose."

When Officer McGovern arrived at the apartment, he was immediately directed to a bathroom at the end of the hall. As he walked down the hall, a man (suspect) in the bathroom yelled, "Hurry up! Why are you walking? My cousin's dying."

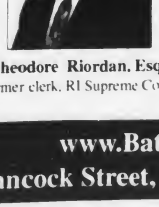
LT. DAN MINTON

Officer McGovern attempted to enter the small bathroom occupied by three men. Once he was able to look inside, he observed two men attempting to dunk another man's head in a half-filled tub of water. One of the men slipped on the floor and was having a difficult time getting up. The other man, the suspect, became verbally abusive to Officer McGovern, yelling, "Don't just stand there! You're (expletive) useless."

When the Fire Department arrived in the hall less than a minute later, the suspect said to them, "Get out of the way, we need the professionals." As the Fire Department personnel examined the unconscious male, Officer McGovern attempted to calm the two men, who identified themselves as brothers and cousins of the victim.

When Officer McGovern asked the suspect to move out of the bathroom so the firefighters could attend to his cousin, he retorted, "Don't tell me what to do. My cousin's dying and if he dies, I'm gonna (expletive) kill you!," as he thrust his finger at the officer in an aggressive manner.

The officer again told the suspect to move out and when the suspect refused, he told him he would have to arrest him. This led to the suspect yelling and cursing as he approached the officer. The suspect was stopped by his brother, who wrapped him in a bear hug from behind and pleaded for him to stop.



The suspect continued his aggressiveness, which hindered the paramedics from reaching the victim. Officer McGovern, aware this was a potential life-threatening situation, pulled out his Oleoresin-Capsicum (mace) and warned the suspect to cease.

The suspect continued his aggressive behavior and was then sprayed in the chest area. The suspect immediately stopped his aggressive behavior to care for himself. Officer McGovern handcuffed the suspect and brought him to an awaiting cruiser, where he was transported to the station.

The suspect, a 29-year-old Quincy resident, was arrested for "Disorderly Conduct." The victim was transported to Quincy Medical Center for treatment. To the Quincy Fire Department, Fallon Ambulance and Officer McGovern, great patience and nice work!

Parents Warned At Meeting

Online Can Be Like A 'Predators Disneyland'

The MySpace.com slogan is "a place for friends," but Dan Feeney of the Norfolk County D.A.'s office warned an audience of parents at a meeting recently, "in many aspects it's like Disneyland for predators."

"Not to beat up on MySpace as an entity. It isn't a problem as long as (kids) know what they're doing," he said.

In a program directed by Police Lt. Dan Minton, and hosted by Quincy High School, Feeney and trooper David McSweeney stressed dangers of online social networking, and how to restrict access and personal information to keep children safe from online crime.

They were welcomed by Quincy High School principal, Frank Santoro.

Online sites like "Zanga" and "Facebook" and online social games were mentioned, but MySpace was the particular discussion topic because of its 47 million membership, with 4.6 billion hits monthly, said Feeney.

McSweeney, who specializes in computer forensics warned parents that the ultimate goal of online predators is to arrange a meeting with a child. They have arranged for train rides, and mailed plain tickets to potential victims, he said.

It is often teens who feel isolated at school and at home who reach out for online companionship as a means to fill the void, Feeney said.

Predators can piece together personal information from online pictures, such as what a child's younger brothers and sisters look like. Sometimes background information in pictures may tip a predator as to where the child lives or stays, said McSweeney.

McSweeney advised MySpace members not to post real names, not to arrange for face to face meetings with strangers, and not to respond to messages that are threatening, hateful, or uncomfortable, and instead report concerns to police and service providers. In case that there is unwanted online coercion, he advises to save

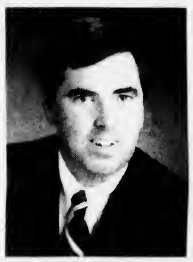
Estimated 275 Tons Daily From Shipyard Site

Possible Heavy Sludge Trucking Raises Concerns



By MIKAELA SLANEY

In the event of a shutdown or plant failure at the New England Fertilizer Co. plant (NEFCO), 275 tons of sludge will be hauled from the Fore River Shipyard site daily, by truck rather than rail.

Concerns were raised at Monday night's city council meeting at which a letter from Senator Michael Morrissey estimated the 275 tons could be trucked each day from the fertilizer facility.

Morrissey also said in the letter than in order to cut costs Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) did not renew the plant's contract with ECDC Environmental LC.

The contract allowed NEFCO to use rail service to and from the facility to haul fertilizing sludge in the ECDC landfill in Utah, he said.

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

WILLIAM PHELAN

Mayor William Phelan in a letter to Patrick A. Laskey, executive director of MWRA expressed his concerns about the trucks using the city streets.

"MWRA may be considering accepting NEFCO's proposed (five) sites without considering the significant impact this change may have on residents of the city, particularly those living closest to the plant.

"On-site storage, odor, heavy truck traffic through neighborhood streets, and the leaking of sludge material from non-watertight

'Cleaner, Greener' Cleanup Set For May 6

The 17th annual "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" project, which draws nearly 1,500 volunteers each year, will be held Saturday, May 6, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Citywide cleanup targets include beaches, marshes, neighborhood parks, playgrounds, school yards and open space areas. Rain date is Saturday, May 13.

Last year more than 25 various public areas were designated as cleanup sites, many at the suggestion of residents who worked together in targeting areas in their neighborhoods, improving aesthetic conditions in those areas.

"'Cleaner, Greener Quincy' emphasizes the pride and community spirit that so many residents share for our city," said Mayor William Phelan. "Each year, I see neighbors roll up their sleeves and team up to spruce up parks, marshes, school yards and other areas in their neighborhoods and the result positively impacts our appearance and our community as a whole.

"I'm always pleased to see the number of youngsters from sports programs, school organizations and scouting groups that participate in this event. Their participation instills a sense of stewardship that not only benefits them individually, but our entire city as well."

In addition to the resident comprised cleanup force, the Department of Public Works, Park and Forestry Departments,

At Impact Quincy 'Town Meeting'

12 Families Recognized For Role In Fight Against Substance Abuse

By MIKAELA SLANEY

The families of 19 Broad Meadows peer advocates were recognized for their support in their children's role in combating substance abuse, at a "town meeting," in the new City Hall, hosted by Impact Quincy.

The families were credited for their success in teaching their children the fundamentals of avoiding drugs and underage-drinking, allowing them to serve as role models for their classmates.

The families of the following students were recognized:

Thomas Edward Bloomer, Nicole Campbell, Edward Einsidler, Colleen Farnsworth, Daniel Gibbons, Kathleen Gorman, Emily Hajjar, Carlie Hennebury, Shantelle Denique Johnson, Takei Kurtzman, Shirley Leong, Jonathan Michael Mahoney, Caitlyn Mann, Chris and Kim Mariano, Kevin Tarbox McDonagh, Meghan Peterson, Nicole Bridget Peterson and Kori Sorvenson.

Alejandro Rivera served as program chairman, with an introduction by Arthur Keough, chairman of the Impact Quincy Coalition, and Tom Largey, Executive Secretary to the Mayor, awarding the certificates.

Speakers included Largey, Janet Powell, director of pupil personnel services of Quincy Public Schools, Barbara Fenby, Health Educator, and Ron Bersani, the grandfather of Melanie Powell and an advocate for Melanie's Law.

"Healthy choices are being made by many," said Powell. "More are choosing not to drink. The vast majority of junior high school students have not drank. We love our kids in Quincy, you love your kids in Quincy."

"Most of the people in Quincy are doing the right thing," said Rivera.

"You should be very proud of that," said Fenby. "Kids that have a vision of themselves tomorrow aren't going to mess that up. Let them know it would be greatly disappointing for you if they let you down."

Fenby's students are familiar with the story of Melanie Powell, and the struggle that her grandfather endured to make "Melanie's Bill" into "Melanie's Law."

"(Bersani) showed our kids how they could make a difference by writing," said Fenby. "My 8th grade students ate it up."

"Has anyone not heard of Melanie's Law?" asked Bersani. Not one hand was raised.

Melanie's Law enforces stricter penalties in Massachusetts for drunk driving offenders. It was designed to stiffen drunk driving laws in Massachusetts, which Bersani described as the "worst in the nation."

In an effort to give a face to the name in Melanie's Law, Bersani relived for the audience the experiences that he and Melanie's parents went through preceding and following the death of his granddaughter, who was hit by a drunk driver in July of 2003. Melanie was 13 years old at the time.

Bersani asked politicians how they could dismiss issues of drinking and driving by assuming it could only happen to someone else's child, when Melanie was a prime example of the average American girl.

"Melanie came to stand for everybody's little girl," said Bersani. "She was a real person. She had hopes and dreams. We believe it's affected the state in a positive manner."

After the peer advocates stood with their families to accept the awards, Fenby said "All those kids that stood up, they're Melanie... they're Melanie's age."

The peer advocates had personalized T shirts stating their hobby that serves as their anti-drug. Most were sports related.

According to statistics given by Rivera:

• A reported 48 percent of Massachusetts high school students admitted in a survey to using alcohol within the past 30 days.

• More than 25 percent had their first drink before the age of 13 years old.

• A reported 25 percent admitted to binge-drinking in the past month, which qualifies as five or more drinks in a sitting.

• A reported 30 percent said that they acquired their alcohol from home.

Impact Quincy participates in "Start Talking Before They Start Drinking," a national campaign to combat underage drinking.

They advised parents to:

• Not be swayed by what other parents are doing. Limit alcohol at parties and gatherings. If it is suspected that a child is drinking, they probably are. Address the issue now.

• Set a good example. Try to be involved in the child's life. Become educated in issues of drugs and alcohol and openly communicate with the child.

• Establish clear rules in the home regarding alcohol and other substances. Listen to the child. Seek and give ongoing support.

• Encourage the child to become involved in extracurricular activities. Know the child's friends, and monitor their activities.

• Reduce accessibility of alcohol in the home. Don't keep it easily accessible. Store all alcohol in locked cabinets

THE VETERANS MEMORIAL Stadium project is underway and Park Department crews are currently stripping the field and setting elevations to install a drainage system for the area surrounding the field. The new Sports-Tex field is scheduled to be laid in July.

Veterans Memorial Stadium Renovation Project Underway

The Veterans Memorial Stadium renovation project is underway and the new Sport-Tex field, the same artificial grass surface used by the NFL's Baltimore Ravens, is scheduled to be installed in July.

"I am excited that this project is underway," said Mayor William Phelan. "It will benefit young men and women in Quincy for years to come. Veterans Stadium will be a multi-sport facility that we can be proud of as a city.

"I want to thank the City Council for their support of this project. The new field will allow for increased use and take the burden off all of our other fields."

The new field, which will be used by the football, soccer and lacrosse teams at the high school and youth sports levels, will cost $414,000.

The project, funded by revenues from the city's hotel/motel tax, is part of Phelan's Natural Resource Improvement Initiative, a $10 million investment in the environment and park system.

The Park Department is doing much of the preparation work, saving the city thousands of dollars. Crews are currently stripping the field and the more than 5,000 yards of loam will be removed and used in other park improvement projects in Quincy.

They have also begun setting elevations to install a drainage system for the area surrounding the field. The field will have its own drainage system.

The track will be removed this week.

U.S. Hockey Olympian Sarah Parsons Visits Quincy

Sarah Parsons, a member of the U.S. Olympic hockey team that won a bronze medal at the Torino Winter Olympics, visited Quincy last Thursday.

Parsons, a Dover resident, spoke of her experiences at Torino and took questions from the crowd on hand at the Galleria in Presidents' Place, Quincy Center.

She presented event sponsor Blue Hills Adventure and Quarry Museum with an autographed poster of the U.S. hockey team signed by all the team members, which is now in the Olympics display window.

Blue Hills Adventure and Quarry Museum's David Hodgdon, president and founder, and Kumu Gupta, public relations, presented Parsons with a bouquet of white roses as a token of appreciation and congratulations.

Quincy Hosts Successful Seminar On Weapons Of Mass Destruction

The city of Quincy hosted a three-day seminar of weapons of mass destruction, awareness for municipal officials and both Mayor William Phelan and Emergency Management Director Tom Gorman pronounced it a success.

More than 50 people attended the seminar in the Koch Park and Recreation Complex to receive training in identifying suspicious materials and the proper actions top take when dangerous materials are discovered.

"Our municipal employees are most likely to be the first onto the scene of any potential incident," said Phelan.

"It is important that every employee, not just the traditional public safety employees, be aware and informed so that a proper and timely response actions can be taken.

"Though I hope we never have to use the skills taught at this seminar, the information provided could potentially result in the saving of lives."

Funding for the seminar was provided by the Urban Area Security Initiative (UASI), a program that has brought more than $2 million in grants for training and equipment to the city in the past three years.

Recruits Needed To 'Walk For Hunger'

Project Bread has the "Help Wanted" sign out for recruits to take part in the annual Walk for Hunger, the nation's oldest continuous pledge walk to raise funds for emergency soup kitchens and food pantries.

This year's walk will take place Sunday, May 7, with registration from 7 to 9 a.m. on Boston Common and the 20-mile route weaving through Boston, Brookline, Newton, Watertown and Cambridge.

For the almost 40,000 walkers it is a fun event but it can be serious business for 179,000 households (almost 450,000 people) in Massachusetts who struggle to put food on the table.

"Over this past year, we have seen 13 per cent more households seeking food assistance," said Tracy Donahue, director of planning and development for Quincy Community Action (QCAP).

"Money raised through Project Bread's Walk for Hunger is essential to QCAP's Emergency Food Center Program.

"It wouldn't be possible for us to deliver emergency food to hungry families, children and seniors without the commitment and generosity of the thousands of walkers who take part in this event."

To learn how you may take part in the Walk for Hunger, contact Project Bread at 617-723-5000 or visit www.projectbread.org.

We May Reach 90,000

Joe Shea has been city clerk for 14 years and still hoping to see it happen.

That's for Quincy to reach a population of 90,000. This, he thinks, could be the year.

SHEA

"I am pretty optimistic," he says.

The city's population according to the U.S. Census in 2001 is 88,025. An approximate 2,000 gain is needed to hit 90,000.

Shea is encouraged it will, because of the rate of return of this year's city census forms.

And all the condo and apartment construction that has been going on.

Some 45,970 census forms with return paid postage envelopes were mailed out to Quincy residences at the beginning of February.

"We are doing very well," says Shea. "I would estimate that between 32,000 and 34,000 have been returned."

He said reminder cards are now being mailed to those who have not yet returned the forms.

"We would like to get them all in by the end of April," he says.

He notes that the city census — and federal — do more than just determine the city's population.

The information gathered in the city census helps update voter and jury files, the pre-school population and other statistical information of importance to the city.

Reaching the 90,000 figure — or more — this year would also be a big step toward qualifying the city for more federal aid through the next U.S. Census.

If you haven't yet sent your census form back to the city clerk's office, do so now.

You'll be helping your city gather important information and increased federal funds.

And you'll be helping yourself.

Information received, for example, also helps simplify E911 emergency response.

INCIDENTALLY, there is one more thing Shea is hoping to see, one he concedes is virtually Mission Impossible.

That's an election day when every Quincy registered voter actually turns out to vote.

The city now has some 54,200 registered voters. And come this fall, as usual, there will be a ballot waiting for each one of them.

A ballot by law is printed for every registered voter, just in case that miracle day comes when every one of them turns up at the polls. In most elections more wind up being trashed than used.

Presidential elections draw the biggest turnouts. The Bush-Kerry race in 2004 attracted a 70 percent turnout. But last year's city election — without a mayor's contest — drew only 25 percent.

PHELAN

SHEETS

And even the 2001 battle in which William Phelan upset incumbent James Sheets by 17 votes didn't spark a lot of interest. Even four new city councillors being elected didn't. The turnout was only 47 percent.

A presidential election , it would seem, would be the best bet for an every-voter turnout — if you believe in miracles.

But it would take a couple of candidates like George Washington and Abe Lincoln running against one another.

Even then, though, somebody would stay home.

ONE OF THE prettiest pictures I have seen in a long time was that on the program cover at the Celebration of Life for Ruth Wainwright Saturday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

RUTH WAINWRIGHT

It was a photo of Ruth at age 23 in pretty hat and gown as maid of honor at the wedding of a friend in 1937.

Ruth, who died March 26 at age 91, was a community leader and volunteer in just about every worthy cause. And was The Quincy Sun's Citizen of the Year for 1986. And a beloved Houghs Neck legend.

The service was conducted by Rev. John Castricum, present pastor, with former pastor, Rev. Alicia Corea, a legend herself, as eulogist.

"It was very nice," said her daughter, Laurel Wainwright. "It was something my mother would have liked — for someone else she would think more deserving."

That was Ruth. Humility.

And dedication, loyalty, caring and fairness to all as a reporter for The Patriot Ledger and later The Quincy Sun.

A beautiful picture, a beautiful memorial service for a beautiful person.

'How To Draw Comics' Featured At Library

Artists Andy Fish and Veronica Hebard will conduct a free hands-on workshop to teach youngsters 13 to 18 how to draw comics Saturday, April 22, at 2 p.m. in the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Teens will learn the tips and tricks cartoonists use, including film techniques to enhance their work. Those with sketchbooks should bring them along for a critique of their work and suggestions for further development. Paper and pencils will be provided.

Andy Fish has been drawing comics for 30 years and has worked for DC Comics, Marvel Comics, Marshall Comics and Blue Monkey Comics. He also created the "Adam Bomb" strip that ran on thousands of websites around the world.

He is a senior faculty member at the Worcester Art Museum where he teaches various art forms to students from middle school through college and the founder of UnderCoverFish.com.

Veronica Hebard is a painter, writer and cartoonist whose works include graphic novels and comic stories, including "A Comic Book Life" and a critically acclaimed loom at mortality in a story that ran in the New York SVA's Inkstains Magazine.

Currently, she is working on "Stocking Feet," a serialized story about growing up in the loneliness of the inner city, and assisting Fish with a Batman graphic novel for DC Comics.

The workshop is part of the Discovered It @ Your Library program highlighting the Dewey Decimal System of literary classification and sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

QHS Drama Club's 'Wizard Of Oz' Superb

My granddaughter, Elia, and I saw Quincy High Drama Club's production of "The Wizard of Oz" recently. It was superb! The singing, dancing and acting were terrific. The sets and costumes were wonderful. I don't know how they made so many set changes seem so effortless.

Elia is partial to villains and even though the Wicked Witch is always her favorite she fell in love with William Gilcoine as the Cowardly Lion. We were lucky enough to catch some of the cast after the show and they graciously gave autographs and posed for pictures with her. It was a great time and we just loved it.

Congratulations to everyone who made it a memorable experience.

American Cancer Society Daffodil Days A Success

Each year volunteers in the South Shore area put forth a fantastic effort to make the American Cancer Society's Daffodil Days a true success. Their eagerness to work hard never ceases to amaze me.

On behalf of the American Cancer Society, I would like to thank the many local individuals, businesses and organizations who supported our hard work to make the campaign successful.

In Southeastern Mass., over 46,000 bouquets of daffodils were sold and more than $430,000 was raised to improve the quality of life for cancer patients and their families right here in our community.

Also, numerous Gifts of Hope were delivered, ensuring that local cancer patients received their own sign of spring- a beautiful bouquet of daffodils.

The Society's fund raising campaigns, including Daffodil Days, are volunteer-driven.

During Daffodil Days, volunteers purchased bouquets, prepared them and delivered them. Every volunteer was dedicated to helping the American Cancer Society sustain its vital services, programs and research endeavors.

Thanks again to everyone! I hope to see you during Daffodil Days 2007!

140 Evacuated At Lincoln Theater Fire

April 9-15
55 Years Ago

One hundred moviegoers and 40 women bowlers were evacuated from the Lincoln Theater and bowling lanes as a smoky three-alarm fire hit the Quincy point landmark.

The $25,000 in damages was confined mostly to the rear of the bowling lanes and owner Alcide Beaumier of Claremont Avenue expected the theater could open as early as next week.

SQUANTUM'S 'OLD FAITHFUL' ERUPTS

The "grease pot" off Dorchester Street, often called Squantum's "Old Faithful," was acting up again, requiring action by city and state health officials.

The "grease pot" several hundred yards off the beach was a vent that allowed the excess gasses to escape from the sewerage main that connected Calf Pasture in Dorchester to Moon Island.

Health Commissioner Richard Ash called upon state officials for immediate action.

MULLIN BEGINS PLAN A PETITION DRIVE

After only one year, the city's Plan E government structure was already under attack, with a petition drive by Leo Mullin of Avalon Avenue to return to Plan A.

Mullin wanted the question on the November ballot. His plan would return a modified Plan A in that all councillors would be elected at-large.

Mullin was a World War II veteran and son of the former auditor and acting mayor.

Phelan Names Task Force On Illegal Rooming Houses

Mayor William Phelan has established a task force to better identify and enforce ordinances regarding illegal rooming houses.

This is another step in Phelan's "Neighborhoods First" initiative.

The task force is comprised of Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca, Health Commissioner Drew Scheele and representatives of the police and fire departments.

"We receive an inordinate number of complaints on this issue and no one department can properly enforce the complex and sensitive issue," said Phelan. "An illegal rooming house can dramatically impact the quality of life in a neighborhood and we are committed to investigating all complaints and addressing this issue head on."

The city's current ordinances governing illegal rooming houses are layered and complex. The involvement of multiple departments will allow for a wider range of enforcement authority.

The task force has held preliminary meetings to develop guidelines and compile the various ordinances pertaining to the illegal rooming house issue.

The Inspectional Services Department currently fields complaints for illegal lodging houses. That system will remain. Phelan has proposed the creation of a Code Enforcement Officer who could take the lead role in this issue.

"This issue is another reason why it's time for the city to create a Code Enforcement Officer position," Phelan said. "We need people to focus specifically on the quality of life issues that impact our neighborhoods."

Food Shop License Suspended For Selling Beer To Minor

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

It took three motions for the License Board to agree on the type of punishment for Tedeschi's Food Shop in Squantum for violation regarding selling alcohol to a 15 year old juvenile.

The first motion made at Tuesday's meeting was by Health Commissioner Drew Scheele. He made a moved to suspend the license for three days with two days suspended and one day served.

That failed so Scheele made another motion. To suspend the license for three days with three days suspended. That one failed also.

On his third motion, he moved to suspend the license for three days with three days to be served. The vote was 4-1 with Chairman Joseph Shea voting against it.

Patrolman Roger White said on Dec. 27, 2005, he was in Tedeschi's and saw someone walk out of the store with two 30-pack of beer.

As the juvenile walked out, White saw him place the beer beside a tree near the store. As he walked back into the store, White called him to the police car and asked to see his license.

The license he showed was that of a man from Andover, eight years older than the juvenile. It was later reported that the license was lost a few months before by the Andover resident/.

When bartender Barry Marquis was questioned, he said he did ask the person two times to show his ID and said it looked like the person's picture on the license. Both the picture on the license and the person wore baseball caps making it hard to distinguish.

Marquis said he was "always vigilant" but "infallible? No."

Police Chief Crowley said the fact ;that he asked twice to see the ID meant they have been a problem and said when that happens "you just don't sell"

Crowley also said that this is the second offense at Tedeschi's.

Words of praise for the employees of Tedeschi were given to the board by Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee. He said there was "no malicious intent - they followed procedures and operated in good faith."

Atty. Louis Cassis, counsel for Tedeschi's questioned White as to when he became suspicious of the juvenile and he answered "outside of the store"

He asked the board to be lenient, and give them a break."

Scheele suggested since the violation happened on a Tuesday night, that the suspension begin on a Tuesday through Thursday.

Board Denies 1 A.M. Closing For Krabby Joe's

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

An appeal by Atty. Louis Cassis on behalf of Sean Conroy, owner of Krabby Joe's to remain open until 1 a.m. failed by a 4-1 vote at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

Krabby Joe's is at Marina Bay where residents nearby continually complain about the noise at night.

Cassis said that Siro's Restaurant is on the left of Krabby Joe's while Skyline Restaurant is on the right. Both he said are able to remain open until 1 a.m. while Krabby Joe's has to have to close by 11 p.m.

Cassis said there is no music and no entertainment as there is in Skyline.

He said that the business will "suffer economically" and cause a "tremendous hardship" if they have to close at 11 Pam.

He said it is the "only restaurant on the boardwalk with restrictions."

Lt. Peter Turowski, liquor inspecto r for the board said Conroy "runs a tight ship" and he has had "no complaints" about the noise.

Residents say that they think the noise is coming from Krabby Joe's because both of the other places are food restaurants and claim that Krabby Joe's is a bar that sells pizza.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said at a recent public meeting held at Marina Bay, 30 residents attended. He said out of those 30, 72 percent voted against the 1 a.m. closing.

Conroy said he has had no problems and "keeps a good place." As he referred to an abutter regarding whether patrons are buying pizza, he said he sells loads of pizzas and has the papers to prove it.

The board voted 4-1 on a status quo and keep the hours until 11 p.m.

The motion was made by Police Chief Robert Crowley and seconded by Jay Duca, director of inspectional services. Chairman Joseph Shea voted against it.

Cassis said Conroy will appeal to the Superior Court.

Quincy Asian Resources Offers English Classes, Seeks Tutors

Quincy Asian Resources Inc. (QARI) a Quincy based non-profit social service agency, is offering four ESOL (English for Speakers of Other Languages) classes this month.

The primary emphasis of the program is on ESOL for living and employment; i.e. English skills that will allow individuals to compete successfully in the workplace and pursue a higher standard of living.

The classes are made possible by a grant from the Sovereign Bank Foundation.

"Through the support of the Sovereign Foundation, QARI has been able to expand the ESOL program and reach more people in need of language classes," said QARI Executive Director John Brothers.

QARI's classes are designed for flexibility and are structured around student demand and schedules. Any individuals interested in taking an ESOL class in the Quincy area are encouraged to call the office at 617-472-2200 and make an appointment to register.

QARI trains community volunteers to assist students enrolled in classes with supplemental tutoring. Tutors do not need to be bilingual however additional language skills are a plus.

For the spring quarter, QARI will offer four classes at the Beginner, Advanced Beginner, and Intermediate levels. ESOL classes are scheduled to start in early April. DAN FEENEY, of the Norfolk County D.A.'s office, warned parents the dangers of online predators, with a slide show.

DAVID MCSWEENEY, state trooper, said that kids treat posting online information "way too casual."

PRINCIPAL FRANK SANTORO welcomed parents on behalf of the Quincy High School, which hosted the event.

copies of the information to use as evidence.

Predators uses the information in MySpace profiles to track them down, said Feeney.

"MySpace gives (kids) an opportunity to lay it all out there," said McSweeney. "It's become kind of a competition to get friends. They say what schools they go to because they want their friends to find them."

"They treat this stuff way too casual," said Feeney, "Their friends already know that stuff. The people who don't know that, are probably the people you don't want to know that."

Predators may also coerce information from the child such as when he or she is home alone with phrases like, "your parents seem to let you online a lot around this time," and wait for responses such as "my parents don't get home until 5:15," McSweeney said.

"The guys on the other end are very, very good at getting information," said McSweeney.

Feeney gave common characteristics for identifying would-be predators:

• They seem to share all of the same interests as the victim. (They identify the child's interests and pretend to have commonalties as a means to gain trust.)

• They seem too nervous to meet in a public place. (This is to facilitate crime without apprehension.)

• They don't want victims to tell their parents about an arranged meeting. (One way to prevent this is to tell children that "If it's legitimate, there's no reason for parents not to know.")

• They seem shy, often too shy to give a photo. (This is often because the predator looks nothing like how he describes himself. Of arrested online offenders, 99 percent were male, most were over 25 years old, most acted alone, and only 10 percent have ever had a previous "brush" with the law, said Feeney. "They're coming way out of left field," he said.)

McSweeney advised parents to keep conversations open so kids will talk to their parents about uncomfortable situations.

Enforcing rules may keep children safe, said Feeney. He advised parents to discuss the acceptable uses of the internet. "They actually want to know what you think, they just don't want you to know that," he said.

Feeney suggested limited use on school nights, and a curfew. "Most good things online don't happen after midnight," he said.

"Be your own little investigator," said McSweeney. A parent may run a computer search for cookies and net files to see what online sites their children have visited. "Cookies" are temporary internet files that save to a computer.

Children know to delete some of these cookies, so if cookie folders are cleaned out, it sets up a "red flag," he said.

Many MySpace profile pictures are taken with camera-phones with internet access, Feeney said.

"You really need to have a talk with these kids about what they're doing with them," Feeney said.

Webcams are another means of spreading personal information online. These cameras send videos to the internet rather than still frames.

Of the arrested online offenders that McSweeney knew of, "maybe half had webcam images." They had saved images of the victims, and the recovered data proved that targets were not randomly selected, he said

"In addition to the bad guys, the good news is that the law is on MySpace as well," said Feeney. Police officers do regular checks to search for online predators and underage sexually explicit activity.

A Justice Department survey of 1,500 internet users between the ages of 10 through 17 yielded the following results:

• 19 percent received unwanted solicitation in the past year.

• 25 percent received unwanted exposure to explicit materials.

• 6 percent reported being harassed and according to Feeney, since the survey, "that number has probably gone up."

• 21 million youngsters between the ages of 12 and 17 go online, and 11 million of those go online daily.

The March 30 meeting was just hours after the arrest of 67 year old flight instructor Harold Spencer, of Peabody.

Spencer was arrested in a Marshfield airport after using the internet to arrange a meeting and a flight with Marshfield Detective Steven Marcolini, who posed online as a 15 year-old-girl.

Spencer is charged with attempting to entice a minor younger than 16 for sex, attempting to disseminate harmful material to a minor, attempted statutory rape and attempted indecent assault and battery.

He was released Thursday night after posting a $15,000 bail.

Wollaston Congregational 130th Anniversary Celebration May 5-7

By MIKAELA SLANEY

Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave. will celebrate its 130th anniversary May 5-7 with two other churches joining in the milestone observance.

The participation of First Baptist Church and Quincy Community United Methodist, led by their respective pastors, Rev. C. Michael Cunningham and Rev. Dr. Susan Jarek Glidden will mark the first time three churches have joined in such a celebration.

Rev. Mary Louise Gifford, Wollaston Congregational pastor, said the community and church membership, past and present, are invited to attend.

The three churches will unite to celebrate the religious freedom which allowed the Wollaston Congregational Church founders to establish their own congregation. They will also celebrate the "ecumenism" that brings Christian faiths together to worship Jesus Christ, said Gifford.

"I'm so excited... not only about 130 years of preaching the word of God, but also about three different congregations coming together.

"This is a historic event in the city of Quincy. Three churches that once were one, now for this special occasion, will unite again. It's a great thing for us, and really a sign of hope for the future," said Gifford.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH will host a three day celebration of their 130th anniversary, May 5-7. Members from the First Parish Church and the First Baptist Church will also join in the celebration.

Celebration events include assorted activities, photographs, archived material by professional archivers, a compilation C.D. , photographic history of former members, and interviews with current congregation members from nursery school to the oldest living member, who is currently 107 years old.

"What we're trying to do is reflect the history through the ages," said Gifford.

A featured guest speaker for the Saturday morning pancake breakfast must remain unanimous until plans are finalized, however "folks will want a photo," hinted Gifford.

ANNIVERSARY WEEKEND for Wollaston Congregational Church's 130th anniversary will be led by, from left, Rev. Mary Louise Gifford of the Wollaston Congregational Church, Rev. C. Michael Cunningham of the First Baptist Church, and Rev. Dr. Susan Jarek Glidden of the Methodist Church.

The scheduled events include:

Friday: (May 5)

• 7-8 p.m. There will be a gathering, registration, and a display of photos and church artifacts.

• 8-9 p.m. People dressed in 1870's period clothing will lead church tours. The program will end with refreshments and live music.

Saturday: (May 6)

•8-10 a.m. There will be a pancake breakfast with a surprise guest and greeters dressed in period attire.

• 10 a.m. The combined three choirs will rehearse.

• 4:30-5:30 p.m. "Mocktail hour" (an alcohol-free cocktail hour) in Parish Hall.

• 5:30-6:30 p.m. Dinner will be held.

• 6:30-7 p.m. There will be a multimedia video presentation "Memories and Visions."

• 7:30 p.m. Radio personality Mel Simons will present a nostalgia show: "The Golden Days of Radio," which will revisit the days of Jack Benny, The Shadow, Fibber McGee and Molly, and many more.

Sunday: (May 7)

• 10 a.m. A "Unity and Praise" service will be followed by a combined three-choir concert. The concert will be followed by anniversary cake, coffee, a fellowship service, and children's programming.

Pre-registration is required.

Prices are as follows:

(No charge) Friday evening gathering.

(No charge) Saturday morning pancake breakfast.

$15: Saturday dinner only.

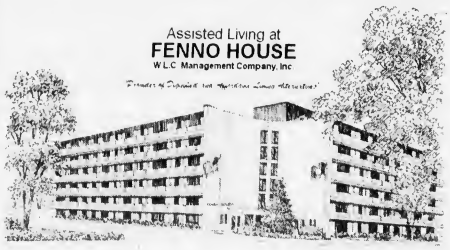
$15: Mel Simons presentation.

$25: Advanced sale Saturday dinner & show.

$30: Door price Saturday dinner & show.

The Wollaston Congregational Church was founded in 1876, 11 men attending the First Baptist Church of Wollaston Heights signed a pact to withdraw from their church to build their own, two blocks away.

The Wollaston Congregational Church has requested for Mayor William Phelan to declare May 7, "Wollaston Congregational Church Day," in the city. "That's in process," said Gifford, "nothing's been confirmed so far."



For registration forms, or for more information, visit the church, call 617-773-7432 or visit the website at www.wollycong.org.

Fundraiser To Aid Mickey Monahan And Family

Friends of Michael "Mickey" Monahan of Quincy have organized a fundraiser to help him fight deadly cancer Friday, April 28, from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight at Florian Hall, 35 Hallet St., Dorchester.

Since Monahan, proprietor of Precision Remodeling in Quincy, was diagnosed with cancer he has been undergoing aggressive chemotherapy at Dana Farber Cancer Institute and has been unable to work.

Tickets to the fundraiser are $25 and can be purchased either at Malachy's, 11 Granite St., Quincy, or by calling Shelley Lane Dillon at 617-696-4986 or by e-mailing [illegible]@yahoo.com.

Checks should be made payable to The Michael Monahan Family Fund and mailed directly to The Michael Monahan Family Fund, c/o Colonial Federal Bank, 15 Beach St., Quincy MA 02170.

Event organizers also are seeking donations for a raffle and auction.

"The outpouring of support we have received from family and friends has been incredible," said his wife, Julie, a life-long resident of Quincy and mother of his two children, Shayley, 7, and Michaela, 4.

"St. Ann's Parish has provided tuition assistance and families for our daughter's classmates at St. Ann's School have supplied meals three days a week for us as well as providing a tremendous amount of support.

"We are extremely thankful to those who have been so thoughtful. Relying on others is a tough thing to do, but it is something we have reluctantly learned to accept during this difficult time."

"When she started the school year," said Shelley Lane Dillon, a family friend, "Shayley planned to be on the basketball court hearing words of encouragement from her Dad.

"Instead, it's Shayley and her sister, Michaela, who are giving the encouraging word to their Dad."

A Job Well Done

On March 20, at approximately 1:15 p.m., Officer John O'Donnell, working in a patrol car equipped with "LOJACK," picked up a signal on a stolen motor vehicle. The device indicated a code number, which was confirmed by the dispatcher as a stolen red 1999 Ford Taurus.

LT. DAN MINTON

The vehicle was reported stolen in Weymouth. The signal grew stronger as the officer reached the area of Burgin Parkway and Dimmock Street. Officer Dan Francis, who also had LOJACK in his cruiser, arrived in the area and they were able to locate the Taurus in the rear parking lot of Quincy Medical Center.

Since no one was in the vehicle, the officers cleared out the area and set up a perimeter. Detectives Jim Lencki, John Menz and Paul Pieper of the Special Investigations Unit set up surveillance.

Less than an hour later, Detective Pieper notified all units that a man and a woman had entered the Taurus. Officers Paul Jackson, William Lanergan and Dan Francis pulled into the lot and prevented the suspect vehicle from escaping.

The driver, a female, and her male passenger were arrested on the charge of "Receiving a Stolen Motor Vehicle." Once at the station, Officer Steve Cleary searched the male and his property and found the drugs Oxycontin and Respiridone. Inside the female suspect's pocketbook were seven packets of cocaine-like substance.

The Taurus was towed to the police station, where an inventory search was conducted. Inside the Taurus, Officer Jackson found a back pack with three pry bars, one small sledge hammer, one claw hammer, three slotted screwdrivers and two small flashlights, all consistent with burglarious tools. A check with the owner of the stolen motor vehicle verified he did not own the back pack or tools.

The male, a 30-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with "Receiving a Stolen Motor Vehicle," "Possession of Class B (Oxycontin)," "Possession of Class E (Respiridone)" and "Possession of Burglarious Tools."

The female, a 25-year-old Braintree resident, was charged with "Receiving a Stolen Motor Vehicle," "Operating a Motor Vehicle Without a License," "Possession of Class B (Cocaine)," "Possession of Class E (Respiridone)" and "Possession of Burglarious Tools."

The male suspect has 14 prior arraignments for crimes against property (i.e. breaking and entering, receiving stolen property, possession of burglarious tools) and is considered a suspect in numerous open cases. Nice work!

A Parental Guide To Child Playground Safety

By ROBERT E. SANTORO

As the weather grows warmer and the hours of daylight increase over the coming spring and summer months, it will only be natural to see our city's playgrounds and parks become rekindled with activity.

As children resume their outdoor recreation on weekends or after school, it is important to remind parents of the potential dangers that may be present in such environments. Individuals who intend on harming children target parks and school playgrounds for their victims, and, unfortunately, child abductions are a sad reality.

However, there are measurers both parents and children can do in order to prevent these threats. The following tips will help ensure a safe time at the park:

• Focus on your child. Know what they are doing and pay attention to where they are.

• If driving to a park or playground, look for suspicious cars or persons.

• Avoid parking next to suspicious vehicles, such as utility vans with no windows, etc.

• Never leave a child alone in a running vehicle.

• Be aware of suspicious persons, such as lone adults without children lingering at the park or playground.

• Teach your children not to talk to or accept gifts from strangers. Educate your children about how children are lured (with candy, toys, "help looking for my dog," etc.).

• Have a secret word or password for emergency situations that only you and your child know. Teach them that a stranger has to know the special word.

• Encourage your child to participate in group sports or activities. Children are less easily targeted when in groups — there is strength in numbers.

• Be aware of what your child is wearing. Be able to give an accurate description in the event your child goes missing.

• Young children should never be out of your sight. Avoid activities or conversations that take your attention away from your child. Try facing the direction of your child if you are in conversation.

• Always accompany your child to the bathroom, and take them with you if you need to use the restroom.

• If picnicking, never accept food or drinks from people with whom you are not acquainted.

• If you see something that you think should be reported, or if you ever feel that you or your child is unsafe, do not hesitate to call the police department.

Always be aware of your child. Know what they are doing and pay attention to where they are.

Enjoy a safe and wonderful spring!

TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Hand-Sew Home Decor For A Personalized Touch

(NU) There are two situations when you should think seriously about redecorating: when you've just moved into a new place and when you want to feel like you've just moved into a new place.

Whatever your circumstances, you can freshen up the look of any room with a few easy-to-sew items.

Window coverings, such as curtains or valances, have a dramatic effects and can be as quick to make as sewing a few straight seams. Decorative throw pillows can be made from simple squares that doesn't even require a pattern. With the right fabric, they give your existing furniture new life.

A tablecloth or table runner can do wonders to update your dining area. These accents can be classically basic or elegantly elaborate.

Ready-made home decorating items can be purchased inexpensively at discount stores, but people are limited to a few stock colors and patterns, and hundreds of people have exactly the same item. Hand sewing it ensures a unique look, and there are hundreds of options at the fabric store.

Cynthia Scott, educational coordinator for the Janome Sewing Machine Company, says beginning sewers can avoid frustration by choosing a reliable machine purchased from a local dealer.

"New machines are incredibly powerful, precise and worry-free," she says. "If it's been a few years since you've sewn or if you're brand-new to sewing to your local authorized independent dealer. You'll find a variety of machines at a good price and often will get in-depth lessons with your purchase."

There are many levels of machines. For example, Janome's Jem Platinum 720 is a starter machine. It's compact and light (just 12 pounds) with computerized control and 20 stitches.

The next step up is adding more decorative stitching and increasing the speed and size of your work area. The machine can make all the difference. The Janome Memory Craft 6600 Professional has the programmable features and tough quality necessary for a small sewing business.

Janome also offers software to create virtually any kind of embroidery design and layout. Simply transfer a stitch file to the Memory Craft 11000 and designs are stitched out automatically with professional results.

Mowing Tips For A Healthy Lawn

(NAPS) Volleyball games, croquet, picnics and slip-n-slides will leave no trace on your lawn if you care for it properly.

Recently, green industry associates and companies have come together to form Project EverGreen to raise the awareness of the environmental, economic and lifestyle benefits of landscapes and promote the significance of those who preserve and enhance green spaces at home, work and play. Project EverGreen is sharing knowledge about healthy turn with consumers.

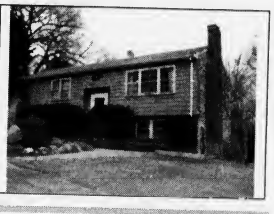
Mowing Techniques

With the exception of the first mowing of the season, never cut more than one-third of the grass leaf blade during a single mowing. Leaving grass longer aids in reducing water needs and helps grass absorb sunshine for photosynthesis. Grass mowed at two to three inches maintains a deeper root system than grass mowed at one inch.

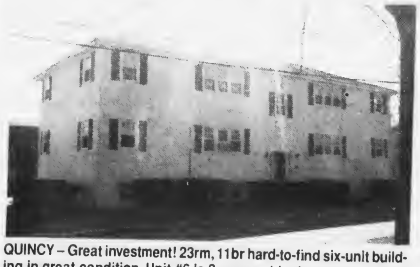
Before mowing, perform a safety check by removing debris or trash from the lawn that could become harmful projectiles. The best time to mow is during the day when the grass is dry, never when the light is dim or the lawn is wet. It's best to leave grass clippings on the lawn to return nutrients to the soil. Children should also never be allowed to ride on a mower.

To avoid soil compaction and wear, vary the direction the lawn is mowed. For example, mow horizontally one week, vertically the next and diagonally the week after. This is especially beneficial to small areas.

Mowing Equipment



Keeping mower blades sharp is a key to having strong grass. Have the blades professionally sharpened once a year to avoid tearing or wounding the grass stems, making them vulnerable to pests and damage.



To prevent residual grass clippings from interfering with the mower blades' motion, remove the spark plug lead from the engine and hose away any grass sticking to the deck. This will help keep dirt and debris off the engine to insure it doesn't overheat.

At the beginning of the season, have a tune-up and safety inspection. Change the oil after every 50 hours of use, the air filter every 25 hours and always use fresh fuel in a clean, approved container.

Tank Flush Keeps Hot Water Flowing

Draining the hot water heater twice a year improves its efficiency and prolongs its useful life by removing much of the built-up sediment at the bottom of the heater. This sediment consists of small particles of sand or gravel, and various mineral deposits.

Built-up sediment can reduce the amount of water in the tank, make the heating units burn longer to reach the desired water temperature, and block the drain valve. These deposits can harden over time, creating a problem that can only be resolved by replacing the tank — which is why a tank flush should be done regularly.

Follow these steps to drain your hot water heater:

1. Turn off the water supply to the heater (the valve is usually located near the top of the tank).

2. If you have an electric heater, turn off the power (either at the switch or by turning off the circuit). If you have a gas unit, turn the gas valve to the "pilot" setting.

3. Locate the pressure relief valve (usually running up the side of the unit) and carefully lift the lever — some steam may come out. Leave the valve open.

4. Locate the drain tap (usually on the bottom third of the water heater). Place a bucket underneath the tap. If the drain tap is too low, attach a short garden hose and run the hose to the bucket. Open the tap.

5. Allow the tank to drain until the water comes out clear — or, if the water is clear to start, until at least four or five gallons have been removed.

6. Close the drain tap and remove the hose. Then, close the pressure relief valve. Turn the water supply back on.

7. Go upstairs and turn on a hot water tap, letting it run until no air bubbles come out.

What if sediment clogs the drain valve? One solution is to close the relief valve and turn on the water supply, turn on a hot water tap upstairs, and let it run until the water comes out cold. Turn off the tap, return to the water heater, remove the garden hose, open the drain and attempt to dislodge the clog with a small screwdriver or flexible wire (water will flow everywhere as you do this, including over your hands, which is why you want it to be cold). Be careful not to damage the drain valve.

Spring Cleaning Ideas For Outdoor Living

(NU) Before the spring season gets into full swing, take a weekend to get your home ready for outdoor living with some cleaning tips from Merry Maids.

• Give the garage a makeover. First, tackle the junk pile. Rid your space of unwanted items such as broken tools, rusty fishing tackle and old magazines.

Overhead storage, such as lofts and ledges, offer great spaces for storing small toys, coolers and winter sleds. Make use of sidewall hooks or shelving units for storing paint cans, garden or automotive tools, lawn mower and automotive accessories.

For removal of oil stains on concrete, sprinkle an absorbent powder like baking soda or sawdust on the stain and scrub with a stiff brush. If the stain is already dry, wet it first to create a scouring paste.

To keep those extra freezers and refrigerators clean and odor-free, unplug appliances and defrost the freezer. remove all stored food and interior compartments, washing inside walls with a warm water and baking soda solution.

• Let the sun shine in with sparkling windows. For spotless windows and glass doors, wash surfaces with a mixture of five drops of liquid dish detergent to two gallons of water. Wipe dry and buff to shine with crumpled newspapers for lint-free results.

For most effective glass cleaning, do not wash outside windows or glass doors in high heat or direct sunlight. The intense sunlight will allow the cleaning solution to dry too quickly, creating unwanted streaks.

• Prepare your lawn and patio for a party. Before putting grimy window and door screens back in place for the summer months, hose them down on a flat surface and scrub them with a solution of baking soda and water, rinse thoroughly.

To clean fabric cushions or a patio umbrella, combine one teaspoon mild dishwashing detergent and one tablespoon Borax with warm water in a 12 ounce spray bottle. Spray solution on cushions or an umbrella and allow to sit for 15 minutes; rinse thoroughly. Place cushions or umbrella in direct sunlight to dry.

For more information on residential cleaning, visit the Merry Maids Web site at www.merrymaids.com or call 800-MERRY-MAIDS.

De-Mystifying Window Decorating

(NU) The paint is just the right shade. the artwork is divine. The furniture is precisely arranged. Then why does a newly designed room feel incomplete?

It might be the window treatments, or lack thereof. though beautiful and versatile, window fashions often are left for last in home decorating. What's holding back the window-weary masses from making a commitment to window decor?

"Most people are intimidated by the prospect of choosing draperies," said Franco Pasquale of Franco A. Pasquale Design Associates in Tampa, Fla., a designer who regularly decorates homes with as much as 100 windows and French doors. "What they don't realize is it's more than worth the challenge if it adds the finishing touch to a room."

Window fashions abound in large retailers and high-end boutiques. The trick to choosing window treatments? Don't be overwhelmed by the options, and know what to consider before making a purchase.

Fashion vs. Function

Before making any window decor decisions, ask what's more important: fashion or function?

"Consider aspects such as natural light and proximity to a neighbor's house before selecting a style," Pasquale said.

Will the draperies be closed at night? Draperies that are lined and interlined functionally block light and muffle noise. If that's unnecessary, valences, swags and rod pocket draperies may suit your needs.

Mix and Match

The perennially painful issue of how to make windows match the rest of the home isn't a problem anymore.

"Don't get stuck in a rut with solids. Patterns are in," Pasquale said. "And patterns can complement other patterns. Plus, confidence in color will result in draperies that are classic yet fashion-forward."

Confused about fabrics? Consider the room. Silks and taffetas are dressier, lending themselves to formal rooms. Linens, cottons and polyester prints offer a more casual look.

The Waiting Game

"Custom draperies from an interior designer are beautiful but can take an eternity to arrive," said Patricia Gordon, a decorator and owner of design firm and home store Caroline Riley Co. in State College, Pa. "If you want immediate results but can't find what you need in ready-mades, consider semi-custom draperies."

Semi-custom, a fairly new concept, combines the availability of ready-mades with the designer options of custom orders, usually at much lower prices than custom draperies. While the widths of the drapery panels are standard, the lengths, fabrics and embellishments are customizable. Panels often are ready in four weeks or less.

According to Gordon, semi-custom drapery companies are revolutionizing drapery design- diverse product offerings and availability through designers and furniture stores- and simplifying the measuring process.

Measurement

Measuring is tricky. Inside jamb, outside jamb, molding to the floor, window casing considerations- the mathematics can scare even the savviest of home decorators.

The lengths of ready-made draperies- 84, 96 and 108 inches- mean that measurements don't have to be exact, and new online design tools automatically generate window measurements for you.

At www.casafiora.com, a window purchase planner turns measurements into precise, order-ready results. The site features a retailer locator, enabling consumers to print their results, find a local retailer and place an order.

Experts Discuss Link Between Gum Disease, Overall Health

(NU) The risk factors for heart disease are well known: smoking, high cholesterol, high blood pressure, not enough exercise and obesity. But here's one possibility that might be surprising: periodontal or gum disease.

"People normally think of periodontal or gum diseases in terms of their teeth and gums," said Dr. Robert J. Genco, professor of oral biology and microbiology, State University of New York at Buffalo. "But that thinking may have to be altered because gum disease is a serious infection that can release bacteria into the bloodstream and impact overall health."

Researchers spoke about the possible connection between gum disease and heart health at an American Medical Association and American Dental Association media briefing. They also discussed links between periodontal disease and other problems, including premature births and diabetes.

Genco explains that the level of evidence related to the relationship between periodontal disease and these systemic conditions varies. But such a relationship, he says, may offer hope for treating diabetes, heart disease, stroke, low birth weight and respiratory infections.

A healthy mouth may reduce the number of premature babies born and the resulting complications, according to Dr. Steven Offenbacher, professor of periodontics at the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry.

"Like other infections in a mother's body, the bacteria can set off an inflammatory reaction causing a preterm delivery," Offenbacher said.

Research also shows that diabetes can put people at risk for developing gum disease. Dr. Louis Rose, professor of surgery at Drexel University School of Medicine and clinical professor of periodontics at the University of Pennsylvania School of Dental Medicine, called periodontal disease "the sixth complication of diabetes."

Rose stressed that physicians and dentists need to work together to ensure their diabetic patients maintain both their oral and physical health.

"Thanks to research, physicians are much more proactive when it comes to their diabetic patients and their oral health," he said. "I find that now, more than ever, they're calling and referring their patients to me when there's even the slightest indication of periodontal inflammation."

"With more education and awareness about the link between oral and systemic health, the more likely the overall health of the patient will benefit," Rose said.

Dr. Moise Desvarieux, assistant professor in the department of epidemiology at Columbia University's Mailman School of Public Health in New York, said further research is required to determine if there is a direct connection between periodontal disease and heart disease. Therefore, he said, patients should also manage other risk factors, like smoking, diabetes and excess weight.

Genco, Offenbacher, Rose and Desvarieux all spoke at the media briefing in New York City called "Oral and Systemic Health: Exploring the Connection."

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

YOUR CHILD'S TEETH

Tooth decay, which is largely a preventable disease, affects almost 20% of children between the ages of two and four. By the time a child reaches age eight, chances are higher than 50% that he or she will already have some cavities. Dental cavities are five times more common than asthma and seven more times common than hay fever. With all this in mind, parents are encouraged to take the proactive steps of taking their children to the dentist for their first dental appointments when they reach one year of age. Moreover, because caries tend to run in families, a good preventive dental program includes prenatal visits by the mother to reduce the amount of bacteria in her mouth.

Preventive dentistry means a healthy smile for your child. Remember, home care is important, and regular appointments aid the prevention or maintenance of periodontal disease. If you are looking for a family dentist who understands the needs of everyone in your family as individuals and as patients, we hope you will consider us. We believe in preventive care for the whole family. Teeth are meant to last a lifetime. They will take care of you if you take care of them. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Cavities, which are also known as caries, occur when there is an overgrowth of bacteria on the teeth.

Mite B Travel Team Wins Title

The Quincy Mite B travel hockey team recently captured the championship of the Greater Boston Youth Hockey League East Division when forward Gregory Miller netted the game-winner in a 5-4 overtime victory against Belmont.

Quincy cruised into the tournament with a nine-game winning streak and blanked Waltham, 7-0, in the playoffs to reach the finals.

Forwards Chris Chevalier, Mack Deegan, Daniel Deery, Sean Farnham, John Feeney, Mark Hajjar, Bobby Hines, Garrett Kulig, Jake McManus, Tom Pugsley and Miller had an outstanding tourney.

Defensemen Dillon Bellotti, Adam Cook, Adam McCormack, Justin McGaffigan and Ryan Moreschi had strong performances. Goalie Gregg Selbert came up with strong saves, including a penalty shot late in the third period of the final.

Quincy turned in a successful season, reaching the finals in both the Knights of Columbus Tournament in Quincy and the Hobomock Tournament in Pembroke. Coaches were Bill Cook, Mark Hajjar, Mark Selbert and Zack Deegan.

Sorensen Sisters Pitching Well For ENC Softball

The Sorensen sisters of Quincy continue to pitch well in their first season on the Eastern Nazarene College softball team.

Last Tuesday, they were victims of run support when the Crusaders dropped a double-header to Anna Maria College, 2-1 and 1-0.

In the first game, Rebekah allowed an earned run on just two hits as the offense couldn't come through with a timely hit.

In the second game, Rachel scattered eight hits and gave up the lone run in the third inning. Rebekah had two of the Crusaders' seven hits.

Last Friday, they teamed up to help the Crusaders sweep Regis College, 4-1 and 10-2.

Rebekah scattered six hits, gave up one run and struck out six in the first game and Rachel went the distance in the second game, allowing three hits and one earned run while striking out five.

Last Saturday, they picked up the losses when ENC was swept by the University of New England, 5-0 and 14-0.

Britney Papile Returning To Notre Dame Prep Girls' Basketball Team

Junior Britney Papile of Quincy will be one of five players returning to the Notre Dame Prep (Fitchburg) girls' basketball team next season.

A former North Quincy High School player, Papile was one of only two Massachusetts girls on the 10-girl squad.

The team finished its first season with a 26-2 record and went undefeated in New England playing teams from the NEPSAC and various junior colleges. It also traveled to New York City, upstate New York and Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

It was invited to the prestigious NACA national in Dayton, Tenn., where it lost a narrow 73-69 game in the championship to Riverdale Baptist of Washington, D.C.

All five of the team's graduating seniors are expected to sign with NCAA Division 1 institutes.

ROTOR REPLACEMENT

When depressing the brake pedal causes severe non-ABS pulsation, it may be that your vehicle's disc brakes have a cracked rotor. If so, immediate replacement of the rotor is necessary. Rust at the rotor edges and moderate scoring in the disc surface are inconsequential, although severe rusting of the lining contact surfaces is a problem, as are thick, deep scores, uneven thickness, and warping. If the rotors have never been resurfaced, it is theoretically possible to have them machined to remove significant rust and deep scores (about .060 inches deep). However, many late-model rotors are not very thick to begin with and cannot take more than a .030-inch resurfacing. Rotor replacement is preferred.

Rotors are a vital part of your brake system, and should be looked at routinely to prevent problems. If you experience severe non-ABS pulsation please bring your car to LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree. We have the modern diagnostic equipment, top of the line tools, and experienced mechanics to help you with your brake system. Call 781-843-1550 to set an appointment today. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: The pulsating sensation of a cracked or warped rotor should not be confused with the brake-pedal pulsation caused by an anti-lock braking system (ABS) under hard braking.

NQ's Outlook: Positive, Exciting

SOFTBALL

Presidents Preview Page 21

By CHRIS POISSON

New head coach Mike Connor inherits a North Quincy High School softball program that has struggled since the beginning of this decade.

With just 10 combined wins in the past four seasons alone, he's first looking to create a positive and exciting atmosphere and instill a winning attitude among the players.

"The outlook for this team is, a), always be positive and, b), excitement," Connor said. "There's definitely talent here. There are girls who want to win, want to have fun and girls who enjoy playing the game.

"I'm excited. It's been fun thus far and it will be a lot more fun winning, hopefully. The girls' programs are pretty strong at North Quincy so hopefully we can put the softball program on the map, too.

"We're taking it one game at a time and also one year at a time. Hopefully for these seniors, although they've had fun, they can taste some victories this year. But really the future of this team looks good. Hopefully the girls stay committed and we can turn things around here."

The Red Raiders, who graduated six from last year's three-win squad, begin their 18-game season next week when they host Plymouth South Wednesday at Mitchell/McCoy Field and head to Whitman-Hanson Thursday, both games at 4 p.m.

North Quincy will start just three seniors as the roster is filled with talented underclassmen, six sophomores and two freshmen.

Around the infield, senior captain Kelly Barden will man the hot corner and is expected to lead the offense batting third. Sophomore Kasey O'Connell will start at shortstop and provides speed as the leadoff hitter.

At second base, there will be a rotation between the team's top two pitchers, sophomore Paige Bonanni and freshman Brittany Folkins. Senior Milynda Mooney, who played second base the past two seasons, will move to first base.

Sophomore Kerry Coughlin will start the year as the new catcher. Sophomore Catherine Feeney, who was behind the plate last year, is on the team but Connor said she may not catch as she recovers from a broken ankle.

In the outfield, senior Jackie Mullen will play in left, sophomore Rebecca Goreham will anchor center and bat cleanup and freshman Siohban Carnell, who Connor said has a solid bat and great arm, will get the nod in right.

On the bench are senior outfielder/pitcher Jessica Mann, senior infielder Liz Leary and sophomore outfielder Simone Leary. Junior pitcher/infielder Maria Dellacroce will split time between varsity and JV.

"Our roster is not too deep," Connor said. "It's deep talent-wise, but I don't hold a ton of players on varsity."

"We have some work to do defensively," he added. "Physically, we're fine. They make the play. We have some good arms. We have a lot of work to do on the mental plays, where to throw the ball. That kind of stuff. We have to fine tune that.

"I'd say offense is the strength of our team right now. Truly, from top to bottom, there isn't someone out there that I would be worried about. They've been hitting the ball great. The hitting makes me smile. At this point, I'm not worried about that. But we'll see when we face better pitching."

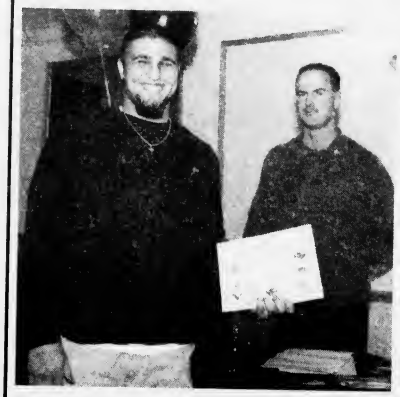
Connor's coaching staff includes pitching coach Ron Barden, assistants Siohban Nolan and Chris Dolan, JV coach Jim Connor (no relation) and freshman coach Tony Green.

Alysia DiMuzio Named Commonwealth Coast Softball Rookie Of Week

Freshman Alysia DiMuzio of Quincy continues the sizzling start to her college softball career.

The Curry College first baseman was recently named Commonwealth Coast Conference Co-Rookie of the Week for the second straight time.

In six games, DiMuzio, a Quincy High School graduate, batted .500 (10-for-20) with two home runs, three doubles, nine RBI and four runs scored.



Through 14 games, the Colonels have a 9-5 overall record, 2-2 in the conference.

Quincy Hosts Holliston In Season Opener Saturday

SOFTBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Head coach Mike Sedar and his three senior tri-captains feel their Quincy High School softball team lucked out in the offseason.

The Presidents graduated six players from last year's Atlantic Coast League co-championship squad, which included four all-stars and two pitchers who took the hill for every inning the past couple of seasons.

When the preseason got underway about a month ago, they weren't sure who was going to replace them.

"It's a reloading year," said tri-captain Kim Lebel, correcting herself when Sedar told her they don't rebuild, they reload. "We have two good pitchers that we were very lucky to get. We didn't think we were going to have any pitchers whatsoever. And we have two freshmen that are doing really good. They're a nice surprise to have considering we thought we were going to be like a five-person team. It's definitely coming along good."

Quincy opens the season Saturday morning at 10 against Holliston at Mitchell/McCoy Field. Next week, it hosts Plymouth South Monday, travels to Whitman-Hanson Wednesday and hosts Plymouth North Thursday, all games at 4 p.m.

Sedar, who lightened the schedule this season because of the team's youth, is looking for improvement by the second half of the year.

"I'm not too worried about the first half of the season anyway," he said. "We'll just try to do the best we can to get through it. In the second half we expect to be a lot better and come out fighting a little bit. We have a little easier second-half schedule We'll see what happens. If we're standing at .500 at the half I'll be happy."

With the Sorensen sisters, Rebekah and Rachel, continuing their pitching careers at Eastern Nazarene College, Quincy found two new flame-throwers in sophomore Katie Stanton and senior Theresa McConicki.

"We have a sophomore coming back, Katie Stanton, and senior Theresa McConicki who hasn't played in three years," Sedar said. "She has a lot of speed and a great change-up. Stanton throws hard but gets a little nervous. They may be splitting the load for a while. So we lucked out. We had no pitchers and now we have two."

"They're promising," said pitching coach Barry Needham. "They're both going to do a good job. I'm not worried about them. Mike might be worried but I'm not. They're going to do well."

In the infield, sophomore Marybeth Torpey, who played in the outfield last year, returns for her second season as the new first baseman. Freshman Alyssa Mullen joins the team as the starting second baseman. On the left side, Quincy has experience with tri-captains Leanna Lam and Courtney Hall fielding third base and shortstop, respectively. Lebel is the behind the plate.

Junior Brighid Kyle patrols center field and will be accompanied by two rookies, freshman Elisa Lam (Leanna's younger sister) in left and junior Katie O'Neil, who has never played before, in right.

"We could do real well or we could do real bad," Sedar said. "It depends on what the outfield does. We're going to be strong in the infield and the pitching will be OK. If Lebel, Hall and Kyle hit, I think we'll do all right."

Something the Presidents have this year that they haven't had much of in the past is speed. Sedar said Elisa Lam and O'Neil can fly and he'll try to get them on base by having them drop bunts.

"We have more speed than we've ever had," Sedar said. "I don't like to bunt, but we're going to have to this year. For right now, every time you see little Lamma and O'Neil, you're going to see them drop bunts. I don't think they'll be ready to hit.

"If we get the little guys on base and they run, I think we'll do all right. Our speed should make a big difference. If I can get these girls to wreak some havoc on the base paths and we get a couple of base hits here and there, we can score four, five quick runs and hold on."

Games Begin May 15

The service will continue with scripture lessons, hymns, and the dispersal of palms. It will conclude with a ceremony which is traditionally a part of the Maundy (Holy) Thursday worship service: the stripping of the altar. Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Regarding your upcoming challenges, the Aries Lamb should very quickly size things up and allow you to make the best possible use of whatever resources you have on hand. Good luck.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You rarely blame others for missteps that worked against you. But this time you need to lay out all the facts and insist that everyone acknowledge his or her share of the mistakes. Then start again.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might want to start making vacation plans. And don't be surprised by unexpected family demands. Maintain control. Be open to suggestions, but don't get bogged down by them.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Work with both your Moon Child and Crab aspects this week to keep both your creative and practical sides balanced. Your intuition sharpens, giving you greater insight by the middle of the week.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Big Cat should finally have all the information needed to move on with a project. If not, maybe you'll want to give everything a new and more thorough check before trying to move on.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Too much emotional pain caused by someone you can't win over as a friend? Then stop trying to do so. You have other things you need to work on this week. Go to it, and good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good time to reassess where and how your strengths can help you build, and where your weaknesses can hinder you. Remember to build on your strongest foundation.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) That personal matter that seemed so hard to deal with should be less confusing now. Don't rush. Let things happen easily, without the risk of creating even more puzzlement.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Change continues to be a strong factor in many important areas. Keep on top of them, and you won't have to worry about losing control. A personal situation takes on a new look.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A business offer sounds intriguing. But if you don't check it out thoroughly, you could have problems. Take a set of questions with you when you attend your next meeting.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your self-confidence should be coming back. That's good news. But it might be a bit over the top right now, so best to let it settle down before you start making expensive decisions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your life, your decisions. Good enough. But be sure you have all the facts you need to put into the decision-maker mixing bowl and hope it will come out as it should.

BORN THIS WEEK: You find much of your creativity with new people who give you much to think about.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

ARE YOU A CHEERFUL GIVER?

Many people find it easy to give by sharing their time, energy, and substance. Others may be unaware of the jobs and opportunities of volunteering and performing "good works." Sadly others may feel that they have little to give.

For a moment, let us picture ourselves as cheerful givers, giving the greatest gift we have to give: ourselves. Perhaps someone we know would be grateful for help in their home or yard. Perhaps someone would be appreciative of having an errand run for them. Perhaps we might watch our neighbor's child while they run an errand.

We may share special knowledge, talents, or skills that help entertain, enlighten, or enrich others. We may choose to offer our time, donations, or prayers on behalf of some worthy cause. We can always give a warm hug, lend a listening ear and be a considerate, kind friend.

Wouldn't today be a good day to be a cheerful giver?

Holy Week Services At Sacred Heart; Easter Mass At Star Of Sea

Star Of Sea Reaches Fundraising Milestone

Approximately $5,100 has been raised to fund the Friends of Star of the Sea Church appeal to the Apostolic Signatura at the Vatican, announce co-chairmen Maureen Mazrimas and Sean Glennon.

"We are most grateful for the support that has been given in the effort to raise $6,000 to fund the appeal of Friends of Star of the Sea, to the Apostolic Signatura at the Vatican. Through the generosity of Squantum residents, Catholic and non-Catholic alike, The Friends of Star of the Sea are $900 away from reaching their goal," Mazrimas and Glennon said.

"I am overwhelmed by the response of the Community. In reading some of the notes accompanying checks, I have been very moved. There is such a will to keep this going," Mazrimas said.

"I look forward to the months ahead when our case will be presented before the Vatican tribunal," said Glennon. "Our legal councilors in Rome have all the documentation supporting our rational arguments against the suppression of Star of the Sea, and will advocate on our behalf. I am very encouraged by our generous donors who are bringing this appeal to life."

The Friends of Star of the Sea also announce the traditional Holy Week liturgies of Holy Thursday, Good Friday, and the Easter Vigil on Holy Saturday, will all occur at Sacred Heart.

There will be no services at Star of the Sea until Easter Sunday.

Parishioners are encouraged to attend the Mass of the Resurrection, which will be celebrated at Star of the Sea at 12 noon. It will be the first Easter Mass celebrated at Star of the Sea since the Parish was suppressed in October 2004.

Weather permitting, parishioners will again return to the traditional Easter Egg Hunt and collation on the lawn between the church and the rectory. Anyone wishing to help with this event is encouraged to call Maureen Mazrimas at 617-257-8295 or Sean Glennon at 617-909-6426.

Mazrimas and Glennon wished everyone a Happy Easter and said they look forward to celebrating with the Squantum faith community on April 16. After the long winter, and the deaths of a number of Star of the Sea parishioners, the co-chairs said they see this Easter celebration as an opportunity to see everyone again, and to reinvigorate old relationships.

The public is invited to the church for the Easter Fun Fest on Saturday, April 15 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. There will be snacks, crafts and games for children as well as refreshments and a free Easter book for parents and grandparents to share with their families.

An Easter Egg Hunt will be run at 11 a.m. and at 11:15 a.m. everyone will gather for the reading of the Easter story.

On Easter Sunday, April 16, the celebration of Jesus' resurrection will begin with the annual Sunrise worship service. Sponsored by the South Shore Evangelical Clergy Association, the worship begins at 6:30 a.m. at Caddy Park on Wollaston Beach.

At 10 a.m. the community is invited to worship at Covenant Congregational Church. There will be special music under the direction of Chirstine Fahey, music director. The Rev. Karen Palmatier, pastor of the church, will bring the message of the morning.

Cemetery Department and Recreation Department will round out the municipal operation dedicated to the beautification effort.

Following the cleanup, Phelan will host a barbecue for all volunteers from 12:30 to 2 p.m. at the Richard Koch Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway.

Phelan urges those who wish to participate in "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" to organize a team of volunteers and designate a cleanup site. The Park Department will support the cleanup effort by providing the necessary tools, including rakes, brooms, gloves and other equipment.

All volunteers will receive a "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" T-shirt.

Those that wish to volunteer, recommend a cleanup site or have questions about the program may contact the Park Department at 617-376-1254.

Possible Heavy Sludge Trucking Raises Concerns

trucks onto city streets are all concerns that are raised by this proposal," said Phelan.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee expressed less concern over the loss of the rail transportation.

"Not everyone is near a rail," said McNamee, "Most facilities haul, and haul very safely. Situations at the river are very unique." "Hopefully (the trucks) will be waterproof, but I don't know," said Tim Dunlap, Director of ECDC. Under the previous contract, which expired March 31, backup services for sludge exportation cost $800,000 annually.

"We're being told by Mass. Water that it all comes down to cost," said Ernie Corrigan, representative of ECDC, at the Monday night City Council meeting.

"MWRA should have been here tonight," said Council President Douglas Gutro, Ward 5.

"The only thing we can do is vote on the mayor's budget," said Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

There will be a public meeting April 24 at the council chambers.

Special invitations will be sent to:

Mayor William Phelan, selectmen of Braintree and Weymouth, the MWRA, Sen. Morrissey, State Representatives Ron Mariano, Steven Tobin, Bruce Ayers, and residents in close proximity to either the plant or the truck routes used in evacuation.

In a letter to Raymondi, Corrigan claimed, "despite repeated efforts by ECDC to negotiate significant savings, the MWRA long ago declined to discuss how to continue rail backup service at a significant reduction in cost."

The original MWRA proposal for NEFCO in July of 2000 said, "any long-term reliance on trucking would require coordination and negotiation by the Successful Respondent with effected communities."

"To date, no one from NEFCO has contacted the city to discuss this coordination and negotiation," said Phelan in the letter.

"This is a matter that should have been brought before the council earlier. It's such an important issue," said Raymondi. "At the very least, the potential costs to the community are too high to allow NEFCO to switch from rail to trucking without demanding that NEFCO investigate alternative rail destinations, or determine whether the ECDC Landfill might remain available at a reduced cost," said Phelan in the letter.

In 1998 there was a NEFCO shutdown due to a natural gas explosion. Rail cars carried 14,000 tons of sludge out of the city, said Corrigan.

"That shipment would require 1,000 trucks to equal what the rail cars were able to accomplish," said Corrigan.

Under the request of Raymondi, the council has asked City Solicitor Monica Conyngham to produce a packet of condensed information on the dumping procedures, to be made available for the mayor, and the selectmen of Braintree and Weymouth.

According to Raymondi, the "oversight" of allowing the March 31 contract expiration without notification for the council and city will be referred to an "appropriate committee."

On Same-Sex Marriage

Church Banner Accents Split Among Clergy

By TOM HENSHAW

The banner supporting same-sex marriage displayed on the facade of United First Parish Church is highlighting a split among some Quincy clergymen and even the city's legislative delegation.

In a letter to The Quincy Sun, the Rev. John Swanson, pastor of the Union Congregational Church of Wollaston, called the banner a "narcissistic" display of an "in your face attitude."

"The Founding Fathers of this country made two assumptions when they wrote the U. S. Constitution," he said, "one, that America would always be a Judeo-Christian country and, two, that the family unit of a mother and father would always be intact.

"Today both of these assumptions are under attack and what a travesty that the final resting place of John Adams, author and driving force behind our Constitution, has been desecrated."

The Rev. Richard Brondyke, pastor of the Fort Square Presbyterian Church who opposes gay marriage, told The Sun he was against the banner because it was "sending a message that the city of Quincy should not be giving."

City Prepares For Possible Bird Flu

Quietly and with little fanfare, the city of Quincy along with a number of neighboring communities is developing a plan for dealing with a possible pandemic of avian or bird flu.

"We're working at it all the time," said Public Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele "We have held several 'table tops' where we have played out emergency scenarios and responses with our Region 4B partners."

Region 4B is a cooperative of 28 South Shore and Greater Boston communities joined together to make preparations for disasters, like a pandemic, that know no boundaries.

"All our departments are in on it," said Scheele. "The schools, police. fire, health, everybody. We talk about it at every monthly meeting."

As yet, there is no target date for developing a plan but time is running out since the bird flu, which has killed millions of birds and nearly 100 humans worldwide, could reach these shores in a matter of months.

"It could be here next year or in 10 years," said Scheele. "A pandemic is due every 30 or 40 years."

There is no known vaccine, although a serum called "tamiflu" can cut down on the side effects.

The vaccines in use to combat the yearly outbreaks of the flu have little or no effect on the avian variety

Water Club License Suspended 20 Days For Open Bar Violation

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday suspended the license of the Water Club at Marina Bay for 20 days with 10 days to be served for violation of the open bar law on New Year's Eve, 2005.

The vote was unanimous.

The motion for the suspension which becomes effective in June was made by Police Capt. John Dougan, and seconded by Jay Duca, director of Inspectional Services.

Dougan said before making the motion that he believed there was an open bar, but it was circumvented somehow with the tabs Open bars cannot be held if patrons purchase tickets which they did on Dec. 31, 2005.

Lt. Peter Turowski, liquor agent for the board said that on the night of Dec. 31, 2005, none of the cash registers were ringing up sales of liquor.

He said at least two purchases did not show up in receipts and that at least six patrons told him it was an "open bar."

William P. O'Connell, manager explained that friends of his were running tabs. One he said was an advertising agency who was willing spend $4,000 for his tab and in payment, he could distribute flyers in the Water Club for a restaurant he recently opened in Boston.

Rep. Steve Tobin, counsel for O'Connell, produced paper receipts from Micros, a computer company registered Dec. 31. Board members were each shown the copy.

Tobin said the tabs show that drinks were being logged." And that it shows there was "no open bar."

During an angry word exchange between Turowski and Tobin about sharing the same microphone so Turowski could hear Tobin better, Tobin said he did not want to move to the other microphone because his papers were all in front on him. Then looking at Turowski said, "you can hear me."

Chairman Joseph Shea said relating to an almost five hour hearing last week that he did not want to "waste anyone's time and said he wanted the meeting to be more productive."

Tobin said any allegation referring to the fabrication of the data" is "unacceptable" and said he was appalled by any allegation that could be leveled was "reaching for a straw" and would "muddy the waters."

Tobin said it was a "question of my ethics" and that he was able to produce the "final summary sheet."

Shea asked O'Connell how a bartender could record drinks on a tab if not keeping track at the register.

Shea asked O'Connell how many of the 150 persons at the party did he know personally. He answered more than 30.

O'Connell will be able to appeal to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission. (ABCC).

'Smart Zoning' Committee Begins Review Process

Mayor William Phelan announced Tuesday that his "Smart Zoning" Committee has begun meeting in an effort to review the city's zoning code and existing city ordinances in an effort to protect the quality of life in Quincy's neighborhoods.

The committee is tasked with making recommendations to strengthen the protections provided to neighborhoods in the existing code.

The committee is comprised of representatives from the City Council, Solicitor's Office, Inspectional Services, Planning Department, Planning Board, Zoning Board of Appeals, Mayor's Office and the general public.

The first meeting, held earlier this week, discussed some of the lingering issues such as setbacks, zoning districts, parking and other issues that impact Quincy's neighborhoods. Future meetings will discuss the city's ongoing re-codification efforts, an analysis of zoning variance requests and a study of previous "by-right" projects that have impacted neighborhoods in a negative fashion.

"I appreciate the service that the members of this committee will give our city," Phelan said. "It is my hope that they can set a guideline for our boards and commissions to help protect the quality of life in our neighborhoods. I believe that if we combine the efforts of this committee with stronger enforcement of existing ordinances, we can significantly impact the quality of life in our neighborhoods."

Phelan has requested the committee complete their findings and recommendation by August with the hope of having a report to the mayor and City Council in September.

St. Ann School Students Observe Passover Seder

Grade 6 student at St. Ann School presented their 10th annual Seder Monday in commemoration of the Passover flight of the ancient Israelites from captivity in Egypt.

"The children are very interested in the Seder meal," said their teacher, Barbara McCarty, who with fellow teacher Peggy O'Kane organized the celebration.

"It is a very reverent service. It gives the children a glimpse into the stories they have been studying in the Old Testament. The Israelites are out ancestors. The Old Testament paved the way for the New Testament."

Food served at the Seder has symbolic importance. The bitter herbs stand for the bitterness of slavery. The salt water symbolizes tears and the lamb symbolizes the sacrificial lamb of Passover.

Passover is celebrated today (Thursday) this year followed by Easter Sunday, the most important feast day in the Catholic tradition on April 16.

Shoo-In For Democrats?

Will this election year be another shoo-in for local Democrats?

The deadline for filing nomination papers for the September state primaries is just around the corner — May 2. And there doesn't seem to be any Republican candidates stirring.

Unless they (or others) step to the plate, it will mean a free ride back to Beacon Hill for Quincy's State House delegation.

Senator Michael Morrissey and Representatives Bruce Ayers, Ron Mariano and Steve Tobin are all strong Democrats, strong enough to discourage challengers.

MORRISSEY

TOBIN

They've been re-elected without opposition before, although two years ago Ayers drew the lone Republican opponent, Marco Sandonato of North Quincy, a political newcomer who found Ayers too heavy a hitter.

Ayers also had a Democrat challenger in the primary that year. His First Norfolk District comprises 12 precincts — 10 in Quincy and two in Randolph — and Paul Meoni, a Randolph Democrat, decided to give it a shot, but it proved to be political misfire.

Sandonato deserves credit for his efforts — and maybe for his political courage. It isn't easy being a Republican candidate in Quincy these days.

Not like the GOP's good old days of the 1930s and 1940s when Republicans had a monopoly on just about every elective office in Quincy, state and Norfolk County.

But now the Democrats are in the driver's seat.

Right now there are no Republicans in Quincy municipal, local state and county office. The last one was former Mayor Frank McCauley, who in December closed out a 32-year political career that included the school committee and city council. He went out as city council president.

Today, Quincy Democrats hold 22 local state, municipal and county seats: state senator, three state representatives, mayor, nine city council seats, six school committee seats, one county commission seat and register of probate office. (Plus Congressman Bill Delahunt and state Treasurer Tim Cahill.)

This is a complete turnaround from up through the 1930s and 1940s with the Republicans in power then and Democrats on the outside looking in.

It wasn't easy being a Democrat candidate especially in partisan elections back then. And, it isn't easy being a Republican candidate today.

Party affiliation isn't suppose to be involved in municipal elections but last year's city election voter registration gives you an idea what Republican candidates are up against.

Of the 54,899 registered voters: 25,490 were Democrats, 22,422 unenrolled (independents) and only 6,598 Republicans. (The remaining 479 were scattered among small parties.)

Republicans, it would seem, will have to woo as many of the unenrolled as they can over to their side on election days. But right now, the unenrolled seem to lean more to the Democrat side.

The GOP elephant that once roamed the city and county as king of the political jungle today is looking more like an endangered species.

But, Democrats may have something to think about, too. The unenrolled continue to inch up on them in number and one day could be the new political power in town.

IF QUINCY REACHES 90,000 population this year, Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly thinks the city should mark the historic milestone with a celebration.

KELLY

In last week's column, City Clerk Joseph Shea said he was "pretty optimistic" the city will gain the 2,000 new residents needed to reach 90,000. Shea bases his optimism on the rate of return of this year's city census forms and the condo and apartment construction.

In a letter to Mayor William Phelan, Kelly says: "If and when we reach this outstanding milestone, I would like to take this opportunity to suggest that the city of Quincy hosts a gala celebration in honor of this occasion, using its different cultures and heritages as a foundation for this event."

Kelly says he has reviewed the census with Shea and "every indicator seems to suggest the city will reach a population figure of 90,000."

And adds:

"The city of Quincy is made up of many diverse cultures and nationalities. This has made Quincy the unique city that it is. Quincy has become the city our forefathers could only imagine."

IN LAST WEEK'S column we mentioned that City Clerk Joseph Shea would like to see the election day when every Quincy registered voter actually turns out to vote.

He knows that's a political Impossible Dream. There's always going to be someone staying home.

Presidential elections traditionally draw the biggest turnouts so we decided to do a little checking to see if any in recent times came close to the 100 percent mark.

The closest one we found was the 1960 John Kennedy-Richard Nixon election that rang up 93 percent turnout. Just seven percent under that elusive 100 percent.

Runner-up was the Ronald Reagan-Walter Mondale match in 1984 that drew 88 percent.

Here are some others:

1976: Jimmy Carter-Gerald Ford, 84.4 percent.
1980: Reagan-Carter, 81.2 percent.
1988: George H.W. Bush-Michael Dukakis, 80.9 percent.
1992: Bill Clinton-Bush, 71.09 percent.
1996: Clinton-Robert Dole, 73 percent.
2000: George W. Bush-Al Gore, 73.6 percent.
2004: Bush-John Kerry, 70 percent.

Still a long way to 100 percent.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1929 postcard reproduction of the Old Colony Laundry building that was at 100 Quincy Avenue near Quincy Center for 50 years. Founded in Braintree in 1896, the company moved to Quincy a few years later and was bought by Fredrick Tirrell who is known today as the founder of the Quincy Lodge of Elks. When Tirrell died in 1908, his partner Forrest I. Neal became president. Over the next 20 years Neal steadily grew the business and in 1929 he built the large state-of-the-art laundry building shown here. An opening ceremony attracted over 13,000 visitors to the plant that was hailed as a showplace and model for laundry operators across the U.S. At its peak, the laundry employed over 250 people, and with its truck fleet serviced homes and institutions throughout eastern Massachusetts. In 1951 Neal was succeeded as president by his son, Forrest I Neal, Jr. who also became president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and was an influential MBTA director for many years. In September 1974, after 78 years in business, the laundry was forced to close due to rising fuel and labor costs and a shrinking market. The plant site later became home to a Shaw's Market that is now the Quincy Credit Union building. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Says President Bush Should Practice What He Teaches

I was very impressed when I read the other day that President Saddam Hussein did not believe that President George W. Bush would invade Iraq, having been acquainted with the disastrous war America waged against Vietnam. I did not believe either, after President Bush declared that Jesus Christ is his role model in life.

Historians will not fail to record that Saddam Hussein offered two times to talk with President Bush; once, before we invaded Iraq, and the other time after our troops executed his two sons.

Historians will not fail to record that Saddam Hussein obeyed all 14 UN resolutions against him, but he failed to publicly disclose that, since that admission would invite foreign invasion. Did our President obey the UN?

Historians will not fail to record that our President was determined to invade Iraq no matter what Saddam Hussein did or did not do.

Historians have already recorded that Saddam Hussein maintained law and order in Iraq, without "Foreign Legions" and is charged with the death of some 140 Iraqis. And who is going to be charged for the 30,000 dead Iraqis killed by our troops?

When Pakistan and India were about to start an atomic war, President Bush pleaded with them to use peace and not war to solve their differences.

Would somebody please plead with our President to practice what he preaches! If he would, that would stop the loss of human life, American and foreign.

Furor Over Teachers' Pay Hike 'Secret'

April 12-18
1952
54 Years Ago

The Rev. Joseph D. Parkman of the School Committee charged that Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard "let the cat out of the bag" when he told teachers about the committee's proposed 5 percent salary adjustment plan.

Parkman said the increased plan was tentatively adopted at an executive work session of the board and was to have been a committee secret until the next regular public meeting.

He was getting tremendous pressure from teachers who want more money, Parkman said, adding he may propose a motion that would bar the superintendent from future executive sessions of the board.

Gossard said he had assumed teachers were to be kept informed on progress of wage discussions. Keeping teachers in the dark on the subject, he said, was poor policy.

Easter Egg Ring

Every Easter I try to bake an Easter Ring topped with eggs for each of the children and others also. And so it was last week when I began my quest for making more there half dozen of the delicious treats. This year I used a slightly different version given to me by my cousin Gen.

In this recipe, which can also used to make biscotti, a different flavoring can be used such as almond or vanilla. But for today's recipe, I am using an anise flavoring. Instead of the extract, I use anise oil which is more effective as far as flavor is concerned.

Anise Easter Ring

2 eggs
1 cup sugar
3 cups flour
3/4 cup cup milk
3/4 cup butter (Crisco or margarine can also be used
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons anise oil or 2 tablespoon anise extract
(if you use anisette liquor or Samboca, it takes a little more)
3 eggs for the topping. (they cook while baking)

Icing for Top

1 cup powdered sugar
a little cream or milk until mixture is like frosting.
or make your favorite icing
sprinkles for the top
1/4 teaspoon anise oil (optional)

The following recipe yields one big ring or two medium sized rings. I have doubled the recipe and made three or four out of this recipe.

Melt and butter and mix with the sugar and salt. Slowly add the flour, baking powder and eggs one at a time and anise alternately with he milk.

Mix until it forms a dough. Before you form the dough into rings, keep a small amount for the strips needed to hold the eggs in place on top.

On a floured board, form the dough into a ring like a wreath. Place eggs around the top and secure with the small strips that are rolled about 1/4 inch thick. Place two strips one lengthwise and the other cross ways.

Bake in a 350 degree oven on an a slightly greased and floured cookie sheet or round pizza pan for about 30 minutes. When cooled brush the top with the icing and then top it with pastel colored sprinkles. Can be kept for days and days covered and refrigerated so you can enjoy it with a cup of coffee of tea.

Happy Easter!

St. Ann's School Planning 50th Anniversary Reunion

St. Ann's School in Wollaston will celebrate its 50th anniversary in October and a reunion committee has been formed to plan a large alumni event.

"We are very excited about the prospect of a St. Ann's School reunion," said Clare Mazza, one of the chairpersons of this event at St. Ann's. "We know that many of our school alums are still in the Quincy and South Shore area and as we have begun our planning we have had some terrific feedback from former graduates who are excited to get together for an event like this."

St. Ann's School is a primary and middle school educating children in grades Pre-K through eight. The school's first year of operation was 1956. It is located at one St. Ann's Road in Wollaston across the street from Veteran's Memorial Stadium. This is the same location where the school originated 50 years ago.

Mazza added:

"The reunion celebration is scheduled for Oct. 22 at the Neighborhood Club in Quincy and will be preceded by a Mass to be celebrated at St. Ann's Church that morning.

"We are seeking updated addresses and phone numbers for St. Ann's graduates over the last 50 years, and we are asking anyone who is interested in this event to contact St. Ann's Rectory directly at 617-479-5400 or via e-mail at saintannfifty@yahoo.com so we can include them on our mailing list."

laws," he said, "but whether they have a right to display the banner is a matter for Quincy to decide.

"I'm opposed to the message display in a public way on an historic building in the middle of an historic district."

The Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of the United First Parish Church, commenting on the Swanson letter, said "there is nothing in the Constitution that says we are a Judeo-Christian nation."

"The Founding Fathers may have been primarily Christian," he said, "but as time has gone by we have come to celebrate religious pluralism.

"We talk about families. Many of these (same-sex) families are raising children and need full protection under the law.

"That's what this is all about."

Meanwhile, State Rep. Ron Mariano was given a "Human Rights Champion Award" by the Quincy Human Rights Commission and South Shore Civil Marriage for All for his "courageous support of marriage equality."

Mariano was the only state rep on the South Shore to vote against a proposed amendment to the state constitution that would limit marriage to one man and one woman.

"It may be politically risky," he said, "but it's what I believe in. I'm not telling organized religion that they have to perform the ceremony but I don't think the state should stop it."

Presentation of the award was to have been made on the steps of United First Parish Church but was forced indoors into the lobby of the new City Hall by inclement

As to the church banner, "I have no problem with it," Mariano said, "as long as it's temporary and not a permanent part of the church.

"If the parishioners want it, God bless them."

In his letter to The Sun, the Rev. Swanson said:

"As a professor of history as well as a clergyman, I take grave offense at the 'in your face' attitude behind the narcisstic banner now displayed at First Parish Church.

"It was de Toqueville, the French philosopher who said that the family was the bedrock, the incubator of American democracy.

"De Toqueville and Adams were, of course, referring to a family as consisting of a mother and father, not a same sex couple, despite what Rev. Bennett and modern day apologists may say.

"The banner now displayed at First Parish Church is an example not of First Parish Church's concern for civil rights, but rather it is a reflection of an 'in your face' narcisstic preoccupation with human sexuality."

Later, Swanson told The Sun in an interview that he had nothing against Bennett personally.

"He's a great guy," he said, "but he is in error."

The banner, with the words "PEOPLE OF FAITH FOR MARRIAGE EQUALITY," will be displayed on the church for 60 days, including the May 10 date when the state legislature goes into constitutional convention to consider the amendment banning gay marriage.

City Prepares For Possible Bird Flu

but the annual clinics themselves will have given health professionals experience in running them.

"They're like practice clinics for a pandemic," said Scheele.

A crucial part of any plan to combat a pandemic would be handling overwhelmed hospitals, nursing homes and other emergency agencies.

Every bit as important is a plan for dealing with the results of a pandemic in the schools, which might have to close of weeks, throwing the business world out of kilter if mom and dad have to stay home.

State Education Commissioner David Driscoll recently sent a message to school superintendents urging them o "prepare not only statewide but locally and regionally for a potential pandemic."

Rabies Clinic April 22 At Animal Shelter

The Quincy Health Department will hold a Rabies Immunization Clinic Saturday, April 22, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St., (behind the George Bryan VFW Post and Father Bill's Place).

The clinic will be held rain or shine, and is offered at a minimal cost of $10 for each dog, and cat in an effort to strongly encourage pet owners to have their cats and dogs immunized against this serious disease. Residents must bring proof of immunization from the previous year to obtain a three-year shot.

Rabies is an infectious and contagious viral disease transmitted from exposed wildlife to dogs and cats who in turn can transmit the disease to humans through bite wounds. The disease is considered to be 100 percent fatal, if untreated. Exposed dogs and cats that are not vaccinated must be either isolated for three months or destroyed.

Rabies is still present in the wildlife population in Massachusetts. Last year, 280 animals tested at the State Laboratory in Boston were positive for rabies. About 15 percent of the dogs and cats exposed to rabies had to be put to sleep as none were vaccinated.

The Health Department says it is very important to vaccinate all pets to avoid contact with wild animals. Dogs and cats must be vaccinated once over three months of age and re-vaccinated once every three years as long as the two vaccines at nine to 12 month intervals have been administered. For those pets who received the yearly vaccine at the April 23 clinic last year, the second yearly vaccine must be received this year at the April 22 clinic. For those dogs or cats that received two vaccines less than one year apart and owners have a receipt from the Health Department or veterinarian, of these vaccinations, a three year vaccine will be administered at the appropriate clinics.

To reduce exposure to rabies it is important to take the following precautions, the Quincy Health Department stresses:

- Vaccinate all cats and dogs against rabies.
- Do not touch, pick up or feed wild or stray animals of any kind.
- Teach children to avoid wildlife and strays.
- Avoid sick or strangely acting animals.
- Fasten trashcan lids tightly. Garbage attracts raccoons and skunks.
- Cap chimneys and seal openings into the house, etc. to prevent raccoons from entering or building dens.
- If bitten or scratched by any animal, promptly wash the wound(s) with soapy water and contact a doctor immediately.
- If a pet has been bitten or scratched by any animals, wear gloves, wash the wound with warm soapy water for at least 10 minutes, and contact your veterinarian immediately.

Gift Applied To Purchase Of Advanced Environmental Services Technology

Quincy Medical Center Receives $4,500 Donation

Quincy Medical Center recently received a $4,500 donation from the City Hospital of Quincy Corporation, a private charitable organization established to support the, then public, city-owned hospital.

Since 1992, the corporation has contributed more than $104,000 to support the hospital.

The City Hospital of Quincy Corporation's latest gift will be applied to the purchase of a 27-inch floor burnisher with a state-of-the-art high-efficiency particulate (HEPA) filter. The environmental services equipment plays a vital role in Quincy Medical Center's ability to meet and exceed cleanliness, safety and air quality standards set by the Department of Public Health (DPH), College of American Pathologists (CAP), which measures laboratory standards, and the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO).

In 2003, the Joint Commission awarded QMC with the Gold Seal of Approval™ for patient care, quality, and safety and gave medical center a score of 98, which places QMC in the top seven percent of U.S. hospitals and in the top one percent of hospitals in Massachusetts.

KARL RUUSKA (right), treasurer of the City Hospital of Quincy Corporation, presents the Corporation's $4,500 donation to Gary W. Gibbons, MD, FACS, President and CEO of Quincy Medical Center.

Quincy Medical Center (www.quincymc.org) is a 232-bed acute care community-teaching hospital providing South Shore residents with comprehensive medical and surgical services. The medical center's Alliance for Quality with Boston Medical Center (BMC), formed in 1999, brings academic medicine to the community. At Quincy Medical Center, physicians from Boston Medical Center direct the departments of medicine, surgery, anesthesia, emergency medicine, and psychiatry. Additionally, physicians from BMC who are board-certified in a range of medical and surgical specialties work alongside community physicians to ensure the continuity of patient care.

Quincy Kiwanis Club Honors 'Junior Heroes'

The Quincy Kiwanis Club recently honored 12 individual students and a group of 23 with its first "Junior Hero Awards" presented at a breakfast in the Quincy Elks Tirrell Room.

The group award went to 23 students in the Operation Day's Work program at Broad meadows School. The focus of this special group is on international issues in conjunction with the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Individual awards were presented to:

Caroline Gillis, 18, and Shannon Clark, 17, both seniors at North Quincy High School for their work in a clothing drive for St. Francis House.

Peter Lau and Christine Loi, both 17, are seniors at Quincy High School. Lau was recognized for his work in Project Safe for senior citizens. Loi was honored for her work with the March of Dimes program and for placing American flags on the graves of veterans at Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Sarah Minton, 13, grade 8 Central Middle School, for her fundraising activities for Jake's Game for a cystic fibrosis patient and for hurricane Katrina victims and the Jimmy Fund.

Amber Alpert, 13, grade 8 at Point Webster Middle School, for activities to raise funds to help find a cure for cystic fibrosis.

Amber has an older brother suffering with this disease. She, with the help of her family, has raised thousands of dollars for this cause.

Lauren Di Bona, 13, grade 8 at Sterling School, for coordinating the Sterling food drive from Southwest Quincy Community Action Center and a book drive for service men and women overseas.

Taylor Gillis, 11, grade 5 at Snug Harbor School, who has been involved with the Germantown Neighborhood Center since he was a toddler and now volunteers to help with all of their programs.

Cody Huntington, 11, grade 5 at Bernazzani School, diagnosed with cystic fibrosis at birth, helps organize the Quincy Walk for Cystic Fibrosis each year and walks himself raising hundreds of dollars.

Liam Batson and Matt Baldwin, both 10 and grade 4 students at Atherton Hough School, created a lemonade stand and raised $2,000 for Katrina victims. Both also donate toys and games to families in need.

Grace Anderson, 7, grade 2 at St. Ann's School, contributed several inches of her hair to "Locks of Love" to create wings for children suffering from long term medical hair loss.

The Society was formed in 2002 to recognize the top scholars in the nation and invites only those students who have achieved superior academic excellence.

"On behalf of NSHSS, I am honored to recognize the hard work, sacrifice and commitment that Phillip has demonstrated to achieve this level of academic excellence," said Claes Nobel, founder and chairman of NSHSS.

"Phillip is now a member of a unique community of scholars — a community that represents our very best hope for the future."

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Smoking, Cooking And Fatal Fires

Here are some statistics from the Office of the State Fire Marshal regarding residential structure fires. You might use them as an opportunity to examine your own household practices to avoid an incident yourself.

During one specific year, smoking materials caused 33 percent of residential fire deaths. The most common scenario involving carelessly disposed lighted tobacco products on upholstered furniture, mattresses or bedding. Typically these individuals are smoking while lying down and a cigarette is not properly disposed of prior to falling asleep.

Cooking caused 13 percent of residential fatal fires. Cooking equipment is actually a leading cause of home fires as well. Unattended cooking is the principal behavioral factor behind these fires. It is too easy in this day and age to begin cooking and become distracted with other matters. That is why we encourage people to remain in the kitchen once they begin cooking.

Another consideration is the use of loose clothing over a stove. This is a common concern with seniors in particular who could be cooking over an open flame while a hanging bathrobe sleeve catches fire. Remember that seniors are particularly vulnerable to fire to begin with.

When I conducted fire safety presentations, I encouraged people to remove a pan cover once they began cooking, and place it on a counter nearby. In the event of a fire within that pan, they could then place the cover over the fire to extinguish it. The pan cover will isolate air from the fire causing it to extinguish. Remember though, with a cooking oil fire within a pan, it can potentially reignite if the cover is then removed where the oil can remain beyond its ignition temperature until left to cool. Of course never add water to a cooking oil fire as well where doing so will substantially worsen the situation.

Heating equipment is the second leading cause of residential fires. Most involved portable or space heaters. Remember to use them properly and safely as directed in the manufacturers' instructions.

Smoking materials, the use of which are obviously not encouraged for health reasons, can be used safely from a fire safety standpoint if used and disposed properly. Cooking is an inherently safe practice as well while most appliances today have been tested by a nationally recognized testing company. The same holds true for space heaters. It's the human factor, the behavioral bad habits, that can cause the problem.

That's where fire safety education plays an important role and hopefully an article like this as well. identify common behavior risk factors as I have here, recognize your association with them, and modify them if need be to reduce the risk of fire in your home. Hopefully for someone, I've begun that process for them here. Be Safe!

Denise Gurshin Has Good Reason To Run Marathon

Denise Gurshin, a Quincy native, and member of the Saucony "26 most outstanding heroes of the 110th Boston Marathon" will run again, this year on behalf of the American Liver Foundation.

Saucony Athletic Company chooses 26 runners per year that they feel deserve their sponsorship.

Denise is preparing to run the Boston Marathon® as part of the American Liver Foundation's 240-member Run for Research® team to help educate others about her experiences as a living donor, for her two-year husband, liver cancer-survivor, Chris Gurshin of Newburyport.

Four months after their Nov. 2004 wedding, Denise underwent surgery transferring more than half of her liver to her husband, saving his life.

Chris Gurshin learned in 1993 that he had Primary Schlerosing Cholangitis (PSC), an autoimmune inflammatory disease of the bile ducts and liver, when his donated blood was rejected at a high school blood drive.

Although he was prescribed a range of medications and a regimen of healthy living, doctors told him that his chances for survival through college were questionable at best. He was put on a waiting list for a liver transplant.

Despite the doctor's warning, Chris Gurshin earned an undergraduate degree in marine biology at the University of Tampa, and an M.S. in fisheries from Auburn University. Chris completed over 200 SCUBA dives across the world, handling sharks for his theses.

Complications from the disease continued, including several high fevers and hospital visits throughout the late '90s.

He was bumped to the bottom of the transplant waiting list due to his high-functioning kidneys and blood levels, because of the introduction of a new liver-transplant scoring system, coined by MELD.

While at Auburn, he met Denise Marnell from Quincy. They moved to Boston and were engaged in 2003. Denise ran the Boston Marathon® in '04 and Chris met her at the finish line with a fever of over 100 degrees.

For the next year, Chris spent the majority of his time at New England Medical Center (NEMC) awaiting a liver transplant. They married in a short ceremony before Chris was once again admitted. Denise was considered an unsuitable organ donor. She had contracted Malaria while serving in The Peace Corps during college, but she persisted on being tested. Eventually her liver was found to be free of past exposure, and, in March of '05, Denise donated approximately 60 percent of her liver to Chris.

Today, Chris is healthy and is looking forward to his next SCUBA dive, and Denise is looking forward to participating in this year's marathon.

The American Liver Foundation is devoted to liver health and disease prevention. Through its research, education and advocacy programs, the foundation and its 25 regional chapters have led the nationwide fight against liver disease since 1976.

Fundraiser April 28 To Aid Mickey Monahan And Family

Friends of Michael "Mickey" Monahan of Quincy have organized a fundraiser to help him fight deadly cancer Friday, April 28, from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight at Florian Hall, 35 Hallet St., Dorchester.

Since Monahan, proprietor of Precision Remodeling in Quincy, was diagnosed with cancer he has been undergoing aggressive chemotherapy at Dana Farber Cancer Institute and has been unable to work.

Tickets to the fundraiser are $25 and can be purchased either at Malachy's. 11 Granite St., Quincy, or by calling Shelley Lane Dillon at 617-969-4986.

Checks should be made payable to The Michael Monahan Family Fund and mailed directly to The Michael Monahan Family Fund, c/o Colonial Federal Bank, 15 Beach St., Quincy MA 02170.

Event organizers also are seeking donations for a raffle and auction.

"The outpouring of support we have received from family and friends has been incredible," said his wife, Julie, a life-long resident of Quincy and mother of his two children, Shayley, 7, and Michaela, 4.

"St. Ann's Parish has provided tuition assistance and families for our daughter's classmates at St. Ann's School have supplied meals three days a week for us as well as providing a tremendous amount of support.

"We are extremely thankful to those who have been so thoughtful. Relying on others is a tough thing to do, but it is something we have reluctantly learned to accept during this difficult time."

"When she started the school year," said Shelley Lane Dillon, a family friend, "Shayley planned to be on the basketball court hearing words of encouragement from her Dad.

"Instead, it's Shayley and her sister, Michaela, who are giving the encouraging word to their Dad."

What Is Certification?

(NU) - What is certification? Why is it important to homeowners who are looking for a technician to service the heating and cooling systems in their home?

Certification is independent verification of a technician's skills. It assures homeowners that their system is being serviced by a knowledgeable technician.

North American Technician Excellence Inc. is an independent certification body for heating, ventilation, air-conditioning and refrigeration technicians. NATE-certified technicians have nationwide certifications; have passed a rigorous industry-supported test; have proof of their knowledge; and they go beyond simply changing parts to fix the roof of the problem.

To find a contractor who has NATE-certified technicians, go to the Consumer Contractor Connection at www.natex.org.

Flynn & Co. Hired To Auction Property In Watertown

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc. will auction the property at 124 Riverside St. in Watertown on Wednesday, April 19 at 11 a.m.

Flynn & Company was hired by the Town of Watertown to conduct the auction. Prospective buyers and real estate agents will be able to view the property up for auction on Saturday, April 15 from noon to 3 p.m.

Competitive bidding will determine the final price of the property.

"The final price at auction is the truest test of the real estate's fair market value," said Auctioneer and Flynn & Co. CEO Dan Flynn. "Auctions create a sense of urgency among potential buyers because the subject property will only be available for sale at the specified date and time."

Flynn said the property is "perfect for the auction process as it has an incredible amount of potential for a myriad of different buyers.

"A true handyman's special, once renovated, will have outstanding value because of its location," he added.

DANIEL J. FLYNN & Co., Inc. will auction this property at 124 Riverside St. in Watertown on Wednesday, April 19 at 11 a.m.

In addition to a streamlined marketing process, real estate auction sales generally contain no contingencies that can slow or even derail a closing.

"Auctions are a natural draw. People love an auction," Flynn said.

The Watertown Colonial style residence is a "handyman special" with 1,500+/- square feet of living area including 6 total rooms, 3 bedrooms, 1 full half bath, on a 4912+/- SF lot. The house resides on a corner lot in what is considered a great neighborhood.

Mowing Smart, Not Hard

(NAPS) If mowing the lawn is a pain in the neck, or shoulders or wrists, consider the ergonomic design of the lawnmower.

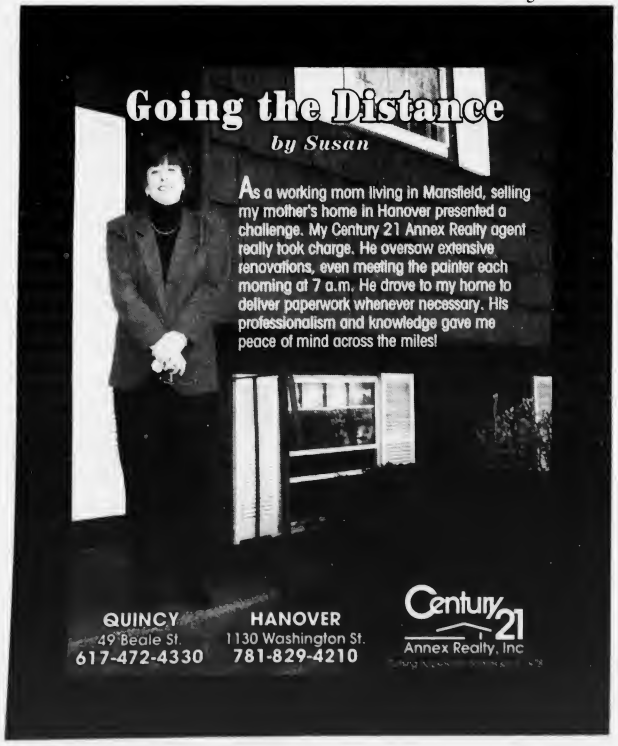
Garden gurus hold that working smart, not hard, stems from what's called the ergonomic design of their tools.

Increasingly, ergonomic industrial designers are creating functional, comfortable and easy-to-use products. Ergonomic design tries to help reduce physical stress, maintain energy and allow the gardener to enjoy more time outdoors.

According to the experts at Honda Power Equipment, attaining the right cut for that coveted yard of the month starts with an easy-to-use mower.

"Lawn mowing should be as productive and effortless as possible. When the operator has to constantly grip the handlebars to increase speed, adjust a jerking mowing on an incline, or wrestle to fit it in the garage, mowing becomes a chore," said Kristen Delaney of Honda product planning.

At Honda Power Equipment, manufacturers of a complete line of lawn care equipment, part of technological innovation is designing equipment that adjusts the job to the worker.



Recent news stories document that baby boomers are generally healthier and more active than generations before, demanding products that fit their lifestyles.

For example, the all-new Honda HRR Series lawn mower that delivers an ergonomic and affordable mowing experience is one example of a lawn care product designed to meet these needs.

The HRR Series, developed and tested by Honda R&D and an ergonomic specialist, incorporates unique design elements that make easy work of mowing.

One ergonomic feature is the HRR216K3VXA model's SMART Drive® transmission, allowing users to easily control the mower's speed simply by resting their hands on the handlebars. By placing either one or both thumbs on the lever, the operator can easily control the mower's speed and even mow with one hand.

The HRR also incorporates an EZ Grip ErgoActive® handle that relieves stress on the hands; the quick-release folding handlebars also make storage simple and easy, even in confined spaces.

Septic Tank Needs Regular Cleaning

Q. I was recently contacted by a septic tank cleaning company and told that it was time to schedule "another cleaning." I'm not sure I scheduled any cleaning before — the house is relatively new. Do you think this is a scam? — Dolores in Arkansas

A. I don't think it's a scam so much as a marketing ploy, although it's always best to check out any offers thoroughly before accepting them.

Septic tanks should be pumped out every three to five years — or more often, depending on the size of the tank and the number of people in the house. Sometimes local laws mandate a more frequent cleaning to prevent stress on the ecosystem. But you don't have to depend on a septic tank cleaning company you've never heard of to find out if it's time to hire a professional.

First, contact your local government, or bring up its Web page online, to find out what guidelines it has regarding septic tanks. Next, measure the level of sludge in the tank yourself to see if it needs to be pumped out.

This is fairly easy (if somewhat stinky — though not as bad as you think) to do. Take a long, flat, light-colored wood stick that is as deep as the tank plus a couple feet longer. Mark feet and inches on it. Open the septic tank lid and put the stick straight down, all the way to the bottom. Hold it there for a minute, then slowly draw it straight up and out.

What you are measuring is the level of sludge at the bottom of the tank. After its dip, the stick should have two types of stain marks on it: a sludge stain on the bottom part, and a water stain the rest of the way up. If the sludge stain is bigger than the water stain (or approaching that level), a professional cleaning is definitely in order.

If you don't want to do the inspection yourself, or the local government requires you to have an inspection and cleaning no matter what, go ahead and schedule one with that company (or another company, if you're uncomfortable with the first). Be present when the truck arrives and hang around during the inspection, so that you can see the results and ask questions about the procedure.

Tips To 'Bubble-Proof' A Home

(NAPS) What can you do to bubble-proof your home and protect yourself, regardless of what happens in the frenzied housing market?

A real estate bubble, simply put, is an unsustainable gain in home prices that can jeopardize resale value and equity.

Alex Koutouzis, senior vice president for Opteum Financial Services, one of the nation's fastest-growing mortgage lenders, says, "the options really depend on your personal needs and situation, your risk tolerance and what you're looking to achieve. If you're refinancing, do you need to borrow 100 percent of the value of your home or can you leave some equity untapped in the event of a value declination in your community?"

The smartest move is obvious: Always buy a house you can afford and don't overextend yourself. A good rule of thumb is that your housing costs (including principal, interest, property taxes and insurance) should not exceed 25 to 32 percent of your family's gross income.

Here are some other smart tips to help stay out of bubble trouble:

• Avoid borrowing against your home equity. Unless the home was bought years ago for peanuts and will probably turn interest in selling, think twice before taking out a home equity line of credit.

• Manage debt. If too much income is being spent on housing costs, or if adjustable-rate mortgage payments have increased as rates rise, avoid using credit cards to pay other expenses. Look for other expenses to cut.

• Pay down principal. Consider making extra principal payments to get a mortgage balance below 75 percent of a home's appraised value.

• Consider switching to a fixed-rate mortgage.

• Have realistic expectations. Don't assume property will continue to appreciate at the same rapid pace it may have enjoyed in recent years.

• Do neighborhood homework. If looking to buy, avoid areas that have recently climbed well above the average rate for that location.

• Keep a cool head. Buyers often get into bidding wars over artificially inflated homes in hot markets. Don't be one of them.

Lastly remember that a home is ultimately a family shelter, rather than just an investment asset. The longer a homeowner stays, the more equity they build.

Advice On Planning Your Next Move

(NU) - The warmer months are when many people buy a new home.

This means a new beginning, a new phone number and new things to buy. When families purchase a home, they typically purchase all new household products. Often, people go a bit overboard and get more than they need.

When moving, there are a few steps all homeowners should take to ensure their move goes as smoothly as possible. Lifestyle expert Katie Brown, author of the book Katie Brown's Weekends, has the following tips on what to do before and after you move, and how to stick to your budget:

• Make sure to notify the cable, electric, gas and phone companies so that service can be turned on as soon as you move in. Be sure to ask the phone company to use a forwarding message with your new number.

• Notify the post office at least a month ahead of time to ensure your mail is forwarded to your new address.

• Send out change-of-address cards to friends and family.

• Collect copies of family medical records if you are moving far enough to change doctors. New schools will also require copies of these records.

Schedule your movers a day or two after you have access to your new home. This will give you time to give a good cleaning. The bathroom often is the dirtiest area in a new home.

• Nothing signals a good neighbor more than a pretty lawn. Take a short break from the unpacking and plant a few flowers. The fresh air will do you good and the flowers will make your yard look inviting.

• Remember when decorating that the house should reflect your personal style. Check out tag sales and flea markets for great products and good deals.

"Medical Breakthrough For Sciatica"

By C. Ann Willet

Boston- "Sciatica has puzzled doctors and frustrated patients for years. But now space travel and modern technology may have finally cracked the back pain and sciatica code."

Those are the enthusiastic words of Boston's, Dr. Jonathan D. Yalowchuk. Dr. Yalowchuk has been using non-surgical spinal decompression - an amazing space-age medical breakthrough to treat back pain, disc herniations, and sciatica…for over 10 months now.

"I was shocked at the results spinal decompression gets in such a short time. And how long those results last… without the side effects of drugs or risk of surgery. I was also shocked that so few doctors in the country were willing to invest in this amazing new technology," commented Dr. Yalowchuk. "But the best thing is I am able to offer this medical breakthrough to so many low back disc herniation and sciatica sufferers right here in Boston."

Due to his tremendous success in treating back pain, herniated discs, sciatica and pain radiating into the arms and legs, Dr. Yalowchuk has made available a free report to anyone suffering with these painful conditions.

"I just wanted back pain sufferers to know they have an option other than drugs and surgery… an option that really works. I wanted to let them know there is finally REAL hope… that hope is detailed in my free report."

A Job Well Done

On Sunday, April 2, at approximately 4:30 a.m., Officers James Greene and Ryan Donnelly made a swing through the parking lot of the House of Pancakes on the Parkingway.

LT. DAN MINTON

The officers observed a vehicle leave the parking lot and then stop in the middle of the roadway. A female passenger was hanging out of the window screaming at a group of patrons and then the driver stepped out, leaving her door open as she started yelling at the patrons.

The officers instructed the two females to cease and to move the car over to the side of the road. The driver continued to rant and rave at the patrons. Officer Greene strongly advised the driver to comply with his instructions. She not only refused, she then turned her aggression at Officer Greene by yelling at him and as she approached, she pushed the officer.

Officer Greene told the female (suspect No. 1) she was under arrest and attempted to handcuff her but she resisted. As both officers tried to subdue suspect No. 1, the other female outside the car and another female who had been in the car attacked the officers from behind.

Officer Greene called for backup and Sergeant John Kelly arrived on scene immediately. He pulled both females away from the officers and once suspect No. 1 was handcuffed, the other two females were placed under arrest.

Officer Greene interviewed the other group of people who were involved in the dispute and learned that more than words were exchanged. One victim stated the three females got into suspect No. 1's vehicle and after initially backing out of the spot, turned the car in the direction of his group.

He stated the driver then revved the engine on at least three occasions and raced toward them, then backed up. Another victim/witness of the same group said she was unable to get away from the third attempt and was struck in the leg. The injury was determined to be minor; however, photos were taken as evidence.

All three female suspects were charged with "Disorderly Conduct" and "Assault and Battery on a Police Officer." The driver, suspect No. 1, was also charged with "Assault and Battery with a Dangerous Weapon (motor vehicle)." Nice work!

Bicycle Safety

By MATT LAVERY

Now that spring is here, the nice weather brings excited children looking forward to playing outside and doing typical activities such as bike riding, rollerblading, skateboarding, or even the new fad, Heely's.

Children must recognize that safety is vital in these sports, rather than worrying about "looking cool."

Annually, there are more than 500 bicycle related deaths and most are from head injuries. Parents, it needs to start with you. Educating your children and ensuring they wear helmets is paramount when participating in these activities. In addition to a helmet, kneepads and wrist guards are recommended.

When buying a helmet, look for one that has the CPSC sticker on the inside of it. This means that it meets the standard for a helmet in the United States. Helmets designated for skating are not the same for bike riding. The difference in the helmets is that skating helmets are made for less impact to the head. A skating helmet will not have a CPSC certification sticker on the inside.

Be sure the helmet fits properly by the standards below before you purchase it. The helmet should fit snug to the top of the head and not tilt back at all. The "Y" of the side straps should meet just below the ear. The chin strap should fit snugly so that when the mouth is opened, you should be able to feel the helmet pull down just a bit on your head.

After making sure the following steps are correct, the helmet should not move when the head is shaken. If the helmet moves or tilts back exposing the forehead, then it needs to be re-adjusted and tightened. If you are able to pull the back up to the front of the head and it moves more than one inch, then the rear straps need to be adjusted.

Remember, it only takes 21 days on average to make it a habit!

Is Gum Disease Linked To Overall Health?

(NU) The risk factors for heart disease are well known: smoking, high cholesterol, high blood pressure, not enough exercise and obesity. But here's one possibility that might be surprising: periodontal or gum disease.

"People normally think of periodontal or gum diseases in terms of their teeth and gums," said Dr. Robert J. Genco, professor of oral biology and microbiology, State University of New York at Buffalo. "But that thinking may have to be altered because gum disease is a serious infection that can release bacteria into the bloodstream and impact overall health."

Researchers spoke about the possible connection between gum disease and heart health at an American Medical Association and American Dental Association media briefing. They also discussed links between periodontal disease and other problems, including premature births and diabetes.

Genco explains that the level of evidence related to the relationship between periodontal disease and these systemic conditions varies. But such a relationship, he says, may offer hope for treating diabetes, heart disease, stroke, low birth weight and respiratory infections.

A healthy mouth may reduce the number of premature babies born and the resulting complications, according to Dr. Steven Offenbacher, professor of periodontics at the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry.

"Like other infections in a mother's body, the bacteria can set off an inflammatory reaction causing a preterm delivery," Offenbacher said.

Research also shows that diabetes can put people at risk for developing gum disease. Dr. Louis Rose, professor of surgery at Drexel University School of Medicine and clinical professor of periodontics at the University of Pennsylvania School of Dental Medicine, called periodontal disease "the sixth complication of diabetes."

Rose stressed that physicians and dentists need to work together to ensure their diabetic patients maintain both their oral and physical health.

"Thanks to research, physicians are much more proactive when it comes to their diabetic patients and their oral health," he said. "I find that now, more than ever, they're calling and referring their patients to me when there's even the slightest indication of periodontal inflammation."

"With more education and awareness about the link between oral and systemic health, the more likely the overall health of the patient will benefit," Rose said.

Dr. Moise Desvarieux, assistant professor in the department of epidemiology at Columbia University's Mailman School of Public Health in New York, said further research is required to determine if there is a direct connection between periodontal disease and heart disease. Therefore, he said, patients should also manage other risk factors, like smoking, diabetes and excess weight.

Exercising With Fibromyalgia

Q. My doctor recently diagnosed me with having fibromyalgia. He suggested several ways to help me manage my condition, with one of those being to exercise. However, my muscles often ache from my condition, and I am not sure how I can begin to exercise with my muscles already tired and painful. What type of exercises can I do without putting me in more pain?

A. Many people living with fibromyalgia use exercise as a way to help manage this condition. Since the intensity of the symptoms of fibromyalgia vary from person to person, it's important to find the amount and type of exercise that will work for you.

Fibromyalgia is a chronic condition resulting in fatigue and pain in the muscles, ligaments and tendons, as well as tender points (points on the body such as the neck, shoulders, back, arms and legs). About 1 in 50 Americans live with fibromyalgia, with the majority of these being women. The symptoms of fibromyalgia include fatigue, widespread pain, increased sensitivity, sleep disturbances, irritable bowel syndrome, facial pain, headaches, depression, mood changes and difficulty concentrating. These symptoms can be triggered by stress, weather, physical activity or even the time of day.

Exercise can help in the management of fibromyalgia. Although it may be painful, the more that exercise is repeated over time, the greater the possibility of a decrease in symptoms. The types of exercise recommended for people with fibromyalgia include walking, cycling and swimming/water aerobics.

Allow your body to be your guide when exercising, and also use that time to help relax and/or relieve stress. Over time, your body can adjust to your exercise routine and allow you to do more. Start slowly, and progress until you find an exercise routine that works for you.

Other techniques, such as stretching, relaxation exercise and exercises to help improve posture, can also be beneficial. Before beginning any exercise program, speak with your doctor and a fitness professional to determine the best exercises for you. If you have never exercised before, make sure to learn the proper techniques to remain safe.

Living a stress-free lifestyle, practicing positive eating habits and getting enough sleep are also part of the equation. Be sure to make the necessary changes to maintain as healthy a lifestyle as possible.

Always consult a physician before beginning an exercise program. If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

GETTING LONG IN THE TOOTH

The term "getting long in the tooth" refers to the fact that, as we age, the gums are susceptible to cavities and sensitivity to hot and cold temperatures. As a countermeasure, patients are advised to adopt scrupulous flossing and brushing (using a fluoride toothpaste) habits. These, along with professional cleanings, help prevent tooth-root cavities. The dentist may also decide that it may be beneficial to use over-the-counter rinses, stronger prescription fluoride toothpaste, or a semi-annual (professional) application of a topical fluoride. Patients who are bothered by tooth-root sensitivity should consider a toothpaste that is formulated to combat sensitivity.

The best way to prevent cavities and periodontal disease is by good tooth brushing and flossing techniques, performed daily. We'll use only the most advanced techniques and the highest quality materials. What we do for our patients' mouths is never less than we would want for our own. And when you feel and look good, you project a confident self-image. We want to make the most of your smile. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We think you will be delighted with the treatment and counsel you receive. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. If you suffer from chronic mouth dryness caused by various prescription medications or other health factors, you are at even greater risk for cavities.

Encouraging Start As Quincy Wins Opener

SOFTBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

For a team starting three freshmen and someone who's never played before, the Quincy High School softball squad got off to an encouraging start in Monday's season opener at Mitchell/McCoy Field.

The Presidents, whose game last Saturday against Holliston was postponed due to rain, pushed across three runs in the first inning en route to a 7-4 victory over Plymouth South (2-2).

"Plymouth South has won a couple of games already," said head coach Mike Sedar. "They beat Falmouth and Sandwich, two league wins, and they lost to Plymouth North, 7-0. They were better than they were last year. Their pitcher was better than last year.

"It wasn't bad. We played some good defense and we made some freshman errors. I think we'll be fine. We made a couple errors on the mound that we shouldn't make. We ran the bases real well. We didn't have any problems running. And the big guns in the middle hit."

Quincy, which traveled to Whitman-Hanson Wednesday, will host Plymouth North today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. at Mitchell/McCoy Field.

Freshman pitcher Katie Santon tossed a strong game in her first outing. She went the distance, allowing three earned runs on six hits while striking out four and, more importantly, walking none.

"She did a good job," Sedar said. "She had no walks. All we've asked her to do is to throw the ball and keep it down. If she keeps the ball down, we'll play defense."

In the first inning, senior tri-captain Leanna Lam beat out a bunt and sophomore Marybeth Torpey was hit by a pitch. After a double steal, senior tri-captain Kim Lebel (2-for-3) plated them with a triple. She scored on a sacrifice fly by senior tri-captain Courteney Hall.

The Panthers got a run back in the second but could've had more. With one out and a runner at third, Hall fielded a ball at shortstop and threw out the runner at first base. Torpey alertly threw to Lebel to nail the runner from third at the plate to end the inning.

The Presidents broke open the game with four runs in the third. Torpey lined a single off the third baseman and advanced to third on two groundouts.

Kyle (2-for-3) followed with an RBI single, freshman Alyssa Mullen (2-for-3) smashed her second double of the game down the left field line and sophomore Katie Conso was hit by a pitch to load the bases.

Junior Katie O'Neil, who never played softball before and struck out in her first at-bat, smacked a bases-clearing triple down the right field line to give the Presidents a 7-1 advantage.

"My little junior there who's never played a game of softball in her life hits a triple with the bases loaded," Sedar said. "It's great for her. She laced it. It turned out to be a big hit."

It ended up being the difference as Plymouth South chipped away with a pair of runs in the fourth inning and another in the fifth to make it 7-4. Santon didn't falter in the late innings, retiring six of the final seven batters to end the game.

Sedar also praised freshman left fielder Elisa Lam, Leanna's younger sister, who made a nice grab in the sixth inning.

"Little Lama in left made a great catch on that long fly ball," Sedar said. "She tracked it beautifully. She hasn't played at all. She's a freshman. I have a freshman second baseman, Mullen, who had a great day. And Santon pitched well."

"Overall it was nice day to come away with a win," he added. "I was happy with it. We'll see what happens. If we're 5-5 at midseason, I'll be happy. We'll get them in the second half."

Presidents On Short-End Of Five-Inning Game

BASEBALL

The Quincy High School baseball team managed to squeeze in just five innings of play last week to open the season.

Unfortunately, the Presidents found themselves trailing, 10-7, through five innings against Brighton at Adams Field last Friday and they picked up a loss when the game was called due to rain.

Last Wednesday's season opener against O'Bryant and last Saturday's game at King Philip Regional were postponed because of rain.

Quincy (0-1), which played at Plymouth South Monday and hosted Whitman-Hanson Wednesday, will head to Plymouth North today (Thursday) at 4 p.m.

Next week, it competes in the second annual Quincy-North Quincy Baseball Tournament Tuesday and Thursday at Adams Field with Milton and Archbishop Williams. The games begin at 10 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

"We played well, but it's too bad we couldn't get the rest of the game in because of the weather," said head coach Mike Draicchio. "We went down early and we kept fighting back. It's just unfortunate we didn't get a chance to finish. We hadn't lost to them since I've been coaching."

Brighton reached senior starting pitcher and co-captain Mike MacPherson for four runs in the first inning.

Quincy made it 4-2 but Brighton answered with a pair of runs. After Quincy cut the deficit to 6-4 in the third, Brighton extended its lead to 8-4 before the Presidents notched three runs in the fourth inning to make it 10-7.

MacPherson gave up five earned runs before junior Dan Myers relieved him with two outs in the third. Myers allowed one earned run the rest of the way.

Offensively, MacPherson went 2-for-3 with a triple, RBI and run scored and senior co-captain John Orlando also went 2-for-3 with a triple and two runs scored.

Senior Jon Pelletier went 2-for-2 with three RBI, junior John Alexander stroked an RBI double and junior Steve Connolly had a hit and run scored.

The North Quincy High School softball team opened its season at home yesterday (Wednesday, 4 p.m.) against Plymouth South at Mitchell/McCoy Field.

The Red Raiders will travel to Whitman-Hanson today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. Next week, they play at Winthrop Tuesday and at Madison Park Thursday, both games at 11 a.m.

TAKING SOME HARD KNOCKS

During the course of your travels, you are likely to have subjected your vehicle to a wide assortment of potholes, curbs, and highway debris. Any one of these has the potential to throw off your wheel alignment settings, which can lead to uneven tread wear, poor directional stability, and/or an off-center steering wheel. Even uneventful driving conditions can give rise to wear and tear in a vehicle's steering and suspension systems that will bring wheel alignment out of specifications. For this reason alone, have your vehicle's wheel alignment checked on an annual basis. By having all four wheels aligned properly, you can help ensure your vehicle's continued good handling, performance, and fuel efficiency.

Good handling, performance, and fuel efficiency rely on proper maintenance of your wheel alignment settings. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we understand the importance of your steering, and how much it matters to your safety. You can trust us with any repairs for your car. Call 781-843-1550 today, or bring your car to 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree to have your alignment checked. Open: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm.

HINT: When having your vehicle's wheels aligned, be sure the wheels are balanced as well.

Registration Underway For Quincy Senior Olympics

Registration for the 24th annual Quincy Senior Olympics is underway at Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St.

Sponsored by Beechwood and the City of Quincy, the Senior Olympics will be held May 15-22 with an awards night celebration May 24.

The Quincy Senior Olympics planning team recently met with the Mayor's Office to draft the Olympic calendar and it reports a full roster of events this year. It also extends a special invitation to seniors ages 55 and over, who have never participated, to "try this year."

A highlight of the opening ceremony is the torch lighting with Mayor William Phelan and the eldest Senior Olympics competitor.

Seven days of competition, at 11 sites throughout the city, includes the popular volleyball challenge between the Olympians and Mayor Phelan's team.

"This wonderful and unique senior games event was created and is sustained throughout Quincy's partnership commitment to senior fitness and health," said Sharron Beals, Beechwood executive director.

"The City of Quincy and Beechwood Community Life Center organized the Olympic games in 1982. The late Don Strong, Quincy Recreation Directory Barry Welch and former Mayor Frank McCauley masterminded the concept into reality."

Also, Beechwood hosts "Fitness Fun" each Friday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., with volunteer coaches helping seniors prepare for the games.

For more information, contact Maryann Mahony, coordinator of Beechwood's Senior Center, at 617-471-5712.

Child Safety Topic May 9 At Beechwood

"Keeping Your Child Safe," a pediatric injury prevention seminar, will be offered Tuesday, May 9, at 5:30 p.m. at Beechwood on the Bay. 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

The program is sponsored by the Floating Hospital for Children and the Tufts New England Medical Center Emergency Department and funded by the Cabot Fund and Fallon Ambulance.

It will deal with the most common causes of injury to children from birth up to 18 years of age; what, when and how to handle injuries; and an overview of basic first aid and emergency services.

Reservations are a must and may be made by stopping by the office or calling 617-471-5712.

Lady Presidents Travel Team Wins Basketball Crown

The Quincy Lady Presidents seventh-grade travel basketball team recently won the Old Colony League championship.

Coached by Tony Chiocchio, team members included Shelby Oliver, Kaleigh McKeon, Courtney Peters, Kori Sorensen, Erin Hockey, Sarah Anastasio, Courtney Hyman and Christina Gambon.

The Lady Presidents travel program for fifth-, sixth-, seventh- and eighth-grade teams started this year with the help of many parents and volunteer coaches.

The teams laced up its sneakers at the Lincoln Hancock Elementary School gymnasium every Friday night for practice and played home games Saturdays at the Vo-Tech gym or traveled to various locations.

Each team started off a bit shaky, but the coaches saw tremendous improvement from the players throughout the season. The program was not started to win championships, but to teach the girls the basic fundamentals of the game. It provides the youth of the city an opportunity to begin developing not only those fundamental skills, but the meaning of teamwork, respect and pride.

The Lady Presidents surpassed all of the little goals set this year. A league rule that all teams make the playoffs gave the girls a chance to advance even further. Two out of the four teams reached the semifinals and the seventh-graders brought home not only a division win, but an all conference championship.

Curry-ENC Softball Game Like Quincy High Reunion

There was a Quincy High School softball reunion last Friday afternoon when Eastern Nazarene College hosted Curry College at Mitchell/McCoy Field.

In the first game, Curry's Alysia DiMuzio (QHS 2005 graduate) and Diane Gilbody (2003) cruised to a 9-1 victory over ENC's Rachel and Rebekah Sorensen (2005). The second game was rained out.

All four players were teammates on the Presidents 2003 squad that shared the Atlantic Coast League championship and reached the quarterfinals of the south sectional tournament.

DiMuzio went 2-for-4 with a double and run scored and Gilbody, a center fielder, went 1-for-2 with an RBI double and a run scored.

Rebekah Sorensen pitched six innings and allowed nine hits and four walks but only three of the nine runs were earned as the Crusaders committed seven errors. She also scored ENC's lone run in the third inning.

Koch Club To Hold Baseball Registration April 24, April 26

Koch Club Youth Baseball will hold registration Monday, April 24, and Wednesday, April 26, at 6 p.m. at O'Neil Field, behind Atlantic Middle School on Hollis Ave., North Quincy.

Boys and girls ages 5 to 10 are eligible to register to participate. The season begins May 1 and ends June 28. All games are played at O'Neil Field Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 p.m. Cost for registration is $20 and each participant will receive a hat and T-shirt.

The program is dependent on volunteers and parents are encouraged to volunteer and assist with coaching and organizing the games for the youngsters. Games are informal and there is a greater emphasis on participation and instruction rather than competition. No tryouts are held.

The Koch Club was founded in 1948 by the late Richard J. Koch and has provided countless opportunities for youngsters to participate in various sports programs for pleasure. In addition, the Koch Club co-sponsors the city's annual Flag Day parade and participants are invited to march in the parade scheduled for Saturday, June 10.

For more information, contact Tom Koch at 617-471-7145.

First Easter Vigil At Community United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will celebrate Easter Vigil for the first time in its history Saturday at a 7:30 p.m. worship service.

"With the exception of the Episcopalians, very few Protestants have had the opportunity to experience the Easter Vigil," said the Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church. "I think this is really unfortunate. The vigil is one of the most ancient and certainly one of the most dramatic celebrations of the church year. It's my very favorite worship service."

People planning to attend the vigil should expect the unexpected. For example, those attending are asked to bring a flashlight and to wear comfortable walking shoes.

"I realize that a flashlight sounds like an odd thing to bring to a worship service, but, believe me, a flashlight is pretty essential — it's simply a modern version of the traditional candles," said the Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden.

"Quincy Community United Methodist Church has chosen to use flashlights for safety reasons. There will be some available in case anyone forgets. Comfortable shoes are also important, because if people choose to do so, some walking is involved. The vigil that will be used at Quincy Community is also designed to provide a non-walking option; both groups of people then join together for the major portion of the service."

Quincy Community United Methodist Church is located diagonally from the Wollaston T stop and is fully handicapped accessible. Each week a coffee hour follows worship. For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

The Garden Bug

Named dent-de-lion (French for "lion's tooth") for its jagged leaves, the dandelion was brought from Europe as food for honeybees. Its hardiness and pervasiveness gives it a bad reputation among gardeners, but many praise its flowers, leaves and roots for their culinary, nutritional and medicinal value.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) It isn't always easy for the rambunctious Aries to give a second thought to their often spur-of-the-moment choices. But aspects favor rechecking a decision before declaring it final.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Information emerges for the business-driven Bovine who feels ready to restart a stalled project. Be prepared to make adjustments as needed at any time during the process.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Part of you wants to complete plans for an upcoming event, while your other self wants to see how things develop first. Compromise by moving ahead with your plans while being open to change.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) An unexpected change in a relationship could open up a problem or could lead to a much-needed and too-long-delayed reassessment of a number of matters. The choice is yours to make.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Time for the Lion to total the plusses and minuses resulting from recent personal and/or professional decisions. See what worked, what didn't and why, and base your next big move on the results.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The clever Virgo can make persuasion work by presenting a case built on hard facts. Sentiment might touch the heart, but it's good, solid information that invariably wins the day.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You can usually win over the most stubborn skeptics on your own. But this time you can benefit from supporters who have been there, done that and are willing to speak up on your behalf.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You win admiration for your determination to do the right thing. Don't be distracted from that course, despite the offer of tempting alternatives that might suddenly turn up.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) While you still need to maintain control of a dominant situation, a new development emerges, making the task easier and the outcome potentially more rewarding.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) New factors might have a positive effect on a still-pending matter, but only if the information proves to be credible. Trusted colleagues might be able to offer needed advice.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) The week favors moderation, especially if a health problem is involved. Resist the impulse to do more than might be good for you at this time. You can catch up later.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You could feel more than a mite upset by someone or some people who might be creating problems for you. Find out why they won't change their ways. Their reasons might surprise you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You know how to inspire others to do their best by setting a persuasive example of your own.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It is Easter, the occasion for Christians to rejoice again in the celebration of the Resurrection. Easter is an occasion for a new beginning in our lives; an occasion for renewal of the spirit. That is why so many of the symbols of Easter reflect and emphasize the theme of renewal.

No matter the times, no matter the torments, Easter brings with it hope and promise of new life and bright days.

It comes garlanded in crocuses and hyacinths, its triumphal procession is attended by pink and white dogwood and yellow forsythia and flowering crab. Lambs are born and nibble the tender green grass of yet another spring. Birds that fled the blasts of winter return and flash red or blue from tree to tree. The sun that stood aloof dips down to color the gardener's face as he entrusts the good earth the seeds that will blossom into flowers and foods of varied hue.

Easter's message, like that of Christmas, is of good tidings and great joy. It speaks to the eternal abundance of life.

It is a hopeful holiday and we hope our readers will enjoy it to the fullest. . .

Changes In Medicaid Laws Topic April 27

Braintree Attorney Dagmar M. Pollex, a member of the Massachusetts Academy of Elder Law Attorneys, will present an update on the impact of recent major changes to the Medicaid laws in Massachusetts at Milton Hospital, Thursday, April 27 at 10 a.m. in the Nangeroni Conference Center.

Pollex will discuss ways families can prevent unexpected problems when a family member needs nursing home care and what families should know about their current planning options to protect assets and avoid expensive mistakes.

To register, call 781-535-6490.

On Feb. 8, President Bush signed legislation which dramatically changes the rules for long term care planning. As with any major legislative initiative, the full ramifications of these changes will not be known for several months. However, certain aspects of the law are clear at this time.

Pollex will address how these changes have changed the planning options available for many families. She will also talk about how these changes in the rules can pose a serious risk of hardship to those who are not aware of them.

Pollex has been practicing law in Massachusetts for over 26 years, and focuses on the areas of elder law and estate planning for individuals, families and businesses. She is a member of the National Network of Estate Planning Attorneys, WealthCounsel and the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys.

WILLIAM B. RICE Eventide Home, built in 1'936 with wings added in 1959, 1963 and 1994, will be torn down and replaced by a larger, more flexible structure on vacant land behind it.

Present Landmark To Be Demolished

New Rice Eventide Home To Be Bigger, Modernized

The William B. Rice Eventide Home, long a landmark among the graceful green estates on Adams Street, is about to become a larger, more modern facility with assisted living quarters as well as skilled nursing rooms.

"Eventide has a gracious, home-like tradition that we plan to preserve," said Joyce Haglund, the administrator.

"However, our building and operations need some major updating to ensure we can fulfill our charitable mission well into the future."

The major updating will consist of a completely new three-story building, constructed behind the 70-year-old existing one, which will be torn down and replaced by more green lawn.

The proposal will be discussed at a community meeting arranged by Ward 5 City Councillor Doug Gutro for Tuesday, April 25, at 7 p.m. in the Bernazzani School, 701 Furnace Brook Parkway.

Haglund has invited residents to the Home to review the plan and ask questions Saturday, April 9, from 9 to 11 a.m., Wednesday, May 3, from 6 to 8 p.m., and Thursday, May 4, from 6 to 8 p.m.

"The Home's volunteer board of directors has worked hard to create a thoughtful and attractive plan sensitive to our neighbors' concerns," said Haglund.

Plans for the new building call for 52 one-bedroom apartments with dens, four two-bedroom apartments, 16 one-bedroom apartments, and a 43-bed skilled nursing facility.

The present Home is a 65-bed nursing home.

Included in the plan are 64 parking spaces in a garage beneath the building and 25 outside surface spaces. The building will occupy about 112,000 square feet.

The start of construction, said Haglund, is at least a year away since it will probably take that long to collect all the permits and licenses from city agencies, including the Zoning Board of Appeals.

The William B. Rice Eventide Home was founded in 1924 with an endowment from a wealthy philanthropist and shoe factory owner.

Targets Young Girls With Graphic Notes

Police In All-Out Search For Writer Of Sex Threats

By TOM HENSHAW

It's critical enough to have Police Chief Robert Crowley himself out on patrol at 4 o'clock in the morning.

It's baffling enough to have the cops checking 300 Quincy subscribers to an obscure magazine.

And it's frightening enough to have families fear for their daughters' safety as they leave the house for school.

Someone is leaving notes threatening sexual assault written on pages torn from American Girl magazine and wrapped in girls' underwear on porches, mostly in the South Quincy area.

ROBERT CROWLEY

"We have two people of interest," said Crowley Tuesday morning. "We spoke to one yesterday and we'll talk to the other one today. We're patrolling the neighborhoods in unmarked cars.

The latest incident was reported Easter Sunday from Presidents Avenue, the home of two girls 8 and 10 years old, who attend the Lincoln Hancock School.

The note, left on an Easter card, mentions the Lincoln Hancock School and a third girl named Julie, whose last name Crowley declined to divulge. Julie's name appears in at least one other note.

"We checked with the Quincy public schools and the private schools in Quincy," said Crowley, "and there is no one by that name

THE USS SALEM recently hosted its seventh annual Easter Egg Hunt. More than 700 people attended and kids had a great time getting their faces painted, decorating hard boiled eggs, and playing games. The highlight of the day was the egg hunt. Onboard helping out were many volunteers from Broad Meadows and Quincy High School's Operation Day's Work after school program. Above, the volunteers with Event Coordinator Margaret McLean Laforest and USS Salem Executive Director Michael Condon (far left). ODW is an after-school activity that has students help out in their community and also around the world. ODW raises awareness relative to child labor and helps promote education in foreign countries. "The USS Salem is thankful for all the help provided by the Quincy Public School Students. This is the fifth year they have been involved with our event," said Margaret McLean Laforest, event coordinator.

Quincy Homestead Marks Landmark Designation

By MIKAELA SLANEY

The designation of the Quincy Homestead as a National Historical Landmark was celebrated Monday, Patriot's Day.

After a three-year process, the property received the designation last April, said Ethyl Hamann, President of the Society of The Colonial Dames, who supervised The Homestead.

"We celebrate the designation and the near completion of its exterior restoration," said Mary Robinson, Chairman of the Quincy Homestead Committee.

"For those of you who remember how sad this building looked last year, doesn't it look wonderful now?" said Hamann.

Hamann received a certificate of recognition at the event from Congressman William Delahunt for the Colonial Dames' effort in maintaining the Homestead, and establishing it as a historical landmark.

"What we have behind us is a reflection of what we do when we come together," said Delahunt.

"All of you have made our forebears proud. What you've accomplished is truly a patriotic act."

Built in 1686, it was home to four generations of Quincys, and the childhood home of Dorothy Quincy Hancock, wife of John Hancock. Enlarged and refined over three centuries, the mansion combines Colonial, Georgian, and Victorian design, said the Colonial Dames.

"People everywhere are still fascinated by our history. If they really wish to find out who we are as a country, they can come and visit Quincy and find out what we are all about," said Delahunt.

"What we're looking at, is a national treasure," said Patrick Flynn, Director of Urban Division of the Department of Conservation and Recreation. "This home is here, for the ages."

"I will be filing legislation to make this site part of the boundaries of Adams National Park and I'm hopeful," he said.

If the legislation goes through it should serve as extra protection for the homestead, he said.

John Quincy Jr., a descendant of the Quincy family, recounted the political and professional history behind his family line.

THREE YEARS in the making, the plaque designating the Quincy Homestead as a National Historic Landmark is finally installed on the house at the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road. The next step will be acceptance as part of the Adams National Historical Park.

JOHN QUINCY JR., descendant of the Colonial homestead owners, takes the microphone.

DOUG GUTRO, Ward 5 city councillor and president of the Council, has a few words.

CAROLINE KLEINATH, assistant superintendent, speaks for the Adams National Historical Park,

MARY ROBINSON, chairman of the Quincy Homestead Committee, delivers closing remarks.

"The Quincys are a family that defines what it means to be a patriot," said City Council President Douglas Gutro. It was appropriate that the celebration was held on Patriot's Day, he said.

Gutro said he had "fond recollections" of visiting the site as a student, and that learning about Quincy family history "inspired (him) to become a public servant."

Gutro said he hopes his two sons, one of whom he named Scott Quincy Gutro, "have the same opportunity to be inspired by the Quincy family and this historical landmark."

"The homes serve as reminders of these very important people in history. These homes provide the setting to tell a rich story," said Caroline Keinath, deputy superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park.

"It's my hope that we never lose sight of what we have," said Gutro.

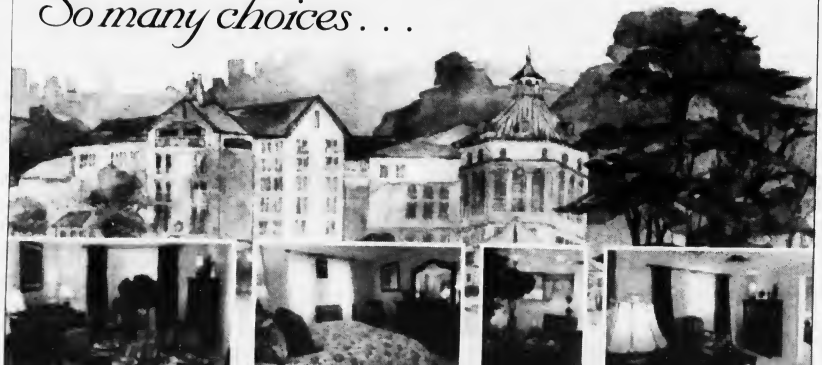
Chairmen include: Delahunt, Secretary Stephen R. Pritchard, Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, Commissioner Stephen H. Burrington, Department of Conservation and Recreation, Mayor William J. Phelan, and Marianne Peak, Superintendent of Adams National Historical Park.

Dedication Planning Committee members include: Co-Chairmen Mrs. John G. Gallan and Mr. A.J. Petras, Lt. Alexander Hall, Mrs. Charles M. Hamann, Mrs. Nicholas P. Holder, Mrs. Kenneth A. Johnston, Mrs. Charles F. Moore, Mrs. Edward T. Robinson.

Quincy Homestead Committee members include: Mrs. Edward T. Robinson, Chairman, Mrs. Walter Amory, Mrs. Douglas Danner, Mrs. George J. Evans Jr. Mrs. Frederick M. Fritz, Mrs. H. Hollis Hunnewell, Mrs. Thomas E. Melican, Mrs. Daniel S. Nokes, Mrs. Owen W. Robbins, Mrs. Marcia G. Synnott.

Special recognition was given to the efforts of the late Sen. Paul Harold.

The Homestead will host open tours of the house and gardens on the following Saturdays, from 1-4 p.m.: May 27, June 10, July 22, August 19 and Sept. 30.



For more information, call the Colonial Dames Headquarters at 617-742-3190, Monday through Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Fridays, 8:30 a.m. to noon.

City Conducting Lottery For $10,000 Energy Efficiency Pilot System

Mayor William Phelan is encouraging Quincy residents to submit their names into a lottery being conducted by the city, in conjunction with Climate Energy, for participation in a pilot energy efficiency program.

The city and Climate Energy will award one brand-new electricity generation system that will also produce a heat by-product to warm the home. Climate Energy will install and monitor the new system with no charge to the homeowner.

The new Combined Heat and Power unit (CHP) is powered by a small Honda engine, similar to a small car engine. It is powered by natural gas, produces electricity for the home, and utilizes the clean-burning natural gas emission to heat the home as needed.

Residents are encouraged to submit a letter of interest to William Repoff at the Quincy Department of Public Works, no later than Friday April 28. The address is 55 Sea St., Quincy MA 02169.

"We are thrilled that Climate Energy is providing this opportunity to a Quincy resident," said Phelan. "My administration is committed to pursuing renewable energy sources and energy efficiencies in city government, and this program allows residents to do the same in their own homes. We must find ways to become for energy-efficient and the new CHPs are the type of program that all of us can embrace."

Climate Energy was approached by the city after launching a similar program with the Braintree Electrical Light Department.

Long used in Japan, the new CHPs are now being introduced into the American market. They require a 4 foot by 8 foot space in the basement and make very little noise.

Applicants for the lottery must:

- Have natural gas into the home.
- Have an existing warm-air furnace.
- Have a dry, level basement area with a 4 foot by 8 foot area of available floor space.
- Have a high-speed broadband internet connection for remote monitoring of the system.

The system has a value of approximately $10,000 and will be installed and monitored by Climate Energy with no direct cost to the resident. The resident will still be responsible for payment of utility bills.

For more information call the Department of Public Works at 617-376-1962.

Senior MBTA Passes June 9

A representative of the MBTA will be at the Koch Park and Recreation Complex, One Merrymount Parkway, Sunday, June 9, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. to dispense reduced fare Ids under the senior pass program.

For an appointment, call the Council on Aging at 617-376-1506.

Local 103 Donates Code Books To CTE

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) Local 103 has donated 20 electrical codebooks to the City of Quincy's Center for Technical Education (CTE).

The new books will be utilized by the CTE's growing electrical program.

"On behalf of the city of Quincy, we are most appreciative of the generosity of the members of Local 103," said Mayor William Phelan. "It is my hope that the new books and our programs at the CTE will help create a new generation of educated and qualified members for organized labor."

Local 103 Business Manager James Fay presented the books to Principal Emily Labo, Mayor Phelan, and members of the CTE's electrical program.

The books have a value in excess of &1,500.

"It is through partnerships like this one that we continue to improve the educational opportunities of Quincy's young people," Phelan said. "I appreciate Local 103's understanding that these kids are our future and we must do all that we can to ensure that they are prepared and educated to take the next steps in life."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 14, 1818, Noah Webster, a Yale-educated lawyer with an avid interest in language and education, publishes his American Dictionary of the English Language. The dictionary, which took him more than two decades to complete, introduced more than 10,000 "Americanisms."

• On April 11, 1913, Ettore Bugatti first proposes designing the super car that would eventually emerge as the Bugatti Type 41 Royale. Called the "car of kings," Bugattis were huge, hand-crafted luxury cars that were affordable only for Europe's elite.

• On April 12, 1922, director Fatty Arbuckle is found not guilty in his third trial for the death of Virginia Rappe. Arbuckle had been accused of causing Rappe's death by crushing her during an alleged sexual assault at a raucous San Francisco party. His earlier trials ended in hung juries.

• On April 16, 1947, multi-millionaire and financier Bernard Baruch coins the term "Cold War" to describe relations between the United States and the Soviet Union. The phrase stuck, and for more than 40 years it was a mainstay in the language of American diplomacy.

• On April 10, 1953, the "House of Wax," starring Vincent Price, opens at New York's Paramount Theater. The first color three-dimensional picture, the 3-D movie had to be viewed through special glasses.

• On April 15, 1967, massive parades to protest Vietnam policy are held in New York. Police estimated that 100,000 to 125,000 people listened to speeches by Martin Luther King Jr., Stokely Carmichael and Dr. Benjamin Spock. Prior to the march, nearly 200 draft cards were burned by young men in Central Park.

• On April 13, 1990, the Soviet government officially accepts blame for the Katyn Massacre of World War II, when nearly 5,000 Polish military officers were murdered and buried in mass graves in the Katyn Forest. The admission was part of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's promise to be more candid concerning Soviet history.

When Quincy Dominated The Marathon

Kenya runners dominated Monday's 110th Boston Marathon, finishing first and second.

But do you know that some 87 years ago two Quincy runners — Carl Linder and William Wick — finished one-two, the first time ever for two from the very same town or city. They may still hold that distinction.

It was the 1919 marathon which Linder won with a time of 2:29:13 and Wick following right behind at 2:30:15.

Quincy also had two more respectable finishers that year: Henry Kanto who was 10th and Otto Alenius, 23rd.

All four were natives of Finland who had chosen Quincy to be their new world.

Linder died at age 77 in 1966 and Wick at 55 in 1944.

They would have been amazed if they could have seen Monday's marathon with all the hoopla that went with it, before and after. The thousands of runners, the huge crowds lining the 26.2 mile route from Hopkinton to Boston.

Linder ran in six other Boston Marathons between 1917 and 1924. He finished seventh in 1917; third (1920), fourth (1921), seventh (1922 and 1923 and fifth in 1924.

There was no marathon in 19018 because of America's entrance into World War I.

Linder reportedly was turned down by the Army for service in that war because of — flat feet.

But that didn't stop him from running seven marathons, winning one and finishing strong in the other six. And representing the U.S. in two Olympics.

Linder probably would have been most amazed by all the ceremonial fuss over this year's winner, Robert Cheruiyot.

It wasn't quite that way back in 1919.

Linder was congratulated at what would have been a mini-celebration compared to Monday's doings. And he was presented the winner's cup.

Then what?

Linder, as the story goes, walked to South Station and took the train to Quincy, and walked the rest of the way to his Buckley Street home.

He said his wife was somewhat surprised when he opened the door holding the cup.

Times sure have changed.

THE DESIGNATION OF the Quincy Homestead as a National Historic Landmark was celebrated this week — appropriately on Patriot's Day.

The beautiful Colonial dating back over three centuries to 1686 is most deserving of the honor. It was the home of the illustrious Quincy family — including Dorothy Quincy who married John Hancock – and where early patriots such as John Adams, Josiah Quincy and Hancock met planning the break away from British rule.

HAROLD

The late Paul Harold as city council president in 2001 proposed another designation for the homestead: the governor's mansion.

He noted that Massachusetts was one of only four states without a governor's mansion. The Quincy Homestead at 34 Butler Rd. would be ideal, he felt.

"It would need some renovation for year round living," he conceded. "But it would be most appropriate as a governor's mansion. And it's nice and handy to the State House."

In bad weather, the governor could always use the Red Line to get to work.

Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence, patriot and governor, was also a romantic in his younger years.

He wooed Dorothy Quincy at the homestead. And romantically proclaimed his love for her by scratching "You I Love And You Alone" on an upstairs window pane with his diamond ring. It is still visible today.

A governor's mansion? Still something to think about.

THOSE OF US who were fortunate to know John Noonan were deeply saddened by his sudden death April 13.

NOONAN

He touched so many lives as chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging for 20 years and his involvement in so many other civic, church and veterans activities.

John was Quincy's cheerleader. He loved the city. And would do anything for it.

Fr. Richard Cannon, pastor of St. John's Church where John was one of the first Eucharistic ministers and editor of the parish newspaper, said at his funeral Mass Tuesday: "The true story of John would be told if all of us who knew him could open up our hearts."

John had his share of awards and honors during his lifetime. And one more is coming.

Sharron Beals, executive director of the Beechwood Community Life Center, says this year's Senior Olympics May 15-24 will be dedicated in his honor.

John had participated in the Olympics for some 24 years. And at age 86, the day before he died, he signed up for this year's Olympics.

Senate Okays Bill To Ban Gift Certificate, Card Fees

Legislation prohibiting the collection of fees for gift certificates and gift cards that would reduce their value has passed the State Senate with the support of more than 80 House and Senate sponsors.

"The legislation clarifies our existing gift certificate status," said Sen. Michael Morrissey.

"It would strengthen the consumer protection laws on gift certificates and prevent certain businesses from trying to circumvent a gift certificate holder's right to redeem the cards for the full, value of the original purchase price."

Morrissey is chairman of the Joint Committee on Consumer Protection and Professional Licensure where the gift certificate legislation originated.

The legislation would prohibit any administrative fees after the initial sale, including service fees and tips, that would reduce the original value of the certificate.

"Some gift cards charge administration fees and even fees of $7.50 or more to renew it after one year that many holders are not even aware of," said Morrissey.

"We discovered that certain restaurants are reducing the value of a gift certificate or gift card by requiring a fixed percentage gratuity be taken out first, thereby denying the user its full value.

"For example, you have a $50 gift certificate and you go to a restaurant and buy $50 of food with the intention of paying a gratuity separately. In some restaurant, they will require a gratuity of 20 per cent to be used on the gift certificate thereby reducing its value in this example to $40.

Friendly Visitors Sought At COA

The Quincy Council on Aging is seeking volunteers to call on the elderly who live alone and would welcome a friendly visitor.

The COA is also seeking seniors who live alone and would like a friendly visit themselves.

Call the COA at 617-376-1508 and ask to speak with the friendly visitor coordinator.

The Council is mandated by law to do background checks on all volunteers.

He's Not Enthused About A 90,000 Population

I'm afraid I don't share Joe Shea's enthusiasm to see the city top the 90,000 mark.

Whatever slight gains in federal funding will hardly be worth it. More people means more noise, more traffic, more demand for city services, more dogs barking, more debris. There's no magic in more.

We from the last century remember when California was hell-bent to have more people than New York. They won the contest, and look at the state of that state now.

If we want to celebrate something, our efforts should go toward a decrease in population, maybe to something lucky like 77,777.

Urges Residents To Take Part In Walk For Hunger

On Sunday, May 7, more than 40,000 caring individuals will participate in the Walk for Hunger, beginning and ending at Boston Common.

I would like to urge South Shore residents to take part in this wonderful Massachusetts tradition that helps families from Quincy, Weymouth and beyond who are facing hunger. There is a disturbing level of hunger currently in the Commonwealth, and we all can do something to alleviate that need!

With poverty still plaguing Massachusetts, many families are seeing their monthly incomes stretched to the limits. At Father Bill's Place, many of the people seeking assistance are working, but their wages are just too low to cover all of their expenses. Families are forced to choose between buying food and paying their rent, utility and medical bills. As the cost of living continues to rise, more and more families are turning to emergency programs for assistance. Our hungry neighbors need help more than ever.

The funding from the Walk for Hunger enables us at Father Bill's Place to provide nourishing food to those in need. Your participation, either by walking or sponsoring a walker, will make an enormous difference in the lives of hungry people in our own community.

For more information, please call Project Bread at 617-723-5000 or visit www.projectbread.org. I hope to see you at the walk!

Andrew Card For President

An article in the Boston Globe stated that Andrew Card should not return to Massachusetts to run for Governor. The article is right, but not because is not qualified, rather, because he is overqualified.

Yes, indeed he is "a fine hardworking" fellow, "discreet and loyal to his boss." But, he is also intelligent, knowledgeable, and at the same time aristocratic and democratic, and exceptionally qualified.

For five long years, he had listened to President George W. Bush and to all his advisors, and thus, for all practical purposes, acquired a Ph.D. degree in Presidential politics. Every U.S. President needs a full year or so on the job training to understand his job. Andrew Card has already had five years on the job training for the Presidency. For Andrew Card to run for Governor now would be a demotion after he served along-side of the President of the United States, in Washington, D.C. There are only two other Americans with similar experience: Pat Buchanan and General Colin Powell. I would like to hope that the voice of Andrew Card, in Presidential deliberations, was a voice of peace, calm and prudence that was silenced by other voices.

Massachusetts Governor Mitt Romney, Senator John D. Rockefeller IV, Senator Edward M Kennedy and College President Dr. John Silber are in a class of their own: the best of the very best.

If I were an American king, I would have to flip a coin in order to decide whom of the above to ask to form an American Government. And, if all of them were to compete for the Presidency at the same time, I would have to flip a coin again to decide for whom to vote. For now, my political sign would read: "Andrew Card for President."

Creedon Warns Of Sports, Other Cuts If Budget Slashed

Week of April 17
1980
26 Years Ago

By FRANK McCAULEY

School Supt. Lawrence Creedon warned that if the City Council slashed the school budget, cuts would have to be made from school extracurricular activities including sports programs.

Creedon said the school system's main priority would be to preserve the primary mission of education from kindergarten to grade 12.

Traditionally, the school budget has been protected from City Council action by state law. Mayor Arthur Tobin, also chairman of the School Committee, noted, however, "that the principle of fiscal autonomy applies to only that portion of the budget that is under the 4 percent tax cap." School Committee members feel the entire budget is immune from cuts by the council.

Blizzard Of '78 Ocean Tragedy Topic At Historical Society

Author Michael Tougias will present an illustrated talk draw from his current book Ten Hours Until Dawn, based on actual events from the Blizzard of '78, at the Quincy Historical Society meeting, Thursday, April 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

During the height of the '78 blizzard, the pilot boat Can Do, with five men onboard, set out from Gloucester to assist a lost Coast Guard boat and an oil tanker that was in a Mayday situation. Tougias will tell the story of the heroic and tragic action of that night when the seas were producing waves of 40 feet and the wind was reaching 100 miles per hour.

This is one of the few ocean tragedies where there is a detailed record of exactly what happened due to the existence of audio recordings of the radio messages between the Coast Guard and Can Do. Tougias' presentation will feature a portion from those tapes. Using slides of the boats, the men involved, and photos of the storm, Tougias will take the viewer through this night. With the aid of maps he will let the audience see the progression and location of these boats off the Massachusetts coast, and explain what happened and why.

Tougias is the author of 15 books. Ten Hours Until Dawn, which has appeared on the Boston Globe bestseller list, has been compared favorably to A Perfect Storm and has been praised by numerous critics, including National Book Award winner Nathaniel Philbrick. Tougias will be available to sign copies of his book, which will be on sale, following the talk. The public is invited. There is no charge for admission.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Stuffed Scallop, Mushroom Shells

Whenever we have guests for dinner, I usually do not try something new. I would rather use my tried and true recipes—but last weekend was an exeption. I decided to make an appetizer - stuffed scallops served in 4 - inch round shells.

And with my brothers John and Phil with their wives, Anita and Teresa as our guests, I was nervous about how they would come out, as I always want their approval.

For these stuffed shells, I used the small bay scallops and made a stuffing which included crackers, bread crumbs, corn flake crumbs. The following recipe filled six large shells and eight small shells.

SCALLOP, MUSHROOM STUFFING oil and butter for satueing
1/2 pound bay scallops
1 pound mushrooms (chopped)
juice of a lemon
1 tablespoon fresh parsley (minced)
1 small onion (chopped)
1 stalk celery (chopped finely) either Ritz crackers or a favorite cracker (equal about 1/2 cup)
1/2 cup seasoned bread crumbs
1/2 cup corn flake crumbs
1/4 cup cooking sherry (optional) shredded cheese for topping
salt and pepper to taste

In a frying pan and in the hot oil and butter or margarine, sauté the celery, onion, fresh parsley and mushrooms. Add the juice of the lemon, salt and pepper and the sherry .Add the scallops and blend. Turn off the jet and add the cracker crumbs, bread crumbs and corn flake crumbs slowly turning until well mixed. Add a little water it is too dry. Spray each shell with a cooking spray and fill .

I sprinkled a little olive oil on top of each and then a small amount of shredded cheddar.

Bake in a 400 degree oven until bubbly.

Serve hot...I breathed a sigh of relief as my family said they loved them!

P.S. Chopped clams can be used equally delicious.

New Rice Eventide Home To Be Bigger, Modernized

The present building was built in 1936.

Haglund noted that since then the housing and health care needs of the elderly have changed dramatically and so have retirement choices and the economics of providing services.

"Integrating a new nursing home (with) congregate housing will provide a more attractive retirement setting while spreading certain fixed overhead costs over a large population base," she said.

"This will enable the Rice Eventide Home to again more fully serve its core mission, to offer a broader range of enhanced services to its community and to insure the survival over the long term."

The existing building, she said, while soundly constructed, does not lend itself to modern remodeling.

The narrow width of each wing forces small rooms and narrow corridors and the configuration of the building forces the Home to operate three distinct nursing units, she said.

"It is not feasible to correct these serious flaws without displacing all existing residents and staff," Haglund said

Under the new plan, current residents will remain in the Home while the new building is under construction and transferred when it is finished.

"As you know," said Haglund in a letter to Gutro, "Rice Eventide is the only not-for-profit community nursing home in this area and has operated at our present site on Adams Street for 80 years.

"We very much hope to continue our charitable mission of providing quality housing, nursing care and supportive services to elders from all walks of life at this same location."

12 Tenants Displaced In West Quincy Fire

An overhead light fixture caused a fire early Monday morning at a West Quincy apartment house, leaving about 12 tenants homeless, fire officials said.

The fire to the four-family house at 150 Brook Road caused an estimated $200,000 in damage.

One firefighter sustained minor injuries, fire officials said. They don't consider the fire to be suspicious.

registered."

Physical evidence has been sent to the State Police crime lab in Boston for DNA testing and fingerprinting and the FBI has been enlisted to work up a profile of the suspect.

"American Girl is not carried on many news stands," said Crowley. "It's usually sold by subscription. There are 300 subscribers in Quincy. We plan to talk to them all."

The contents of the magazine are directed toward readers in the pre-teen ages.

The first note, wrapped in girls' panties and containing "graphic sexual threats against young girls" was found Feb. 5 on the porch of a rooming house on Mechanic Street in Quincy Center.

The second turned up a day later outside a home on Endicott Street. This one mentioned Julie for the first time. "A young girl lived in the house," said Crowley, "but her name was not Julie."

The author of the notes took the next two months off only to show up again on April 5 with a note describing graphic sex acts on Franklin Street outside the home of a young girl.

The on April 14, a man returning to his home on Bradford Street at 1:30 a.m. found the now familiar note on the page torn from American Girl wrapped in underwear on his porch.

The Bradford Street note spoke of an attack that would happen on Easter Sunday, but nothing did.

ON HAND FOR Worcester Polytechnic Institute's recent presentation on the "Lead The Way" project at Quincy High School were (from left): guidance counselors Paulette D'Oyley, Mark Connerty and Chik Ching Law; Quincy High School Principal Frank Santoro; Deborah DeCristofaro, QHS Guidance Department director; Dr. Martha Cyr, WPI Director; WPI Program Manager Bonniejean Boettcher; Emily Lebo, director of Occupational Education; guidance counselors Diane Merrill, Paula McGready and Sheri Eldridge; Gina Scanlon, School to Career coordinator; and guidance counselor Bill Reardon.

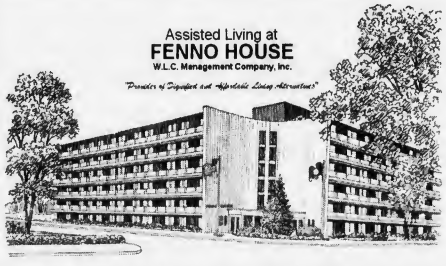
At Quincy High School

Worcester Polytechnic Institute Presents 'Lead The Way' Project

Worcester Polytechnic Institute's Dr. Martha Cyr, director, and Bonniejean Boettcher, program manager, of K-12 Outreach for Project Lead the Way program, recently presented a unique opportunity for a partnership to Quincy High School's Guidance Department headed by Deborah DeCristofaro; Frank Santoro, Q.H.S. principal; Emily Lebo, director of Occupational Education and Gina Scanlon, School to Career coordinator.

Though Quincy High has been offering the PLTW's pre-engineering curriculum for several years now, WPI just joined as a partner.

Those involved in the partnership noted there are many benefits, including:



• A summer institute hosted by WPI that certifies QHS teachers in engineering curriculum.

• Grades 10-12 students who elect this technical major are awarded college credits upon successful completion of their PLTW courses at QHS and achieve a passing exam score.

• The curriculum enhances advanced problem solving and teamwork skills that benefit the students in their college pursuits.

As Dr. Cyr and Boettcher pointed out, the engineering career pathway is quite lucrative and rewarding, but the students who take PLTW excel in college, no matter what their chosen major, high above the national average.

Quincy College will present the second annual Quincy Health & Wellness Expo, Thursday, April 27 in the Atrium of President's Place in Quincy Center.

The 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. event is co-sponsored by The Quincy Sun Lincoln Property.

The goal of the fair is to promote physical and mental health for people of all ages and bring various community-based organizations together in order to collaborate on effective ways to improve the health and wellness of Quincy residents.

Which Of These Costly Home Seller Mistakes Will You Make When You Sell Your Home?

Boston South Shore – A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most home owners make when selling their home and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of home sellers don't get what they want for their home and become disillusioned and – worse – financially disadvantaged when they put their home on the market. As this report uncovers, most home sellers make 7 deadly mistakes that cost them literally thousands of dollars.

The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and for Top Dollar."

Repairing Cracks in Siding

Q: I was looking at the door frames outside my house and saw a lot of small cracks at the corners of the frames. Should I be concerned? Can I repair these myself? — Tom H., Manchester, N.H.

A. Most small cracks are nothing to be concerned about. The exterior of a house goes through a lot of changes in a year due to weather, heat, cold, rain, ice, snow and debris strikes. Building materials swell and shrink with these extremes, and over time they will begin to show a bit of wear and tear.

However, even though no major damage is apparent, patching small cracks, gaps and holes in frames, siding and masonry as soon as possible (or in spring and fall) will keep them from becoming worrying issues. Slightly larger gaps can become entry points for insects and rodents. And addressing these small issues will keep you attuned to the overall health of the house, preventing or catching potentially big issues before expensive damage is done.

The most common areas for cracks and gaps to appear are between window or door frames; at the corners of the house; between pieces of siding or between the siding and the foundation masonry; around vents, skylights and plumbing or electrical fixtures; and around chimneys and roof flashing. Go around the entire house and note problem spots, probing suspect areas with a screwdriver to see if material is easily dislodged.

Fill the small cracks in the frame corners with acrylic latex caulk, a good all-around material that bonds well, lasts a long time and can be painted over. Smooth it out flush and allow it to dry before painting.

Cracks or gaps in masonry should be patched with mortar. Clean out all loose debris, wet the area, mix up the mortar and trowel it on, feathering out the edges. If possible, keep the patched area moist for up to two days to ensure that the mortar sets properly.

Paint Like The Pros For Curb Appeal That Lasts

(NAPS) There's nothing like a fresh coat of paint to give the outside of your home real curb appeal. It's a big job, but with the right tools and a few tips from the pros, a paint job can look beautiful for years.

Professional painters know that one coat of primer and one coat of paint will give you a better, longer-lasting paint job than two coats of paint. That's why they prime first, then paint. Here's why:]

• Primers proved the perfect foundation for paint. Paint is formulated for color and durability. Primers are formulated to provide the ideal base for paint. High-quality primers, like Bulls Eye 1-2-3®, are rich in resin so they adhere to surfaces much better than paint alone. And unlike paint, they stick to hard-to-paint surfaces like vinyl siding so you can get great results. They're also formulated to seal porous surfaces like brick, concrete, masonry and new wood, so you use less paint and get a more even color and sheen.

• Primers block stains. Wood, like cedar and redwood, has a high tannin content that can bleed right through ordinary paint. Graffiti, mildew and other stains can also bleed through if you don't prime first. Stain-blocking primers are specifically formulated to block stains permanently and completely so they won't ruin your new paint job. Stain-blocking primers, like Bulls Eye 1-2-3, are also formulated to prevent rust formation on the primer film, so they're great for painting railings and other metal surfaces.

• Primers make your colors look better. They hide previous colors, even dark reds and blues, and prevent them from showing through new paint. And because they create a sealed, stain-free surface, primers make paint colors look more vibrant and beautiful

Tips from the pros: If you tint your primer toward the color of your paint, it's likely you'll use less paint.

• Primers prevent common paint problems. High quality water-base primers, like Bulls Eye 1-2-3, dry to a flexible film that prevents common paint problems like cracking, peeling and blistering. Your paint job will be more durable, and last much longer.

Ways To Turn Clutter Into Cash

(NAPS) Millions of homeowners discover that they have a lot of house clutter, either when they're getting ready to move, or at the start of spring cleaning.

In the past, clearing out homes resulted in low-revenue garage sales and multiple trips to the consignment store. But today, the latest trend in home organization is to clear out and cash in by dropping off unwanted items at eBay drop-off stores.

Organizational expert Peter Walsh, from TLC's "Clean Sweep," confirms the trend, "eBay drop-off stores like iSold It are really the hot new trend in home organization. For occasions such as that yearly cleaning, they provide an easy way to get that clutter out of your house and earn some extra cash."

According to recent PEW Internet and American Life Project survey, only 17 percent of online American adults have used the Internet to sell items. For the other 83 percent, eBay drop-off stores professionally photograph the item, write descriptive copy, list it online, collect payment and then pack and ship the item. Once the transaction is complete, the seller receives a check in the mail. For many drop-off stores there are no up-front charges; instead, commission is charged once the item sells.

Here's a typical reaction from a customer when dropping off items. "I was determined to clean out my garage. I had old car parts, a vintage train set, you name it," said Bernie Dodyk, Novi, Michigan customer. "I took the whole lot to a drop-off store and made over &5,000. Now I can park my car in the garage again."

Items that sell well on eBay:

• In the garage: Vehicle parts, sports equipment, and power tools.

• In the living room: Decorative collectibles, audio/video equipment, cameras and video recorders, musical instruments.

• In the bedroom and closets: Designer shoes, watches, jewelry.

• In the kitchen: Crystal, sterling silver, high-end cookware and appliances.

Spring Clean Kitchen Mess Without Stress

(NAPS) As a notorious family gathering place, kitchens often become cluttered with everything from bills and report cards to shopping lists and fridge magnets. With the arrival of spring, it's time to say goodbye to the clutter and Tupperware has some simple solutions to help in the task.

Compress the Mess: If there is just not enough space in the kitchen, then it's time to toss all unnecessary items. Remove objects from kitchen counters that are not essential for everyday cooking (blenders, mixers, juicers, etc.). This will make the room look spacious and clean and will give extra room to prepare daily meals.

Pantry Antics: Before taking a trip to the grocery store, take a good look in the food pantry. If in doubt, throw it out! It's safe to assume that the expensive jar of Spanish olives sitting on the shelf for the last five years will never be used and the cans in the back are only useful for gathering dust. If food is stored for too long, and in the wrong condition, the freshness, quality and taste will suffer. Tupperware's Modular Mates® containers are considered ideal for organizing cabinets and offer a solution for storing dry foods such as pasta, cereal, beans, rice and sugar.

Fridge Feng Shui: If items in the fridge are preventing the door from closing easily, it's time to take notice. A bonus to cleaning out the fridge is that when racks are sparkling and items are organized, it's easier to find everything.

Kitchen Crackdown: If prone to experiencing pangs of distress at the thought of decluttering a kitchen, stick to Tupperware's one simple rule: "Clean as you go." Sending 15 minutes a day clearing countertops and discarding leftovers will create a stress-free environment and help to keep a kitchen running smoothly.

Tupperware has many useful products to help reorganize a kitchen.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Cigarettes And Fatal House, Apartment Fires

I read of a recent incident where lives were lost in an apartment fire.

It reminded me that I've wanted to write on the following subject for some time now, when I will occasionally hear of fire fatalities, which could have possibly been avoided.

There is a common scenario related to fire statistics, which typically causes 33 percent of residential fire deaths. That being, carelessly disposing of lighted tobacco products igniting upholstered furniture, mattresses, or bedding. These incidents typically occur during late evening or early morning hours as did this recent incident I read about.

This is how it typically occurs: An occupant will discover a small fire in a couch or mattress. Their reaction is to remove it form the building. They take it upon themselves to remove the item as it remains on fire or after they attempt extinguishment. Here's the problem.

It can be difficult enough under normal circumstances to remove some furniture down a stairwell or out a door. In these fire instances, maneuvering such furniture or mattresses can be even more complicated by panic and untenable conditions, including smoke and heat.

As someone attempts to remove the furniture, a stairwell or open door can facilitate air movement over a smoldering combustible surface. Particularly if the burning surface is now somewhat vertical, the added air reignites smoldering materials or feeds an existing fire condition.

The situation quickly gets out of hand while exit access is now blocked and occupants are driven back into the building by increased smoke, heat and fire. If there is a fire in a building, going back into it isn't the option of choice unless you are properly equipped and trained to do so.

Ever since my father first told me of these incidents, I've never been able to forget them. The deaths seem avoidable. To avoid the reignition of a mattress or upholstered furniture, firefighters will remove a burnt item from a building only after it has been extinguished and only while it is totally wrapped within a salvage cover. A salvage cover is a non-flammable tarpaulin which is wrapped around the item to eliminate air movement over the mattress surface so that there can be no chance of reignition while the item is removed. The item can then be further overhauled, if necessary, in the safety of the outdoors.

If you can't safely extinguish a very small fire at its very earliest stage, leave the building Do not place yourself or others in harms way. Notify others while you leave, and notify the fire department as soon as possible. The fire department is prepared to address these emergencies while we prefer to do so knowing occupants have safely evacuated the building. Be safe!

A Job Well Done

On Friday, March 31, at approximately 8 p.m., Officers Dennis Keenan and James Parisi were conducting one of many "frequent checks" of Kincaide Park and the basketball courts behind Sterling Middle School.

LT. DAN MINTON

The checks were and are still being conducted at the request of Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis, due to public drinking violations and disorderly behavior.

The officers emerged from their cruiser on Roberts Street and heard yelling behind the tennis courts of Kincaide Park. The officers quietly approached a male party sitting on a wall drinking from a bottle of Smirnoff Ice (an alcoholic beverage). The officers took possession of the bottle as both evidence and to remove a potential weapon.

Officer Keenan inquired as to what the man was doing in the park and he replied, "I don't appreciate you stealing my (expletive) beer!" He also had one full bottle and one three-quarters empty.

The suspect, a 28-year-old South Boston resident, was placed under arrest under the city ordinance violation of "Possession of an Open Container of Alcohol."

Due to past problems in this area and the weather improving, alcohol violations and unruly, disruptive behavior violations will be strictly enforced in a joint effort by the patrol police, community policing and special operations unit.

"Frequent checks" are made by the area police officers to ensure that problems at a specific location cease or are greatly reduced. Areas that are determined to be in need of "frequent checks" are often influenced by the amount of calls and time spent there by the police department.

The checks can also be requested by a resident or business owner who is experiencing similar "quality of life" problems. "Frequent checks" by the police often are for calls of youths drinking, a neighbor disrupting the community or speeding cars, but not limited to these types of calls.

Quincy Splits Pair, Hosts Stoughton Today

SOFTBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy High School softball team split a pair of games last week against top teams in the Atlantic Coast League.

If the Presidents continue to play like they did in last Thursday's 4-3 home victory over Plymouth North in 10 innings, head coach Mike Sedar said he expects them to accomplish a lot.

But he also warned there will be games like last Wednesday's 7-4 setback at Whitman-Hanson.

"We're playing well," Sedar said. "We're gong to have games like the Whitman-Hanson one. I expect that. But if we keep playing like we did against Plymouth North we'll do some damage."

Quincy (2-1), which played at Malden Tuesday, will host Stoughton today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at Mitchell/McCoy Field.

In the Plymouth North game, the Presidents grabbed a 2-0 lead in the third inning. Senior tri-captain Leanna Lam reached on a bunt single and senior tri-captain Courteney Hall singled with two outs. Junior Brighid Kyle (4-for-5) plated them with a double.

They extended their lead to 3-1 in the sixth inning when Kyle doubled and scored on sophomore Katie Conso's double.

The Blue Eagles managed to tie the game in the top of the seventh to send the game into extra innings. Sophomore pitcher Katie Santon tossed the first seven frames, allowing just five hits and a walk.

Senior Theresa McConicki pitched three scoreless innings of relief. Plymouth North loaded the bases against her with one out in the ninth inning, but she recorded a strikeout and pop-up to escape the jam.

In the bottom of the 10th, Kyle drilled a triple that one-hopped the fence in right-center field, scoring Hall, who reached first on an error, with the game-winning run.

Sophomores Marybeth Torpey and Katie Conso each went 2-for-4 and junior Katie O'Neil had a single. Hall played a strong defensive game at shortstop.

"Plymouth North is a good ball club," Sedar said. "I think they're better than Whitman-Hanson. They have unbelievable hitters. Their catcher, Ashley Garvey, is their best player. We pitched around her all day long."

"We ran the bases well and our defense was phenomenal," he added. "It's a good win for us. We beat Whitman-Hanson last year, 1-0, in the bottom of the eighth and that got us going for the rest of the season. Hopefully this will lead to some more wins."

In the Whitman-Hanson game, McConicki had a solid outing but the Presidents couldn't overcome their handful of defensive miscues. The Panthers scored three runs in the first inning and never looked back.

"We didn't play very well," Sedar said. "We had a bunch of miscues in the outfield. I expect that with the young kids out there. McConicki pitched a great game. It wasn't her fault. We got nine hits off Lisa de la Campa and that's a lot off her. I think we're a better team than them by far. They can be had this year. They already have two losses."

Sacred Heart Sixth Grade Boys Win League Title

BASKETBALL

Quincy's Sacred Heart sixth-grade boys' basketball team recently capped off an outstanding season by winning its first Patriot League championship.

Quincy has a longtime affiliation with the Patriot League, which is comprised of 12 teams from the South Shore.

Quincy finished the regular season with a 16-2 record, losing to Whitman and Abington. It led the league in scoring, averaging nearly 45 points per game, and finished second in defense, allowing 25 ppg.

In the playoffs, Quincy opened with a 25-point rout of Pembroke and avenged the loss to Whitman with a 31-17 victory in the semifinals. That set the stage for a showdown against powerhouse Abington (17-1 regular season) for the championship.

Trailing, 9-0, to start the game, Quincy kept its poise and exploded with a 16-2 run for a 16-11 halftime lead. In the second half, Abington scored the first two baskets before Quincy caught fire with a 20-4 spurt.

Abington stormed back to pull within two points with 1:30 remaining. But Quincy again rose to the occasion by making clutch plays and free throws for a 41-38 triumph and the league crown.

Quincy concluded its season by participating in the Sacred Heart April Fools Tournament, which draws teams from as far away as New York. Quincy defeated South Boston, 34-32, to capture the title.

Quincy had a balanced team. Leading rebounders were Joe Brown, Sean O'Callaghan, Paul Cunniff and Conor Clifford. Tim Liuzzo, Matt Costa, Pat Gould and Dan Gould led the squad in scoring. Ryan Evans, Terrance Rooney and Chris Keenan provided solid outside shooting.

The coaches and players thanked all of the families of the Sacred Heart program that supported the team during the season.

Koch Club Youth Baseball Registration

Koch Club Youth Baseball will hold registration Monday, April 24, and Wednesday, April 26, at 6 p.m. at O'Neil Field, behind Atlantic Middle School on Hollis Ave., North Quincy.

Boys and girls ages 5 to 10 are eligible to register to participate. The season begins May 1 and ends June 28. All games are played at O'Neil Field Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 p.m. Cost for registration is $20 and each participant will receive a hat and T-shirt.

The program is dependent on volunteers and parents are encouraged to volunteer and assist with coaching and organizing the games for the youngsters. Games are informal and there is a greater emphasis on participation and instruction rather than competition. No tryouts are held.

The Koch Club was founded in 1948 by the late Richard J. Koch and has provided countless opportunities for youngsters to participate in various sports programs for pleasure. In addition, the Koch Club co-sponsors the city's annual Flag Day parade and participants are invited to march in the parade scheduled for Saturday, June 10.

You Auto Know

FROM RAGTOPS TO RICHES

The first automobiles were all open to the air. In fact, it was not until 1925 that the sale of closed cars exceeded open ones. Once drivers became accustomed to the draft-free, secure feeling of a closed cabin, however, the sales of convertibles dropped precipitously. Convertibles lost market share, but they never fully lost their appeal. Not only were they perceived to be more adventurous, sporty, and sexy, convertibles were, and continue to be, more valuable as collectibles. Still, convertibles hit a major stumbling block during the 1970s as moon/sun roofs and the oil crisis conspired to drive convertibles from domestic production. The good news, of course, is that convertibles are back with a vengeance, spearheaded by folding hardtops.

As convertibles resurge in popularity the consumer finds themselves with many more choices. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we value the consumer, and try our hardest to satisfy our valued customers. We care. At 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, we are professionals, who can perform maintenance on your automobile. We guarantee your satisfaction. If you have questions regarding convertibles, or any other models, please call 781-843-1550 right away. We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: The first powertop convertible was introduced in 1939.

Presidents Look For First Win In Tournament

BASEBALL

By CHRIS POISSON

Wins have been hard to come by for the Quincy High School baseball team through the first two weeks of the season.

The Presidents (0-5) dropped all four games last week, losing 3-1 at Plymouth South Monday, 12-2 against Whitman-Hanson Wednesday, 12-7 at Plymouth North Thursday and 12-4 at King Philip Regional Saturday.

"To be honest I feel we've done some good things," said head coach Mike Draicchio. "Defensively we've played pretty well and the hitting is starting to come around. It's tough losing the type of pitching we had the last three years. We've been struggling a bit and we're hoping to bounce back."

Quincy would like to rebound this week in the second annual Quincy-North Quincy High School Tournament at Adams Field, which it won last season with a victory over Milton in the championship.

The Presidents played Milton Tuesday in the first round while North Quincy faced Archbishop Williams. The consolation game will be today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. followed by the championship at 12:30 p.m. They will play O'Bryant tomorrow (Friday) at noon at Adams Field in a make-up game.

"This is a very big week for us; we're the defending champs of the tournament," Draicchio said. "I still have faith in what we're doing. We can't get down and we have to keep working hard. I don't think they would be here every day working hard if they didn't want to put the time in. It's frustrating for me and for them. We're just trying to work this out as best we can."

In the Plymouth South game, the Presidents fell behind, 3-0, in the first inning, a trend that occurred in all four games last week.

Senior Jon Pelletier needed only 62 pitches to toss a complete game, allowing only five hits

Offensively, Quincy managed just three hits, an RBI double in the fourth inning by junior John Alexander and singles by junior Matt Boyle and senior Joe Griffin.

Against Whitman-Hanson, the Presidents buried themselves in a 4-0 hole in the first inning. Senior co-captains John Orlando (two doubles) and Mike MacPherson (triple, single) led the offense.

Junior Steve Connolly singled and knocked in a run in the first inning with a sacrifice fly. Alexander, Pelletier and Griffin also singled.

In the Plymouth North game, Quincy allowed three runs in the first but responded with four runs in the second. It extended its lead to 5-3 in the third before the Blue Eagles erupted for seven runs in the bottom half. Quincy made it 10-7 in the fourth but couldn't pull closer after Plymouth North scored a pair in the fifth.

"We went down again in the first inning but we fought back and the game went back and forth," Draicchio said. "The kids worked really hard in the game."

Sophomore Ricky Salvucci banged out three hits and pitched well in relief. MacPherson and Connolly each had two hits while Orlando, senior Mark Demlin and sophomore Mike Lebel each singled.

Against King Philip, the Presidents couldn't overcome a 5-0 first-inning deficit. Pelletier started and Connolly, Alexander and junior Dan Myers pitched in relief. Connolly went 2-for-4 with two RBI, Orlando had two hits and an RBI and Griffin knocked in the other run with a double. Demlin, Boyle and Steve Kussman added singles.

Quincy-North Opens Season With Two Wins

GIRLS' TRACK

The Quincy/North Quincy High School girls' track team recently opened Atlantic Coast League play with a pair of wins.

It defeated Plymouth South, 75-61, and Nauset Regional, 88-44, at Plymouth South High School.

Winning overall were Kim Allen in the high jump, Jenna Furey in the two mile, Lauren Brooks in the mile, Virginia Wong in the javelin and Kelly Pineo in the shot-put.

Q/NQ dominated the distance runs, sweeping the mile and two mile as well as the javelin. Allen scored somewhat of an upset, defeating Plymouth South all-star and state scorer Jenna Banning in the high jump with a state qualifier 4'10" clearance.

Jenny Tam scored in three events, taking second in three 100 hurdles and long jump and third in triple jump.

Other scorers included Jessie Howlett (100), Christine Sorenson (200), Krystine Kelley (400), Lily Man (800), Nicole Kasanoff (mile), Jessica Johnson (mile), Kerry Regan (two mile), Rachael Kasanoff (two mile), Jen Nhan (100, 300 hurdles), Amy Guan (300 hurdles), Emily Zarnoch (800), Erin Collins (shot-put, javelin), Alyssa Beach (javelin) and Rachael Barrett (shot-put, discus).

The 4x100 relay team of Brooks, Kelley, Furey and Man also won.

Q/NQ will participate in the Route 228 Invitational Saturday at Notre Dame Academy in Hingham and will return to ACL action April 25 at Falmouth.

SPRING CAR CARE

Preparing A Car For Summer Travel

(NU) Summer's fast approaching, and for many that means making plans for the traditional family getaway at the beach, mountains or with distant relatives. For most it means packing the kids, luggage, coolers and equipment into the family vehicle and hitting the highways.

Smart families know they should get their vehicles checked out beforehand to help ensure worry-free summer travel. But today's busy schedules leave little time for backyard, do-it-yourself tinkering.

Here is some advice on locating a good repair establishment from the pros at the nonprofit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence, the group that tests and certifies automotive professionals.

• Start shopping for a repair facility before it is needed.

• Ask friends and associates for their recommendation; consult local consumer groups.

• Arrange for alternate transportation in advance to not feel forced to choose a shop based solely on location.

• Look for a neat, well-organized facility, with vehicles in the parking lot equal in value to the car being brought in, and modern equipment in the service bays.

• Look for a courteous staff, with a service consultant willing to answer questions.

• Look for policies regarding estimated repair costs, diagnostic fees, guarantees and acceptable methods of payment.

• Ask if the repair facility specializes or if it usually handles that specific repair.

• Look for signs of professionalism in the customer service area, such as civic, community or customer service awards.

• Look for evidence of qualified technicians: trade school diplomas, certificates of advanced courses and ASE certification. Also look for the ASE sign.

ASE was founded in 1972 as a nonprofit, independent organization dedicated to improving the quality of automotive service and repair through the voluntary testing and certifications of auto service professionals.

Approximately 400,000 professionals hold current ASE credentials. They can be found at every type of repair business, such as independent garages, dealerships, franchising outlets and collision shops. Certified technicians wear blue and white ASE insignia or pins, while their employers often display their technicians' ASE credentials in the customer service area and post the ASE sign on the premises.

Visit www.ase.com for more car care tips and information about ASE-certified professionals.

Tips On What To Do After An Auto Accident

(NU) Car accidents can happen in the blink of an eye. According to Car-Accidents.net, they occur approximately 6.4 million times each year.

Although being involved in a car accident can be overwhelming, knowing what to do in the moments following a fender-bender can help alleviate some of the stress and confusion of the situation.

The service specialist at Chrysler, Jeep and Dodge offer the following tips on how to handle a car accident:

• Don't leave the vehicle. Following an accident, most drivers will want to exit their vehicles to check for damage or speak with others involved. Ideally, drivers should call the police and remain in their cars until the authorities arrive. Drivers can protect themselves-both physically and legally-by remaining in their vehicles and allowing the police to process the scene.

• Carry a disposable camera. Although the police report should capture the details of the accident, it is always helpful to take photos for personal documentation.

• After police are notified, call a towing service. Know exactly who is towing the vehicle, and where it will be taken. For easy access, carry a small business card that contains the numbers of several tow-truck companies and a dealership's service department.

• Call the insurance company. Most people think of this as something to do later, but calling from the scene will help expedite the processing and administering of the clam. And information may be relayed accurately in real time instead of relying on memory.

• Get an estimate on vehicle damage. Insurance companies may require only one estimate on vehicle damage. However, it behooves the driver to get several estimates, which may vary greatly. Review these reports carefully to understand what to pay and what the insurance company will cover. Don't be afraid to ask questions. Reputable repair shops will gladly address questions regarding the required repairs.

Spotlight On Health & Fitness

Walking For Health And Friendship

(NAPS) Many studies show that walking is good for health, but sometimes it helps to get out of the "around the block" rut and into something more challenging and fun.

Long-distance walking events help people get in shape, and walking for a good cause can raise funds for groups that need it. An added bonus: Walking as part of a team can increase the enjoyment, keep a walker focused, and build great friendships.

But what is a walking team? In the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer, teams include two people or dozens-women and men, neighbors, colleagues, family, spouses or new acquaintances, from the same town or across the country-who share a commitment to taking personal steps (literally) in the fight against breast cancer.

One team that takes humor in stride is the "Back of the Pack Walkers." It consists of nearly 10 women who come together each year for the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer in Washington, D.C. They walk in the memory of a friend, Robyn Caine, who lost her battle with breast cancer in 2004. Team Captain Candi Hoffman says that "after spending so much time together, training and at the Walk, I consider the girls on my team to be some of my closest friends."

"Team Maureen" is a fixture at the Avon Walk Chicago, with team members participating as walkers, volunteers and cheerleaders, al in bright green shirts. According to Donna Lahey, "Team Maureen" Walker Captain, the 2006 team has 64 members from age one to 81. The team is named for Maureen Buescher, who died of breast cancer in 2002. It includes family and friends who walk for their own health and the health of all women.

Mike McElduff has put a unique spin on the team concept by leading "Team Peggy's Spirit," named for his mother, at all eight Avon Walk events across the country from April to October. "Peggy's Spirit" includes McElduff's siblings, friends and solo walkers who are seeking camaraderie as they tackle the long walk.

For information on the Avon Walk for Breast Cancer, call 800-510-WALK or visit www.avonwalk.org.

Pre-Nup Pointers For Your Feet

(NU) As a bride prepares for her wedding day, there is a long list of things to do. Book the reception hall. Order the wedding cake. Find the perfect dress. And... take care of her feet.

Many brides will wear shoes that can wreak havoc on their feet. So it's especially important to pamper them before the big day. Here are some tips from the American Podiatric Medical Association on making the wedding day a little easier on the feet:

• Pre-nuptial pampering prep: Fill a bucket with warm water and be sure it is large enough for both of your feet to soak. Remove nail polish with non-acetone polish remover. Stimulate foot circulation and warm up your feet by propping one foot at a time on your lap, grasp the foot and begin slowly moving your thumbs from the top of your toes to the bottom of your heel and back. Use a nail clipper to cut toenails straight across. Then, use an emery board to smooth the nail edges.

• Soothing the soles: After soaking, use a pumice stone or non-metal foot file to gently smooth the skin around the heel and the balls and sides of your feet. (For extra soothing and softening, use a scrub and massage your entire foot and lower leg.) Use a fresh towel to pat feet dry and be sure to dry between each toe. Massage a healthy amount of emollient-enriched skin lotion all over your feet to hydrate the skin and increase circulation.

• Finishing toe touches: Remove the moisturizer from your toenails and in between your toes by sing soap and water. Apply polish only if you have healthy nails. While it may make your toes look pretty, nail polish locks out moisture and doesn't allow the nail or nail bed to "breathe."

On the eve of your wedding day, lightly wrap cellophane around each foot. The cellophane will act as a makeshift sauna by locking in moisture. By morning, your feet will feel soothingly soft.

People with diabetes should always consult a podiatrist before beginning any foot care regimen. For more tips from the APMA, visit www.apma.org.

Volunteers Needed To Transport Cancer Patients To Treatments

The American Cancer Society seeks "Road to Recovery" volunteers in the South Shore to drive local cancer patients to and from their chemotherapy and/or radiation treatments.

An integral part of treating cancer successfully is making sure cancer patients receive their treatments, but many find making transportation arrangements a challenge.

New volunteers are necessary in order to fulfill the ever-increasing amount of requests for rides from local cancer patients. The schedule for volunteers is flexible and treatment appointments take place weekdays during business hours.

Volunteers need a driver's license, a car and a few spare hours.

For more information about becoming a "Road to Recovery" volunteer, call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345.

Lowering the Risk for Heart Disease

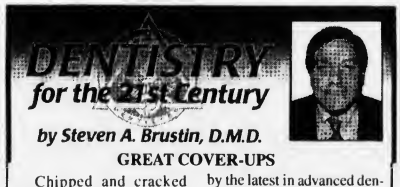
Q. I've read that heart disease is the leading killer of women. I exercise three days a week, but want to make sure I am doing everything I can to decrease my risk because heart disease runs in my family. How much exercise is enough, and what else can I do to lower my risk?

A. Many people may be surprised to learn that cardiovascular disease is not only the No. 1 killer of women in America, but it causes more deaths than the next five leading causes combined. Some 500,000 women die from cardiovascular disease each year in the U.S., with many of these cases being preventable.

According to the American Heart Association, there are some risk factors you can reduce and others you cannot. Cholesterol, high blood pressure/hypertension, tobacco smoke, diabetes, overweight/obesity and physical inactivity are all conditions that you can make a change to improve. Increasing age, gender and heredity (family history) are risk factors that are out of your control.

Physical activity is an excellent tool to lower many of the controllable risk factors. Exercise has been shown to help lower high LDL (bad) cholesterol levels and high blood pressure, as well as helping to control diabetes. A proper nutritional program and exercise plan can reduce excess weight by lowering body fat.

Begin by meeting with your physician, who can advise you on the proper steps to take to help lower your blood pressure and recommendations for beginning an exercise program.



You're already off to a great start by exercising three days a week. During each exercise session be sure to complete aerobic and strength-training exercises to maintain heart function and also strengthen the other muscles of the body. Your aerobic exercise should be between 40 and 45 minutes each workout. This can help increase lean muscle mass and decrease body fat, which is important in preventing certain conditions such as diabetes, high blood pressure, high cholesterol and obesity. Also try to find ways to be active throughout your day, such as walking the dog, taking the stairs at work or playing with your family.

Another major factor you can incorporate into your lifestyle is eating healthy. Without proper nutrition you may not see a decrease in weight or body fat. Eating well is also important to maintain good cholesterol and triglyceride levels.

Continue to exercise, eat well, get enough sleep and reduce stress. And remember to see your physician for regular check-ups. Living a healthy and fun lifestyle is your best defense against cardiovascular disease.

If you have a fitness or training question, e-mail Andrea at letters.kfws@hearstsc.com or write her in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

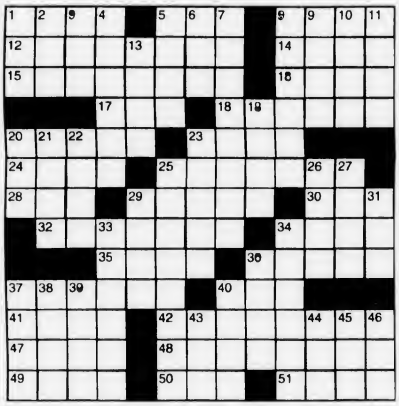
GREAT COVER-UPS

Chipped and cracked teeth can often be repaired with bonding, which involves coating teeth with a tooth-colored composite material. This is the least expensive repair option and the least durable. However, when the composite wears off, it can easily be repaired or replaced. Another, more durable (and expensive) option for hiding defects in the enamel involves fitting a custom porcelain veneer over the surface of the tooth. This procedure typically takes a few visits to the dentist (bonding requires only one), and involves removing a think layer of tooth enamel to make room from the veneer. While veneers are more natural looking and stronger than bonding, they can chip with bites into hard objects (ice or hard candy).

Our services are backed by the latest in advanced dental technology because we take great pride in providing the best. We can take care of all your dental needs, including veneers and bonding. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where all the members of our staff are dedicated to serving you – we will be happy to answer any questions you may have. Our concern is your comfort and confidence – our goal is to help preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.



P.S. While resin bonds are opaque, porcelain veneers possess a translucency that more closely mimics the natural look of a tooth.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Whether a waiting period is taking longer than expected, or just seems that way, the anxious Lamb would do well to create a center of calm within her- or himself, and not do anything rash.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Practical matters dominate the week, but cultural activities are also favored, especially those that can be shared with someone special in the Bovine's life. Some important news might be forthcoming.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You need to know more about a possible career move in order to see if it offers a real opportunity or just a change. You're sure to get lots of advice — some of it good — but the decision must be yours.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The arrival of hoped-for good news about a loved one dominates most of the week and provides a great excuse for the party-loving Moon Child to plan a special event to celebrate.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Leos and Leonas rushing to finalize their plans might want to think about slowing down the pace, or risk overlooking an important consideration that could become a sore point down the line.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The week's challenges call for logical approaches. But sentiment also has its place. Sharing memories with a special someone, for example, strengthens the bond between you.

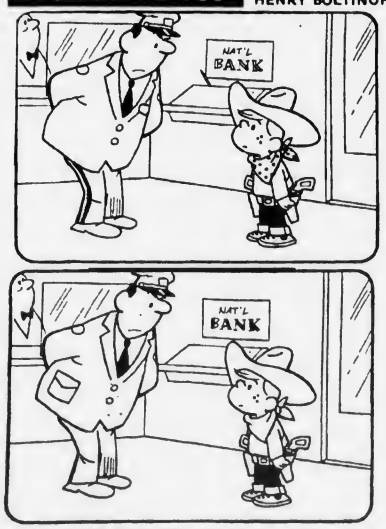
LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A brand-new approach to a problem could have a good chance of succeeding if it's based on a solid foundation of fact to strengthen its potential for standing up to scrutiny.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A favorable report should give your optimism an important boost as you confront another phase of a challenge. Don't be timid about accepting advice from someone you trust.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might want to target another goal if your current aim is continually being deflected. But stay with it until you find that first sign of an opening, and then follow through.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although offers of advice might not always please the usually sure-footed Goat, good counsel is always worth considering, especially from those whose experience can be invaluable.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't rush to make up for lost time. Your productivity can be measured not only by what you do, but how you do it. Move carefully until the job is done the way you like it.



PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Emerging facts about someone you know might cause you to rethink your relationship. But remember to make judgments in context of a full situation, not just on scraps of data.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are known both for your love of acquiring beautiful things as well as for your generosity to others.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We are all fortified by traditions. They play an important part in our lives. Traditions provide patterns on which we can depend and they give us security, a sense of belonging. But sometimes when traditions are followed too rigidly they can be a block in the path of new progress . . . a block to new learning. True, we owe it to ourselves not to be so conditioned that we become stagnant. . .

How many of us ride the fence, walk the middle of the road, to keep from betraying a tradition that says we should do a certain thing - believe a certain thing - think a certain thing? To break out of the set molds in which we have been hand-pressed can be difficult for there are many invisible hands still pressing. But isn't the freedom and joy of being a new person worth all the effort? . . .

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herin you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me henn that you are my Mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3X). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3X). Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all the things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine." The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. Thank you C.L.F. 4/20

WJDA Signs Off Sunday After Nearly 60 Years

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy folks tuning into 1300 on their radio dials Monday (May 1) expecting to hear the dulcet tones of Joe Catalano or Mike Logan will be surprised and a little disappointed to hear strange voices emanating from the spot filled by WJDA for nearly 60 years.

And chances are the strange voices will not be coming from the little studio at 99 Brackett St. in Quincy, but from brand new studios in Chelsea, the new home of what used to be WJDA and its sister station, WESX in Salem.

The two stations were sold by Jay Asher, the president and CEO and son of WJDA's founder, to Principle Broadcasting Network, a Christian-oriented music and talk network based in Bridgeport, Conn., for $4.5 million.

Quincy programming will end Sunday night. When the dawn breaks Monday morning, the station will no longer bear the call letters WJDA and the studio on Brackett Street will be abandoned and the staff scattered to other jobs, in and out of the broadcasting industry.

"I'll still be here for a while after we close," said Asher Tuesday afternoon. "A couple of us will stay around to clean up some business items.

"We'll go through the same routine right up to the end although we may run some of their programming as a courtesy."

MWRA Apologizes For Not Informing On Sludge Removal Plan

By MIKAELA SLANEY

The head of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority apologized to concerned Quincy officials Monday for not keeping them informed of plans to use trucks instead of railroad cars to remove sludge in the event of a shutdown or other emergency at its pellet fertilizer facility at the Fore River Shipyard.

"We assumed that since we knew about it and everyone that was in our orbit knew about it, that everyone knew about it," said Executive Director Frederick A. Laskey told the City Council's Oversight Committee. "We should have been more thorough in our outreach.

"I would have been here in the fall of last year before this took place. I apologize."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, in whose ward the plant is located and would be most affected by the trucks using city streets countered:

Shea Patient At Quincy Medical Center

City Clerk Joseph Shea was admitted to Quincy Medical Center Tuesday after taking ill at his office.

He was reported in "good condition."

Shea suffered back pains Tuesday morning while preparing for the meeting of the License Board of which he is chairman.

Early diagnosis ruled out any heart problem and indicated probable kidney stones.

Davis Hosting Planning 'Cleaner, Greener' Meeting

Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis will host a neighborhood meeting tonight (Thursday), at 7 p.m. at the Ward 4 Neighborhood Center, 100 Brooks Ave., for those interested in helping with the city's Cleaner Greener campaign in Ward 4.

"I have received several commitments from area businesses including Fallon Ambulance, the Boston Marriott, Quincy BFI community groups such as the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association and our schools to make this year's event a great day," Davis said.

The citywide cleanup is scheduled for Saturday, May 6. During the meeting, representatives from various groups will be on hand to determine which sites in Ward 4 will be cleaned and where volunteers will be assigned.

For more information about the meeting or Cleaner Greener, call Davis at 617-834-3945.

Gabrieli Has Quincy Support In Governor's Bid

By TOM HENSHAW

If endorsements mean anything in the race for governor of Massachusetts, then Chris Gabrieli has lined up some long ball hitters in Quincy.

The 46-year-old Democrat from Louisburg Square, once the heart of Brahmin Boston, visited Quincy last Friday and came away with the announced backing of John Gillis, the longtime city clerk, now a county commissioner.

On stage with him at the Fox & Hound Tavern, 125 Sea St., was City Councillor At-Large John Keenan, a fellow Harvard graduate, and former Ward 6 Councillor Joe Newton, his man in Quincy.

The candidate shook hands with Keenan — "The secret Harvard handshake," he told the 15 or so delegates to the Democratic State Convention in Worcester June 2 and 3 where a gubernatorial candidate will be recommended.

The delegates will pick their favorite for lieutenant governor, too, but Gabrieli told The Quincy Sun in a telephone interview that he is not going to step into that thicket by announcing his choice for the second spot on the ticket.

CHRIS GABRIELI

"The party gets to decide on the lieutenant governor," he said. "I'm not going to select one in advance."

Not even a nod to Quincy's favorite son, Tim Cahill, the state treasurer, a proven vote-getter?

"Tim is doing a great job as treasurer," said Gabrieli. "He and I worked together on improving the state pension fund. It's more important that Tim stay on the job as treasurer.

"Besides, the deadline to file is past for getting in the race. It was Jan. 31. The only way to get in now is to get 500 valid signatures from delegates."

Gabrieli himself was mentioned prominently early in the campaign as a running mate for Attorney General Tom Reilly but he withdraw just hours before any official announcement could be made.

He did have one-on-one conversations with Reilly but he'd rather not talk about it now, thank you.

"There have been dozens of articles written about it," he said. "I don't want to add to it."

With no public sector record to brag about and none to be attacked on, Gabrieli is almost a virginal newcomer to the rough and tumble world of Massachusetts politics.

He ran for Congress in 1998 and lost. He was the candidate for lieutenant governor on the ill-fated Shannon O'Brien for Governor ticket that went down without a trace in the 2002 state election.

He did not grow up like most of the Bay State's pols, holding election signs for Jack Kennedy or licking envelopes for Mike Dukakis.

"I was never involved in politics until I moved to Massachusetts," he said. "My parents were immigrants who had no interest in politics."

Gabrieli was originally from Buffalo, came to Boston to attend Harvard, moved back to upstate New York, finally came back to Massachusetts to stay in 1990, living in Cambridge and discovering politics.

"I think the state is struggling," he said. "The Republican governors, including the present one, have not been getting the job done. My history is someone who gets significant results.

"Several people urged me to run for governor. They thought that the Democratic field would win. But the ardent Democrats felt that victory was uncertain. They urged me to run."

Phelan Urges Residents Designate 'Cleaner, Greener' Sites

Mayor William Phelan is urging residents to participate and designate sites in the city's 17th annual "Cleaner, Greener" Quincy cleanup activities Saturday, May 6, from 9 a.m. to noon.

The event aims at sprucing up the city's beaches, parks, marshes, schoolyards and open space areas through a combined effort of residents and municipal departments.

"The results afforded by this one-day cleanup effort tremendously impact the overall appearance of our city," said Phelan, who encourages neighbors to form a cleanup team to target an area of their neighborhood in need of some care and attention.

"It's the time of year when every neighborhood could use some sprucing up, whether it's raking, weeding or planting. The significant response this event receives from our neighborhoods each year is a fine reminder of the pride so many residents share. I applaud the efforts of past participants and strongly encourage those who have yet to participate to join me in an endeavor that benefits all of us."

Many residents have already suggested sites for "Cleaner, Greener." The following is a listing of cleanup sites so far:

Ward 1: Edgewater Drive, Perry Beach (Parkhurst Street), LaBrecque Field/Marsh Madness, Shore Side Road Beach, Baker Beach.

Gutro Asks MBTA Maintain Train Service To Quincy

City Council President Doug Gutro has asked the MBTA to reconsider the reduction of commuter rail service to Quincy on the Boston to Kingston rail line.

"If anything," said Gutro in a letter to MBTA General Manager Daniel Grabauskas, "the city of Quincy through which the commuter rail trains from two and soon to be three lines cut through on a daily basis deserves an increase in the number of trains that stop in our City."

Trains to Kingston, Middleboro and soon Greenbush all pass through Quincy, diverging into three later in Braintree. In cutting the Quincy stop from the commuter trains, the MBTA noted that Quincy also has a Red Line stop on the subway.

Dogs Now Living Longer

You might say a dog's life isn't what it used to be. Names for example. Not too long ago, the "in" names were Fido, Rover, Spot and Lassie.

Now they are being nudged aside by Max, Rocky, Lucky and others.

SHEA

But regardless of their names, they appear to be on the way to longer lives, right along with their owners.

So indicates the annual renewal of dog licenses at the office of City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Brenda Fernandez and Carol Damiano of the Vital Statistics Department, in addition to recording births, deaths and marriages, also issue dog and fishing licenses. They see a big shift in popular names for dogs.

Right now there is no known Rover living in town. And there's only one Spot, one Lassie and one Fido. (Fido isn't a poodle as you might think but, a German Shepherd.)

Of the near 1,500 licensed dogs so far during this renewal period, Max is the most popular named with 56. Following him are: Rocky (39), Lucky (34), Abby (25), Sadie (22) and Brady (like in Tom), 18.

And another Patriots connection: There are 16 dogs named Teddy and 11 Bruschi. If Teddy is meant for Tedy, putting them together with Bruschi would make it 27.

The most popular dogs?

"Labradors and Golden Retrievers," says Brenda.

And, a sign of affluence?

Brenda also notes there are more pure breds today than ever before.

"People don't seem to have mutts anymore," she muses. "But mutts were just as lovable."

As for dogs living longer: The licenses of more older dogs are now being renewed.

A year in a dog's life is the equivalent of seven human years.

Brenda and Carol are now seeing dogs ages 13, 14, 15, 16 which, in human years, would make them 91, 98, 105 and 112.

And the real senior citizen of the Quincy canine population is a 19 year old, equal to a human aged 133. Wonder how many humans reach that age?

There were 2,646 dogs licensed in Quincy last year. Shea expects that number to reach 2,700 this year.

Fee for a dog license is $10 until May 5. After that it doubles — $20.

Regardless, don't forget to bring an updated rabies vaccination certificate.

Protect your pet. Maybe he — or she — could reach that 19 (133) year mark.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1906 postcard view of the summer cottage of George W. Morton on Winthrop Place in Houghs Neck. Morton was one of the pioneer summer residents of Houghs Neck. Earlier, he had owned the Red Lion Inn on Manet Beach, one of the Neck's first gathering spots for food and drink. After serving in the Navy during the Civil War, he was skipper of a large well-known yacht also named the Red Lion that he raced throughout New England. He was a charter member of the Quincy Yacht Club and later its commodore. In 1890 he was a founder and became superintendent of the Manet Street Railway Co. that ran the first trolleys between Quincy Square and Houghs Neck. He was a prominent Quincy businessman and real estate owner. He also was a city councillor and three-time mayoral nominee. He served on the boards of many organizations and Quincy companies and was president of Quincy Savings Bank when he died in 1911. At the time of this photo, his was probably the largest cottage in Houghs Neck, and at 35 feet above the water it had an unobstructed panoramic view of Quincy Bay. The cottage is still standing although somewhat modified and not so isolated. Morton's primary residence was in Quincy Square at the corner of Coddington and Spear Streets, now the site of Bethany Congregational Church. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Praise For Police Academy From 1000 Southern Artery

The Residents and Center Members of 1000 Southern Artery were very fortunate recently to have the Quincy Police Academy visit us on four occasions.

The programs, presented under the direction of Sergeant Richard F. Potter, were absolutely outstanding. We had programs concerning wills, power of attorney and health care proxies, safety on the MBTA, Fallon Ambulance, the District Attorney's Office, Quincy Elder Services and other topics all that were of interest and the speakers had great information to share.

There were 100 seniors at each of the sessions and they were very impressed. Everyone was presented a certificate at the last meeting. This program is a terrific way to keep everyone informed about ways to take care of themselves and what to do if you need assistance.

Sergeant Potter did a wonderful job of selecting the topics and those that did the presentations. Chief Robert Crowley should be, and I am sure is, very proud of this informative program. Thanks for including 1000 Southern Artery as one of the destinations for the Quincy Police Academy.

Takes Issue With Same-Sex Marriage Banner

Thank you for your article on April 13, 2006, "Church Banner Accents Split Among Clergy," about the huge same-sex marriage banner hung at United First Parish Church. In the article, Rev. John Swanson of Union Congregational Church in Wollaston refers to the "attitude of in your face" expressed by this huge banner on a national historic site.

Rev. Swanson also refers to the Judeo-Christian foundation of America. Rev. Bennett is quoted in the article saying, "There is nothing in the Constitution that says we are a Judeo-Christian nation." Only the revisionist history of the last 40 years has blurred the reality of this American heritage. May I offer a few facts for reflection, some especially close to Quincy.

In 1798 President John Adams stated in an address to the military "Our Constitution was made only for a moral and religious people. It is wholly inadequate to the government of any other." Did he mean religion in general, pluralism such as Rev. Bennett refers to, or did President Adams have something more specific in mind? Perhaps the following quote will shed light upon this question.

John Adams wrote to Thomas Jefferson on June 28, 1813:

"The general principles on which the fathers achieved independence were... the general principles of Christianity... I will avow, that I then believe, and now believe, that those general principles of Christianity are as eternal and immutable as the existence and attributes of God."

What of John Quincy Adams? What might his position be on these ideas?

In a speech at Newburyport July 4 1837, John Quincy Adams proclaimed:

"Why is it that, next to the birthday of the Savior of the world, your most joyous and most venerated festival returns on this day?

"Is it not that, in the chain of human events, the birthday of the nation is indissolubly linked with the birthday of the Savior? That it forms a leading event in the progress of the gospel dispensation?

"Is it not that the Declaration of Independence first organized the social compact on the foundation of the Redeemer's mission upon earth? That it laid the cornerstone of human government upon the first percepts of Christianity?"

He continued thus for 60 pages!

In 1892 a ruling was issued by the Supreme Court regarding the case, Church of the Holy Trinity v. United States. Justice Josiah Brewer issued the decision, which included the following:

"No purpose of action against religion can be imputed to any legislation, state of national, because this is a religious people... This is a Christian nation."

The Court provided 87 different historical precedents, quoting the Founding Fathers, the acts of the Founders, the acts of the Congresses and the acts of state governments. After 87 precedents the Court explained that it could continue to site many more but that certainly 87 were sufficient to conclude that we were a Christian nation.

In spirit of true tolerance, the founders recognized the importance of religious freedom but they also recognized it was crucial to have an understanding of the foundations this new American experiment rested upon. The nation's reliance on "the general principles of Christianity" is well put, I think by John Adams. It is of course true that every nation is on a continuous path of self-examination. However, unless we know the seed from which America grew, we have no hope for answering the important questions, which will determine our future.

And may I say there is a clear truth that lies within First Parish Church, John and Abigail Adams, husband and wife, mother and father, and one of their greatest gifts to America: John Quincy Adams. A gift that no other union could have brought forth and nurtured to such magnificence.

ENC To Present 'Twilight Los Angeles, 1992'

Eastern Nazarene College will present the powerful play "Twilight: Los Angeles, 1992" April 27-29.

The play, by Anna Devere Smith and directed by Boston area actress-director Jacqui Parker, depicts the Los Angeles riots of 1992 that followed the beatings of Rodney King by four police officers.

The beating was captured on video and shown repeatedly on television. The social unrest created by the airings erupted into full-blown race riots when an all-white jury acquitted the police officers.

It was a time of strong feelings, and Smith has captured those emotions in the play. Written using verbatim interviews with people who experienced the uprisings first hand, Newsweek magazine called Twilight "the heart and soul of an American tragedy, as expressed by the hearts and souls of the people who were part of it."

Parker is the recipient of such honors as the Boston Theatre Hero Award, the Elliot Norton Award, and the Independent Reviewers of New England Award. She has also had a varied career in theatre, from founding Boston's annual African American Theatre Festival to appearing in the film Lift on BET and Showtime. She is also the artistic director for the Our Place Theatre Project, an after-school performing arts workshop.

Jenna Lourenco designed the costumes, Frank Shefton the sound, and Michael Ballard, Associate Professor and technical director at ENC, designed the set and lighting. Professor Eunice Ferreira produced the play.

"Twilight: Los Angeles, 1992" will be presented in the Cove Auditorium on Eastern Nazarene College's campus at 7:30 p.m. General admission is $10, and with a student I.D. tickets cost $7. This play may not be suitable for all ages due to violence, language, and subject matter. For more information, call the box office at 617-745-3715.

Quincy High History Class Visits State House In Study

Sophomore students from Quincy High School and their history teacher, Meg McMillen, recently visited the State House as part of their study of the American Revolution.

Ms. McMillen's bid was the winner in an auction for "lunch and a State House tour" offered by Sen. Michael Morrissey at the Wollaston School PTA's fundraising auction.

"The timing of our visit was perfect," she said, for illustrating the topics the class is studying, including the Revolutionary War rifles captured from the British soldiers on display.

Morrissey brought history to the present by describing how the rifles would still require safety locks had not an amendment exempted historic weapons from modern-day laws.

The Quincy High School class presented a picture of the Quincy football team that won the annual Thanksgiving Day game to Morrissey, who is a graduate of North Quincy High.

Gutro Attends MMA Meeting At Holy Cross

DOUG GUTRO

City Council President Doug Gutro was among two dozen council presidents from across Massachusetts who attended the recent Massachusetts Municipal Association (MMA) meeting of council presidents and vice presidents at Holy Cross College in Worcester.

They were provided a legislative update by MMA Deputy Legislative Director John Robertson. Tom Weber of the Attorney Generals' Municipal Law Unit provided an update on the Open Meeting Law and Writing Ordinances.

"I consider these sessions as opportunities to further my education in local governance," Gutro said. "The information and tools that you pick up at these sessions help me to better serve my district and our city."

Gutro returned with an information packet including "Guidance for Drafting Local Laws" authored by Robert Richie of the Massachusetts Attorney General's office; Open Meeting Law Guidelines (Mass AG); an FY 2007 Budget Analysis; MMA correspondence to legislative leaders on Lottery revenues; and MMA's literature opposing Verizon's request for statewide cable licensing, which would limit municipal input in cable franchising.

At the meeting, Gutro's suggestion for an on-line database of local ordinances led to a discussion and commitment by the Attorney General's office to team up with MMA to determine how to create such an important resource to local officials in Massachusetts.

"It would be a terrific resource for any local official," Gutro said about a Web-based system to access local laws. "We don't need to reinvent local laws, when other towns and cities have already enacted them. I'm just delighted that they saw merit in the idea and are looking at a way to get it done."

Gutro plans to make the information disseminated at the session available to his City Council colleagues.

Phelan Launches Meetings To Improve Neighborhoods

affect their neighborhoods," Phelan said. "These are the everyday quality of life issues that we must address to keep our neighborhoods strong. We will travel to each neighborhood, share what we learned from the surveys and announce with the ward councillors what we hope to do to improve each neighborhood."

Phelan has compiled the results from more than 5,000 surveys that were returned by Quincy residents with their census mailing. He has also met with each ward councillor in an effort to better identify the important neighborhood issues.

At the West and South Quincy meeting, Phelan announced plans to better Brewer's Corner, improve Kincaide Park and the Grasso Playground on Columbia Street, and pave Robertson and Stedman streets. Phelan also encouraged residents to participate in neighborhood committees to provide sustainability to the neighborhood improvement efforts.

In Quincy Point, Phelan committed to taking a hard look at overhauling the Fore River Clubhouse, improving Mound Street and Avalon beaches, finishing the Washington Street lot, improving the Souther Tide Mill property, and addressing neighborhood concerns about development.

"It is my hope that, working with the City Council, we can identify the resources to address many of the community improvement projects that are being planned," Phelan said. "We have worked hard to dramatically improve the finances of our city and I believe that we are now in position to invest some money into our great neighborhoods."

Phelan also identified the hotel/motel tax money currently being utilized to improve parks and playgrounds as a source of funding to address many of the neighborhood park improvement needs.

Interfaith Service, Mozart's Requiem To Honor War Victims

Eastern Nazarene College will present an interfaith service in memory of war victims Sunday, April 30 at 6 p.m. at the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene.

Leaders of Quincy's Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and Muslim communities will participate in a joint prayer asking for peace and reconciliation for those involved in armed conflict across the world. The prayer will be followed by a performance of Mozart's Requiem by the Eastern Nazarene College Choral Union, which will be dedicated to the memories of those who have died.

The ENC Choral Union will be joined by four professional soloists: soprano Gayle Berman, mezzo-soprano Sara Bielanski, tenor Michael Barrett, and bass-baritone Lawrence Indik. The Kalistos Chamber Orchestra, one of Boston's premier chamber ensembles, will join the soloist ad choir. The Requiem will be conducted by Dr. Delvyn Case, Assistant Professor of Music at Eastern Nazarene College and director of the Choral Union.

Mozart composed his musical setting of the Latin requiem mass (the mass for the dead) at the request of Count Walsegg in 1791. Though Mozart had composed no religious music for several years, as his health began to fail he threw himself even more deeply into the project. Many scholars believe Mozart began to think of the piece as his own eulogy, an interpretation given credence by the piece's emotional power. With his death imminent but the piece still incomplete, he bequeathed final details to a colleague, Franz Sussmayr, who finished the piece after Mozart's death. The resulting work is one of the masterpieces of Western culture, simultaneously a meditation on the frailty of human life and a transcendent celebration of eternal fellowship with God.

The ENC campus is a 10 minute walk from the Red Line, the Wollaston stop on a Braintree train. For more information, including directions, visit www.enc.edu and www.musica-electrica.org, or call 617-745-3715.

Asian Youth Conference Saturday At Eastern Nazarene College

Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI) will sponsor conference entitled "Discovering Unique Careers" Saturday, April 29 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Eastern Nazarene College, East Elm Ave., Wollaston.

Quincy high school students have planned, organized and implemented this Asian youth leadership conference. Asian teens from Quincy will participate in a series of workshops hearing from presenters and facilitators on their careers and the personal experiences that shaped their paths as Asian Americans.

The one-day conference is an exciting opportunity for Asian High school students in Quincy to explore diverse career options. It is important for teens to be aware of the many career options available to them. The goal is to give attendees an inspiring learning experience where they will listen to refreshing keynote speakers, and participate in a series of workshops and small group discussions.

The participants will be able to explore their own interests and learn the possibilities of including their talents in their future profession.

Breakfast, lunch and a dinner banquet with parents are planned throughout the day's events.

Following the conference, students will apply for internships and community service projects through QARI's institutional members and area businesses to place them in learning opportunities in the summer and fall. These internships will be designed to help students learn about possible careers and the benefits of community service.

Over 100 Middle School Students Take Part In Sacred Heart Science Fair

Sacred Heart School's 6th, 7th and 8th grade students demonstrated their grasp of the scientific methods of inquiry at a recent school science fair.

For the past month, all middle school students (and there are over 100 of them) diligently and enthusiastically worked on their science fair entries.

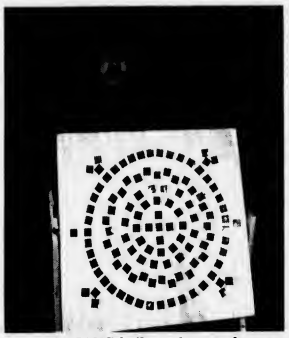
The faculty members responsible for organizing the annual science fair and guiding all the students in their efforts were Mary Wilson, who teaches science to 6th graders and Cynthia Riley, who teaches science to the 7th and 8th graders.

Under their direction, the students formulated a problem, stated a hypothesis, collected data, wrote up results and presented their conclusions to their fellow students, teachers and parents.

The auditorium was alive with the excited voices of students demonstrating their projects and parents marveling over how varied and well done they were.

Topics included Dennis Liang's project to build a solar ray, Lisa Carey tested which stain remover worked best (Shout wipes), Eric Jensen explained how a plasma generator worked, and Sarah Dunphy explored various ways to grow crystals.

There were projects involving which soil types resulted in the tallest plants (backyard dirt was better than Miracle Grow for some plant types), what shampoos cleaned best (Suave), what typeface was easiest to read (Times New Roman) and whether gender or age affected a person's ability to remember things.



Michael Wong's project using a leaf blower to power a home made hover craft was exceptionally popular, with the younger students lining up to ride on it.

Connie Ng said the best thing about the Science Fair was "getting to see and learn all kinds of fascinating things that we would never really think about." Laurie Do said it was "learning in a fun way."

The amount of work and effort the students put into their projects was quite impressive. The science fair was a huge success and all the students are to be congratulated on their efforts.

U.S. Customs, Border Protection Visits North Quincy High School

The Quincy Police Department Crime Prevention Unit and the Quincy Student Police Academy recently introduced the United States Customs and Border Protection Agency (CBP) to students at North Quincy High School.

The CBP, the unified border agency within the Department of Homeland Security, visited two classes of teacher Remus Ambraziejus.

Chief Ted Woo of Public Affairs discussed the agency's primary focus of preventing terrorists and terrorist weapons from entering the United States, while also facilitating the flow of legitimate trade and travel. This mission is vitally important to the protection of America and the American people.

CBP Officer Tara Kennedy spoke about the efforts aimed at preventing the Avian Flu and Mad Cow Disease from threatening the United States. She also put on a search demonstration with her canine partner, Lilly, a beagle, for fruits and foods that are often brought into this country illegally.

Recently, students at Quincy High School's Student Police Academy also learned about the responsibilities of Customs and Border Protection officers. The purpose of the Student Police Academy program is to introduce various occupations in public safety to the students to help them in their career choices.

CUSTOMS OFFICER Tara Kennedy and her partner, "Lilly" the beagle, showed the class how they work together to locate illegal foods being brought into the U.S.
